THREE THINGS You Should Know:

The people who built Angel Mounds, an archaeological site in Southern Indiana dating between AD 1075-1425, carefully altered their landscape by building mounds in precise locations that aided viewing of solar, lunar, and celestial events, such as the Summer Solstice sunrise (occurring June 21 this year). During this free online talk Ed Herrmann, Executive Director of the IU Museum of Archaeology and Anthropology, will focus on new observations that show how the arrangement of mounds relate directly to the movement of the sun, moon, and stars at this important site, and reflects the genius of the site's builders.

The Linden Library is ready to kick off its Summer Reading Program with the theme of "Oceans of Possibility". The library will offer various ocean-themed activities and host outside presenters as well. Visiting presenters will include the Lafayette Water Search and Recover Scuba Team, Purdue's Aquatic Community Ecology Lab, and Columbian Park Zoo. There will be crafts and fun for young kids as well as older kids; all are welcome. Programs will be held in Bulldog Park, located at 314 E. Water Street in Linden, at 3:30 on Thursday June 2, June 9, June 16, June 23 and June 30. The finale will be a Foam Party in Bulldog Park where participants who have logged their reading will be eligible for a Grand Prize Drawing. The foam party will be from 4:30 to 6 p.m. on July 7.

And then there is Ruth Larsson of Motala, Sweden. It wasn't enough of a feat having made a tandem parachute jump two years ago when she was a mere 101 years of age, so she did it again -- this time at the age of 103 years and 259 days old. A Guinness World Record official was on hand to watch her as she flew through the air with the greatest of ease and declared her to be the oldest woman ever to make the jump. According to the Association of Mature American Citizens [AMAC] she replaced the previous record holder, Kathryn Hodges of Snohomish, WA who was 103 years and 129 days old when she won the title in 2019.

The Good Old Days

My Millennial neighbors - very nice people asked me what it was like to be a Baby Boomer. I scratched my head like I was having a complex thought...but actually, it was just dandruff. Then I started talking.

A Boomer's elementary school day started early, when he sat down for breakfast with the family. Back then, mid-century kids ate food cooked on a stove, or right out of a cereal box that contained a prize. The "microwave" was a small hand gesture used to greet neighbors you didn't know.

Unless you lived far from school (five miles or more), you walked or rode a bike. Sometimes one kid pedaled the bike, and another kid sat on the metal book rack behind the seat. This explains why some of us did not reproduce.

The school day contained six hours of classroom work interrupted by two recess periods plus a lunch. Many younger kids opted for the "plate lunch" (one meat and two certified vegetables) plus a small carton of regular or chocolate milk.

In the lunchroom, one of the major rules was

"Do not throw things." In other words, do not throw your trash at the giant garbage can. Do not throw your dinner roll at a friend. Do not throw

There was one teacher-supervised recess where children played kickball, volleyball, or any activity with an inflated round object.

Unsupervised recess allowed "free play," but some played too freely with car parts, or the school's public address system.

One kid even tried to sell friends his autographed photo of George Washington. (But we guessed it was fake, because cameras were pretty lousy in the 1700s.)

IDOE Approves Indiana's New Science & Middle School Civics Standards

The Indiana State Board of Education (SBOE) yesterday approved new K-12 Indiana Academic Standards in science and computer science, as well as academic standards for a new middle school civics course.

Indiana's new science standards reflect similar content areas as Indiana's previous 2016 standards, with an increased focus on supporting active student engagement in science learning. This includes updates to Indiana's science standards that:

- Reflect science as it is practiced and experienced in the real world;
- Build logically from kindergarten through grade 12:
- Focus on deeper understanding as well as application of content;
- Integrate practices, crosscutting concepts and core ideas.

Indiana's civics standards will support a new civics class that students will take during the second semester of sixth grade, building upon citizenship standards in earlier grades. The new standards focus on instructing students on the foundations of government, functions of government and the role of citizens. To support these new sixth grade standards, some existing social studies standards have been rearranged to be taught in either seventh or eighth grade.

Indiana Academic Standards provide a guide of knowledge and skills that students should build across all grade levels and provide a basis for schools' locally established curriculum. Each standard is reviewed once every six years through a process that includes input from parents, educators and other stakeholders. Drafted standards are then available for public comment before being finalized and approved by the SBOE.

In addition to this review and public comment process, Indiana's middle school civics standards were reviewed by the newly-created Indiana Civics Education Commission and the Civics Standards Committee, established in 2021 by House Enrolled Act

The Indiana Department of Education will make resources and guidance available to schools to support implementation of these standards. Indiana's new science and civics standards will be fully effective in Indiana schools by the 2023-2024 school year.

Attorney General Todd Rokita Secures Participation Of All Indiana Communities In $507 Million Opioid Settlement

Attorney General Todd Rokita has successfully brought together every Indiana city, town and county to participate in a historic $507 million settlement that will bring massive relief to Hoosiers struggling with the devastating effects of the opioid epidemic.

"Today marks a milestone victory in our battle against drug addiction," Attorney General Rokita said. "This scourge has inflicted such unspeakable pain on so many Hoosiers. We are fighting daily for our families, friends and neighbors. By all of us working together, we can ensure a brighter day is coming."

Achieving the participation of all 648 political subdivisions in Indiana — i.e., cities, towns and counties — required overcoming several obstacles. The most significant impediment came from outside attorneys who initially convinced several individual communities to pursue their own litigation rather than opt into the statewide settlement.

And later, once those same private attorneys conceded the best course was to join the statewide settlement, some of them insisted on building into the disbursement plan greater windfalls for themselves.

"Some lawyers seemed enticed by the prospect of big paydays," Attorney General Rokita said. "We worked with our partners in local government to make sure the opportunity to serve the public good won out over private pecuniary interests."

The settlement funds will support local law enforcement efforts, drug task forces, regional treatment hubs, and early intervention and crisis support, among other important programs.

Indiana technically is party to two settlements—one with Johnson & Johnson, which manufactured and marketed opioids, and one with the nation's three major pharmaceutical distributors (Cardinal Health, McKesson and AmerisourceBergen).

The overall arrangement is part of a $26 billion agreement settling allegations of 46 states and many units of local government against the four companies.

"No amount of money will ever compensate families for the loss of loved ones," Attorney General Rokita said.

"But a settlement of this magnitude helps prevent similar types of corporate irresponsibility from ever happening again."

Attorney General Rokita and his team worked directly with elected members of the Indiana General Assembly and local government leaders to create a statutory structure that will efficiently distribute funding directly to local communities.

This past session, House Enrolled Act 1193 vastly improved upon a previous existing framework that featured too much state-level bureaucracy. Previously, the Indiana Family and Social Services Administration (FSSA) would have acted as a "middleman" distributing funds to local governments.

"Together, we have created an excellent disbursement plan for our opioid settlement," Attorney General Rokita said. "From the very beginning, my own mission was to ensure that our local communities received the maximum funding possible — and that the individual communities also could decide exactly how to use the funds they received."

The settlement framework continues to be a 50-50 split between the state and local governments.

Thirty percent of the settlement funds with "no strings attached" is split evenly between local communities and the state. That 30 percent can be used however local communities and the state choose to use them.

The other 70 percent is designated for opioid abatement efforts in local communities. State leaders decide exactly how to allocate half that amount — or 35 percent of the total. And this year's legislation now ensures that local governments decide exactly how to allocate the other half of that total.

'Local government is closest to the people and most aware of community needs," Attorney General Rokita said. "So that's where the best decisions can be made regarding exactly how to spend these funds. Just as I did as Secretary of State and in Congress, I will continue to trust the wisdom of local leaders."

IDDC, Visit Ind. Launch New Tourism Marketing Campaign

Visit Indiana and the Indiana Destination Development Corporation (IDDC) yesterday launched the 'IN Indiana' marketing campaign, a unique effort to tell the Hoosier State's authentic story. Visit Indiana has developed an extensive customizable toolkit of resources available free of charge to every business, small town, big city, and destination in the state.

"In keeping with our great state's spirit of innovation, this campaign gives tools and a voice to everyone, making Indiana stronger together," Governor Eric J. Holcomb said. "From Indiana's shoreline to the hills in southern Indiana, there is something for everyone here IN Indiana."

The IN Indiana marketing campaign will build on what Indiana is known for, including the world's largest single-day sporting event in the world, the Indy 500. The capital city, Indianapolis, is known for successfully hosting national sporting events, such as the NCAA tournament and the College Football Championships, as well as, major conventions, including FFA, GenCon and most recently the Global Economic Summit.

"From the smallest towns to the largest cities, the adaptable messaging of 'IN Indiana' will instill pride in the many communities that make up the state," Lt. Gov. Suzanne Crouch said. "Thanks to the campaign's unified messaging, we will attract more visitors, retain college graduates from our schools, and attract top talent to ensure Indiana's continued growth and success."

The IN Indiana campaign will allow every stakeholder, no matter their budget, to benefit from these tools and unified messaging. The 'IN Indiana' design kit includes logos, brand guides, social media templates, print collateral templates, tradeshow collateral, promotional items, digital ad templates and more. Each resource is fully customizable for all Indiana stakeholders, allowing them to personalize their marketing efforts while at the same time presenting a unified front to potential visitors, future residents and companies looking to do business in Indiana.

"The goal behind 'IN Indiana' is to help Indiana function as a state united when it comes to spreading the word about this wonderful part of the world," Elaine Bedel, IDDC Secretary and Chief Executive Officer, said. "These stories will show new visitors the unexplored diversity of the state and create pride and ownership in our people." House Enrolled Act 1115 established the Indiana Destination Development Corporation (IDDC) to position Indiana as the best place to live, work, play, study and stay. IDDC operates as a public-private agency and is governed by a seven-member board. Members include Governor Eric Holcomb who has appointed the Lt. Governor Suzanne Crouch as his designee, the president of the IEDC or designee, and five governor-appointed members from the private sector. Elaine Bedel serves as Secretary & CEO.

ar Creek, MoCo and thereafter stayed in the same place. In 1870, he owned a large amount of real estate, valued at $8,800.

This happy couple spent 61 years together before their death two months apart in 1911. He had been sick for quite some time, having had a stroke (a prominent form of death in this family) five years prior to his death, and not being able to walk all that time. At the time of his passing from blood poisoning, it is thought that carbolic acid was used thinking it was a liniment, this causing the blood poisoning that technically led to his death. Their 50th anniversary was quite an affair with 52 present, 40 of whom were their descendants and two of the 52 had been at their original wedding. A big dinner "consisting of almost everything in the range of edibles and prepared in that tempting manner for which the Dunbar women are justly famous in this locality," was enjoyed by each and all. There were six more direct descendants who could not attend being in Iowa. Mary gave her children a five-dollar gold piece as a souvenir of the occasion and Robert gave each of the small grandchildren one dollar in silver.

When Robert and Mary were first married they started in a log cabin. No land, no major effects, but they did own a horse, cow, two beds, a cooking pot, a teakettle, one skillet and a few clothes pieces. She cooked at the fire place. Before his marriage, he ventured around various other states but settled down a bit over a mile from where he was born. However, he was 30 before he made it to our county seat having to go for jury duty. Sixteen children were born into this family; however, there was but a dozen to reach maturity and nine left at the time of their parents' passing.

He was somewhat politically-oriented, occasionally running for an office or working with the party. At age 16, he joined the Christian Church at Colfax and a charter member of the Masonic order there. Several Masons from the county and Colfax area attended his funeral and were in charge of such. Although as far as I know, he did not live in Iowa, he did have farm property and livestock there and made several trips out to check on things, seeing sisters and brothers and his son living there.

So, who are the children? First was Elias born in 1852, married Sarah Sprague in 1882 in Montgomery County, was a farmer here but moved to Oklahoma about 1910. They had several children (William Earl, Cleveland, Nathan, Mary, Eva, Fay, John R, Forrest) who produced at least eight grands.

Their oldest daughter was Mary Catherine "Kate" born in 1855 and married Samuel Boots in 1878. After birthing at least a son, Roy Garfield Boots, she seemed to get melancholy. When her Uncle Taylor was murdered (you'll read about him later on in the Saga), she became deeply depressed and as her father was boarding the train at Darlington to go to Rockville to see the man hanged for the murder of his brother, he was tapped on the shoulder and told that his daughter, Kate had hung herself. Can you imagine?

Second daughter was Lydia Cleveland Dunbar 1 Nov 1856 and married David Hayes. They were parents of five children, four growing to adulthood. I loved their kids' names: Kircher Berdell; Lelah Pearl; Robert Milton, Mary Glennie and Floyd Clyde. They were married over 50 years as well, he being a large farmer. Lydia had a servant through much of her children's years of growing-up. She, too, died of a stroke.

Daughter Melissa Dunbar never married. She is buried in (1858-1943) Union Cemetery in Tippecanoe County where her parents, grands and many other relatives rest, having passed from a stroke. Although she rented her home (the last few years of her life, she lived with a brother) she owned 52 acres from her parents' estate and it was sold at public auction after her death.

Eliza Alice Dunbar (1859-1926) married John M. Royer in 1884. He died young and she remarried Simon Wilshimer. She had at least one son Curtis and I believe a daughter, Mary as well. She passed of diabetes and Brights' disease.

Another daughter followed, named Emilda but went continuously by Emma, middle name Elizabeth. She married Jessie P. Smith in 1884. Buried in Union Cemetery, they had no children.

Rachel Ellen born 28 April 1865 married Joseph F. Corns and she died in 1886, having had two children, whom I believe were named Ora and Ivan.

Yet another daughter, Martha Bell (born 18 Oct 1866) married Oliver Horney and died on her 40th anniversary. The Horneys had nine children (love their names) but very few grands, plus most lived to a ripe old age. Three of the sisters never married (Velma Ellen age 87; Ruby Snow, 91; Mary Irene, 93). Merge Smith was just eight months old at death (Jan-Oct 1898); Audra Carolee, who married Wesley Isfalt late in life and had no children, died age 82; Haven Paul (died a few days shy of 85 he and wife Hazel Nydegger had a son, Eldon who has an interesting tombstone, with a highlighted mail box having been a mailman, referee and umpire for 22 years); Robert Dunbar Horney farmed, married Ruby Keller later in life and to my knowledge had no children and lastly, Edna Fern born in 1900 married 28 Feb 1934 to Arthur Waddell, they parenting four (Delores, Mary Lou, William and Donald) and having a dozen grands.

Eighth daughter for Robert and Mary (Maroney) Dunbar was Easter May who married Ira Isaiah Hutchison, they having two children, Loren and Lela and a few grandchildren. She passed from diabetes in 1935.

Okay, we hear almost all families have a black sheep - coming up -Chauncey Monroe Dunbar who married Nancy Morin (one daughter) who divorced him, as he "had the habit yanking his wife out of bed by her hair, then dragging her around the house also, by her hair." He remarried Jane Butler when he went to Osecola, Iowa and they had two children, Robert and Gladys. As a freighter on a teetery hill, he fell from his wagon and the front wheel ran over his neck and chest (article from FIndAGrave) The accident was near Antelope, Oregon (Dunbar History), and a small stone marks his grave in the Antelope Cemetery, Wasco County.

Third son was Charles Willard Dunbar who married Margaret (Myers?) Hays in 1912. No children, he died due to a stroke at age 74 the third day of January in 1947 - buried Decatur County, Indiana.

Their 12th and last child to grow to adulthood was their 9th daughter, Alta Snow Dunbar who was born 12 Jan 1876. She married Charles Chenoweth in 1897 and they had Edna Blanche, Janet, Mildred and Francis Maynard (who died at age eight months), as well as several grandchildren. Sadly, she passed away at the young age of 45 from nephritis and uremic poisoning.

Thus, you have the life and times, the good and the bad for Robert Dunbar, a true Sugar Creeker and #7 in the Dunbar Saga!

CAN HEAR, BUT I CAN'T UNDERSTAND

Did you know that the earliest sign of hearing difficulty is often the complaint that "I can hear, but I can't understand." While this type of comment may seem contradictory, it makes a lot of sense to the hearing care professionals at Beltone. In an industry that is often confusing to consumers – our goal is to make patients comfortable in a no pressure environment. At Beltone, our hearing screenings and evaluations are always complimentary. We take the time to get to know you and your medical history and explain the results of your evaluation in an easy-to-understand way.

What you can expect at Beltone:

Great hearing devices: Our advanced digital technology gives you speech clarity with minimal background noise. Customer service: From day one, we established a set of values unlike anything else in the industry – making your health our number one priority. Exclusive BelCare: Receive a lifetime of care and service for both you and your device.

Hearing aids are not just to help you hear but are critical to improving your brain's ability to decode speech. If hearing loss is left untreated, speech discrimination drops over time. This is because the part of the brain that decodes speech is not getting any exercise. Like a muscle without exercise, the ability to decode speech will deteriorate, but unlike a muscle, in most cases you can't get it back. This is why it's very important to get a hearing aid when you need one, rather than waiting until you can't hear at all.

P.S. We know there are hundreds of hearing aid advertisements out there promising different things. We see the news stories that talk about over-the-counter hearing aids. We can tell you the truth about "cheap" hearing aids—they don't work very well. At Beltone we are dedicated to finding a hearing solution that is right for both you and your budget!
