➔ THREE THINGS You Should Know:

1 The sign of a successful local saloon is its ability to win loyal patrons year-after-year, century-after-century, says the Association of Mature American Citizens [AMAC]. One such establishment in the U.K. has been attracting steadfast regulars for 1,229 years -- Ye Olde Fighting Cocks pub in St. Albans, England. The pub opened its doors for the first time in the year 793 and managed to survive the plague known as the Black Death that ravaged England in the mid-1300s. But, alas, the pub was apparently unable survive a more recent plague better known as COVID-19. Manager Christo Tofalli says: "the past two years have been unprecedented for the hospitality industry and have defeated all of us who have been trying our hardest to ensure this multi-award-winning pub could continue trading into the future."

2 The Indiana Department of Environmental Management (IDEM) is offering free virtual presentations to elementary schools across the state to celebrate Earth Day 2022. Registration is required and is now open. Please visit www.idem.in.gov/iee/index.htm to see dates, topics, and to register. Ask Rusty – Swiss Immigrant Asks About Collecting Their Spouse Benefits

Dear Rusty: I am originally from Switzerland. I moved to the States, got married in 2012, and became a US Citizen in 2016. I never worked in the United States but have 44 years of Social Security contribution in Switzerland and have received a pension from there since I turned 62 (I'm now 64). Is it correct that I cannot apply for Social Security here in the States on my husband's account unless he is collecting his Social Security benefit? He will turn 62 this year but is still working and does not want to collect before 70. Signed: Immigrant from Switzerland

Dear Immigrant: Yes, it is correct that you cannot collect U.S. Social Security spousal benefits from your husband until he starts collecting his own Social Security benefit. As soon as your husband's benefits start, you can apply for your benefit as his spouse, even though you aren't eligible for U.S. Social Security on your own. As a U.S. Citizen and current legal resident of the United States, you are eligible for U.S. spousal benefits from your husband even though you spent most of your life as a resident of Switzerland.

Since you mentioned your contributions to the Swiss social security program, I'd like to point out that there is a Social Security "totalization" agreement between the U.S. and Switzerland which permits using some of your Swiss credits to qualify for U.S. Social Security retirement benefits, but since you have never worked in the U.S. that bilateral agreement won't work for you. To use some of your Swiss credits to get U.S. Social Security on your own, you would need to have at least six (6) credits from working in the U.S. in a job which contributed to the U.S. Social Security program. Unless you have at least 6 U.S. Social Security credits, you cannot use the bilateral agreement with Switzerland to get your own SS retirement benefit, so you will need to wait until your husband

Dear American Truckers ...

Grocery store shelves are not like they used to be. Before the pandemic there was plenty of whatever we typically wanted. It's not like that today.

Car dealerships have changed. Before the pandemic most dealers had plenty of new and used cars to sell. We were accustomed to browsing several lots as we shopped and compared models and prices. It's not like that today.

When you needed your car fixed, parts were readily available or just an overnight order away. Today, you might wait three or four months for a part.

I recently looked into adding an additional heating unit to my house and was told, "Order it now and you might have it by summer."

A friend of mine ordered a small boat last August with the hopes he will have it by May or June this year, maybe.

The pandemic has changed our lives in more ways than

Inflammaging; Making Aging A Disease

by John Grimaldi

As we age we become more susceptible to inflammatory diseases such as Rheumatoid arthritis. Thus a new moniker for the process of growing old has emerged – inflammaging. It makes sense once you consider that the majority of age-related diseases have an inflammatory origin and that aging, itself, is a disease.

The National Institutes of Health [NIH] has weighed in on the discussion arguing that: "Aging as the passage of time and the accumulation of wisdom is not undesirable; the physiological decline that accompanies the process, however, most certainly is ... aging is a 'special form of disease' ... Whilst many aging researchers have openly declared that the universality of the aging process means it is not a disease, aging fits the given medical definition of a disease. There is no disputing the fact that aging is a 'harmful abnormality of bodily structure and function.' What is becoming increasingly clear is that aging also has specific causes, each of which can be reduced to a cellular and molecular level, and recognizable signs and symptoms ...

As aging appropriately fits the definition of disease, there is a shifting consensus that aging should be seen as a disease process in itself, and not a benign progression of age that increases the risk of disease."

Meanwhile, the National Library of Medicine points out that inflammation is a normal bodily response to cell injury; it's part of a natural healing process when one is injured or has an infection. The inflammatory response occurs when tissues are injured by bacteria, trauma, toxins, heat, or any other cause your body releases chemicals that cause swelling. This, in turn, isolates the injury and attracts white blood cells that help the healing process.

But a runaway reaction can occur when there is no injury or infection. Since there's nothing to heal, the immune system cells that normally protect us begin to destroy healthy arteries, organs and joints, according to the Scripps Clinic Health Website.

What To Do If You're Behind On Your Mortgage

Although the pandemic has impacted the financial lives of millions, one of its largest effects has been on individuals' housing situations. Since the onset of the pandemic, Americans have missed a combined $83.9 billion in mortgage payments, according to the Mortgage Bankers Association, creating undue stress and anxiety about their futures.

"Even as governments across the country begin to lift lingering pandemic restrictions, the effects on housing instability remain a critical issue for millions of homeowners," said Michael Sullivan, a personal financial consultant with Take Charge America, a nonprofit credit and housing counseling agency. "If you've fallen behind on your mortgage — or soon will — there are several steps you should take to protect yourself and improve the chances of staying in your home."

If you're behind on your housing payments or struggling, Sullivan suggests the following actions:

Contact your lender. Don't wait to call your lender until you have missed a payment. Be up front and honest about your situation, asking about potential programs or options they may have available, such as mortgage forbearance or loan modification. The sooner you contact your lender, the more options you'll likely have available.

Research housing assistance programs. Nonprofits and government agencies at both national and local levels support individuals struggling with mortgage payments. Homeowners can check out the Fannie Mae website to find information and possible resources for assistance.

Consider a refinance. Exploring a refinance on your mortgage could potentially make your payment more affordable either through a lower interest rate or extending the timeline to pay off your balance.

Seek legal help. Depending on the severity of your situation, you may want to find legal assistance to act on your behalf with your lender and negotiate any potential agreement to resolve the issue.

Get it in writing. Document all your communication with your lenders, banks or servicers. You'll also want to request any agreements you come to with them in writing. Properly documenting everything will help you if a dispute arises.

Seek nonprofit housing counseling. If your situation is overwhelming, nonprofit housing counseling agencies, like Take Charge America, can provide you with one-on-one guidance and tailored resources to help you determine the best path forward.

For additional housing resources and assistance, explore housing counseling services from Take Charge America.

Indy Airport Ahead Of Other Airports In Passenger Traffic Recovery

More than 7.1 million passengers traveled through the Indianapolis International Airport (IND) in 2021, an increase in overall passenger traffic by 75 percent compared to 2020.

"It's a promising development and we're outpacing our peer airports in Columbus, Milwaukee, and Pittsburgh in passenger traffic recovery," said Mario Rodriguez, executive director of the Indianapolis Airport Authority.

The fourth quarter of 2021 saw the most passenger traffic, with that increase attributed to fall break travel in October and holiday travel in November and December. Most of the increase in passenger traffic was due to pent-up demand from leisure travelers.

"The pandemic has transformed the make-up of air travel," said Rodriguez. "Pre-pandemic, 45 percent of air travel was business and 55 percent was leisure. In 2021, that breakdown was 18 percent business and 82 percent leisure."

More than 22 new nonstop flights launched out of the Indy airport in 2021 to 10 new destinations, along with two new airlines – Sun Country and Contour – joining the roster of airlines that fly out of Indianapolis. Of those total new flights, nine were destined for Florida cities.

In addition, nonstop flights to Cancun, Ft. Myers, Los Angeles, New York, Boston, and San Francisco resumed in 2021 after halts in early 2020 due to the pandemic.

Along with passenger increases in 2021, air cargo totals also increased significantly last year.

"Both cargo and landed weight in 2021 were the highest we've seen in the airport's history," said Marsha Stone, IAA senior director of commercial enterprise.

The Indy airport recorded 1.3 million tons of total cargo in 2021 and 5.7 million tons of landed weight.

"Driven by consumer demand for shipped goods, FedEx processed the highest volume of cargo in their history at IND in 2021," said Stone, also noting that FedEx continues to expand its operations as part of a multi-year $1.5 billion investment in facilities and infrastructure at the Indy airport.

The Indy airport started out 2022 with the excitement of the College Football Playoff Championship which drew more than 100,000 fans to the city, and spurred Delta Air Lines to offer one-time flights to and from southern cities such as Birmingham, Huntsville and Savannah.

And there's more big opportunities on the horizon, with Visit Indy and Indiana Sports Corp having booked 2022 and beyond already with prominent events.

"Indy 500 is back home again, with fans in the stands this year, to name one" said Stone. "We also have the NBA All-Star Game in 2024, which is rescheduled from 2021. Indy is an award-winning city when it comes to drawing top events. And big events feed tourism, which attracts both business and leisure travel, and that's good for our airline partners as well as our community."

Indy was named the Best Places to Go 2021, World's Greatest Places of 2021 and Best Places to Travel in 2021 by Condé Nast Traveler, Time magazine and Travel + Leisure, respectively. Only New York City has been named to all three lists in the same year.

"What we've seen in 2021 is what we anticipated we'd see – a start to the recovery," said Rodriguez. "We said in 2020 that it would take about three years to fully rebound from this crisis. We anticipate that 2024 is the year we'll see pre-pandemic passenger numbers, like we did in 2019, but the make-up of air travel will be different with leisure leading the air-travel trend and business being considerably less. That's a transformational difference that will define the air travel industry going forward."

purchasers can also have the name of a person "in honor of" or "in memory of" on the label. Having your company's or organization's name on a piece of art will show your involvement and interest in the community. Any community member or group may purchase and donate a piece of art in honor or in memory of a friend, family member or business. Several local businesses have already expressed an interest in participating. If for some reason you are not able to attend the event, but want to purchase art, contact Kathy Steele at ksteele104@gmail.com. Photos and prices of art will be sent to you. Athens Arts Gallery will handle all financial transactions.

Local artists who have been approved to sell art that evening include Stacy Bogan, Sue Brasel, Eleanor Brewer, Brian Bullerdick, Abigail Clark, Stacie Cook, Nina Cunningham, Mary Lou Dawald, Anna Dickson, Ellie Dieckmeyer, Dana Ellis, Kenya Ferrand-Ott, Jeremy Fry, Dudley Gray, Alice Harpel, Kathy Houghton, Mariah Julio, Jeff Klinker, Kathleen Norton, John Oiler, Anne Parks, Pat Paris, Karen Patton, Lorelei Schmitzer-Torbert, Jerry Smith, Leslie Warren, and John Zimmerman. Artists have selected up to three pieces of art that they feel will symbolize the beauty of our county or bring joy to those who walk into the building.

The show is open to anyone who would like to view and purchase art. Athens Arts Gallery and The Art League of Montgomery County have worked cooperative with County officials to plan this event and secure artists to participate. Now we need businesses and community advocates to make the dream of "a building beaming with quality local art" a reality. Many of the artists will be on hand to discuss their art. You are encouraged to wear masks to keep everyone safe. Packaged refreshments will be served to correspond to covid guidelines. To make a reservation to attend the event, send an email to ksteele104@gmail.com.

ry Smith, Kathy Steele, and John Zimmerman.

Athens Arts Gallery has permanently loaned three pieces from artists, Stacy Bogan, Nina Cunningham/Alice Harpel, and Elizabeth Sharpless. Eight additional pieces of art have already been purchased and donated to be placed in the collection. It will be so exciting to see all these pieces on permanent display in the new county government center. Once the Montgomery County Government Center is completed, an open house will be held to invite the artists and donors to come, stroll through hallways and enjoy this cultural centerpiece in our community.

claims his Social Security to start collecting spouse benefits from him. Assuming your spousal benefit from your husband will be higher than you would be eligible for on your own anyway, not getting your own Social Security retirement benefit using the bilateral totalization agreement is inconsequential.

You should be aware, too, that by your husband waiting until age 70 to claim his maximum SS benefit, and since you will have passed your own full retirement age by that time, the higher amount he gets at age 70 will be your survivor benefit if your husband should pass before you do. Upon his death you would get his full age 70 benefit instead of the smaller spousal benefit you will get while you are both living. Your benefit as his spouse while both of you are living will be 50% of the benefit your husband is entitled to at his full retirement age, but your benefit as his surviving widow will be 100% of the benefit he is receiving at his death.

And now the folks at Stanford University and the Buck Institute of Research on Aging have come up with a way to use a blood test to determine an individual's so-called inflammatory age - or iAge. Your iAge differs from your chronological age in that it's a measure of the chronic inflammation in our bodies.

Stamford's Dr Nazish Sayed, who helped develop the iAge blood test, says that "Our chronological age shouldn't matter to us so much. What should matter is how well we age. Our goal should be a healthier old age, one in which we prevent some of the ill health that is all too commonly associated with it ... Chronic inflammation is characterized by being low-grade and persistent, and ultimately it leads to collateral damage to tissues and organs. It has been associated with heart disease, cancer, and neurodegenerative diseases. Thus, we hypothesize that by testing for and then working to lower iAge, we can minimize the diseases that are associated with chronic inflammation."

Sayed explains that they tested blood samples from 1,000 individuals. He said it turned out that some of those blood tests showed that a number of donors with a chronological age of 45 had high levels of inflammation and an iAge of 65. The iAge factor is essentially a measure of an individual's inflammatory markers. "Our test isn't commercially available yet, but we hope it could be used to screen for these inflammatory markers as part of annual check-ups. This could allow for early detection of a variety of chronic conditions including heart disease and maybe even type 2 diabetes and dementia," he said.

sickness and death. The new normal is having to wait longer on what used to be so available.

If you think America's products, food and merchandise are difficult to get now, then can you imagine if our American truckers all went on strike?

Canadian truckers have recently blocked the flow of goods into the United States. The protest follows rallies over opposition to COVID-19 mandates in cities across Canada. In a show of solidarity with a demonstration in Ottawa that has gone on for more than a week by the so-called Freedom Truck Convoy. The protests have paralyzed the Canadian capital's business district and led the mayor to call for 2,000 extra police officers to quell the nightly demonstrations.

Several people involved in the protest Tuesday in Canada said the demonstrations had expanded from its original purpose, opposing mandates for cross-border truck drivers, and were there in opposition to all vaccine mandates, in addition to supporting truck drivers, the Windsor Star reported.

"Any delay or disruption in the supply chain creates problems, not just for agriculture but the state economy," said Chuck Lippstreu, president of the Michigan Agri-Business Association, which represents businesses that support farmers, early in the closure.

The Canadian Vehicle

Manufacturers' Association, which represents the Detroit Three automakers, called for an end to the protest, citing its effect on the country's economy. (NNY.360.com)

If the American truckers stopped driving today, the grocery stores would dry up and the movement of most everything you would want or need would not be available.

Truckers work hard. They have long hours. They sacrifice a lot by being gone so many hours, days and weeks. They deserve whatever they are paid and I'm sure in many cases are deserving of more. However, to our truckers, I have this request, please help us keep this country moving. We have enough problems in this country. A shut-down of any kind by America's truckers would create severe hardship on the people everywhere in America.

We respect you. We appreciate you. We need you to keep this country moving. Furthermore,

God bless you for what you do.
