2Hey, guys, if you're in love and are looking for a sure-fire way to pop the question, you might want to get in touch with Abdul Gafur Anadiyan, managing director at SWA Diamonds, says the Association of Mature American Citizens [AMAC]. You'll find him in Malappuram, India and, if you have the dough, he has an engagement ring that will knock your lady's socks off. It features 24,679 diamonds and the Guinness Book of World Records attests to the fact that it's a one of a kind. Guinness describes Abdul as specializing "in diamond jewelry with a mission of making it affordable for all." Sure enough, he's asking a mere $95,243 for this piece of bling.

3The Indiana Department of Transportation announces State Road 236 will close on or after Friday, July 22 from U.S. 231 and Rush St. This is for Phase One of the ongoing S.R. 236 reconstruction project. Access will be maintained for homes and businesses. This section of road is expected to reopen mid-October, weather permitting.

"Art On Thursday" Presents Acrylic Pours

"Art on Thursday" August 11 Athens Arts presents a class on Acrylic Pouring or Acrylic Fluid Art.

In 1930, Mexican mural artist David Siqueiros discovered the movement of acrylic paints when he poured white paint over some watered-down paints and started experimenting. Siqueiros called this type of technique "accidental painting"

By 1940, Jackson Pollock began using this fluid art technique and developed his "drip" technique and "pour splashes". Fun fact: in 1968, Janis Joplin used this pour technique on her car fender.

Today we call this technique a pour or fluid art. Pours exploded with the internet and cheap craft paints which have more fluidity than heavy bodies paints artist generally use.

Continuing Discussion On Morals

I've been writing newspaper columns since my junior year in high school, almost 50 years ago. A couple of them produced death threats that the law enforcement folks deemed credible enough to have a chat with me about watching my back for a few days.

Not sure I've written any that generated as much response as a few recent ones on the declining morals in this country. And surprisingly, at least to me, the reaction has been about 99-to-1 in agreement.

Since I'm feeling a little emboldened, let's hit chapter two. And if you're an atheist, you might skip this week . . . or not. Your call obviously. I'm going to talk about God, but I think this very much goes in line with last week. If you don't agree, that's OK. This one is my two

Montgomery, Putnam Counties Collaborate With AT&T On Plan To Deliver Fiber-Powered Broadband

Montgomery and Putnam counties and AT&T are collaborating on a $5.7 million plan to bring AT&T Fiber to nearly 2,200 homes, businesses and farms. The project is contingent upon a final contract between the state of Indiana and AT&T.

Using an award from Indiana's Next Level Connections Broadband Grant Program and private investment from AT&T, the plan calls for the state-of-the-art fiber network to cover portions of Ladoga, New Market and Waveland in Montgomery County and portions of Russellville in Putnam County.

Following the execution of a final agreement between AT&T and the state, extensive design and engineering work will begin immediately.

"This AT&T project will bring fiber-based internet to many of our residents who desperately need it," said Montgomery County Commissioner John Frey. "It's a great example of the public and private sectors working together to build a brighter future for Hoosiers. We're thrilled to see this progress on broadband access."

AT&T has extensive experience deploying fiber-optics across Indiana. In fact, hundreds of thousands of locations in the state have access to AT&T Fiber today. AT&T is also currently working with both Vanderburgh County and the City of Boonville to bring AT&T Fiber to those communities through public-private partnerships.

"We have a long history of connecting Hoosiers, and we're excited about this opportunity to continue to work with the state, Montgomery and Putnam counties on closing the digital divide," said Bill Soards, president, AT&T Indiana. "Our AT&T Fiber network is fast and reliable, and we look forward to helping build better futures for the businesses and people in these communities."

AT&T Fiber is the fastest among major providers¹ and offers symmetrical speeds of up to 5-Gigs on downloads and uploads. The faster speeds and increased bandwidth mean customers can connect multiple devices, stream multiple entertainment sources, quickly upload content to social media and experience ultra-low lag for pro-level gaming – all at the same time.

Residents and businesses can learn more about AT&T Fiber at att.com/fiber and can sign up to be notified when service will be available at their address at att.com/notify-me.

Affordable internet service is available for low-income households as part of AT&T's commitment to help close the digital divide. Access from AT&T offers low-cost broadband options, including free internet for eligible households when combined with federal benefits from the Affordable Connectivity Program (ACP).² After you confirm your ACP eligibility, call us at 866-986-0963 to discuss your options and order service. Be sure to have your National Verifier application ID handy when you call.

Crawfordsville Board of Public Works and Safety
Crawfordsville Fire Department: Fire Apparatus—Triple Combination Pumper

Notice is given that the Board of Public Works and Safety of Crawfordsville, Indiana ("Board") will receive sealed bids in the Office of the Clerk-Treasurer, 300 East Pike Street, Crawfordsville, Indiana 47933, by 10:00 o'clock a.m. (local time), Wednesday, 3 August 2022 for furnishing all necessary labor, equipment, and material for a new fire apparatus—Triple Combination Pumper—for the Crawfordsville Fire Department, which must conform to other specifications in detailed written bid specifications for the desired new equipment. Interested bidders should obtain the written specifications for fire apparatus at the Crawfordsville Fire Department, 100 South Water Street, Crawfordsville, Indiana 47933 or by contacting Fire Chief Scott Busenbark at (765) 362-1277.

A bid bond in the amount of ten percent (10%) of the bid shall be furnished with the bidder's proposal. The bond will ensure that the bidder will submit a Performance Bond within 15 days of the notice of award of contract. In case of failure to comply within the stated time, the bid bond will be forfeited as liquidated damages because of the default. The bid bond of all other bidders will be returned after bids are opened, and evaluated, and bid awarded.

A performance bond in the amount of one hundred percent (100%) of the bid shall be furnished by the successful bidder within 30 (thirty) days after receiving the official notice of the award of contract. Failure of the contractor to complete delivery according to the contract and specifications will be cause to begin action for forfeiture of performance bond. The bond shall also guarantee compliance and performance with the warranty provisions of the specifications.

All bids should be submitted on forms provided and under the regulations prescribed by the Indiana State Board of Accounts. All bids will be evaluated under the full written specifications. The City's standards for bidding the fire apparatus must be strictly adhered to, and all bid forms and questions must be complete and submitted with the bid. Omissions and variation will result in immediate rejection of the bid.

All bids will be opened at a regular meeting of the Board that will take place at 10 a.m. on Wednesday, 3 August 2022, in the Common Council chambers on the second floor of the City Building, 300 East Pike Street, Crawfordsville, Indiana. All bids may be taken under advisement for review by the Board. All bids must be guaranteed and firm for sixty days following acceptance by the Board. The Board will notify the successful bidder of its acceptance within fifteen days following the opening of bids, but such acceptance may be subject to the city securing adequate financing for such purpose. The Board reserves the right to reject all bids if it determines it is in the best interest of the City of Crawfordsville to do so and to waive any informality in bidding.

Nat Geo is famous for having the ability to highlight the “best of” any subject in its colorful and informative publications. You may also find delight in the “Smart Travel Guide to 18 National Parks in the Midwest & Eastern U.S.” (917.9 Sim) by Rob J. Simms. This guide’s design is arranged in an outline form and is straight to the point in regard to locations and distance.

If you are interested in straightforward information that can enhance your experience and help you easily organize your trip, check out “Live Your Road Trip Dream” (910.2 Whi) by Phil & Carol White, or “How to Hike the A.T.: The Nitty-Gritty Details of a Long-Distance Hike” (796.51 Ra) by Michelle Ray. viewers understand more about wildfires, their causes, consequences, and possible mitigation. It’s a complex scenario.

One couple featured had built a home on a cleared lot high in the wooded mountains, living off the electrical grid by using solar power. Nonetheless their home was burned to the ground in a fierce Oregon wildfire. That fire was sparked by power lines. Since the couple owned the land, they planned to rebuild on the same site: new fire regulations now dictate that they remove all trees within 100 feet of a house to help protect from future fire. Husband and wife had, of course, moved to the woods to be able to live among the trees. This conundrum brings up a larger question.

Another scientist and activist wonders if, in today’s climate, whether any dense housing should be allowed in what is called the wildland/urban interface (WUI) since building and the human activity associated with housing invites fire disaster. And yet people want to live in these beautiful environments. What costs are we as a society willing to pay?

New communities typically want to be connected to the power grid. This increases the risk of more fires. This then means a need for more firefighters to rescue people and save houses. So, perhaps houses built in regions at high risk for fires should be required to use fire retardant materials and building practices. Yet, this makes houses significantly more expensive and so few can afford them. Just as in any community, rural wooded areas out West have mobile homes and pre-fab homes. These tend to burn readily in wildfires. So should we ban these most affordable houses? In some locations, insurance companies will no longer insure against fire. Without fire insurance, banks are unwilling to issue mortgages. This reality leads to a situation of significant inequity: under such conditions, only those with significant monetary resources would be able to afford to live near forests.

What than can be done to protect lives and make living near forests more equitable? Solutions are not clear. For further understanding, we must turn to the forests themselves. Along with individual rights, forests too need to be preserved. Forests are not only beautiful places to live but are one of our greatest natural resources and the source of much of our planet’s oxygen.

For tens of thousands of years, humans have lived in and near forests. Why is today different? Population pressures and power lines, as already noted, have changed the equation. In addition, for the last hundred years or so, our country has followed a national policy of fire suppression. At the individual level, fire suppression is common sense: we must tend our campfires and pay attention to any sparking activity we’re responsible for in the wilderness. Smokey the Bear was right—only you can prevent fires [that you might start].

However, at the nation policy level, fire suppression may have been a grave mistake. By extinguishing nearly all fires started by lightning and by not doing prescribed burns (as forest and prairie tribes of Native Americans have traditionally done), our forests have become clogged with underbrush and so have become far more flammable. All that understory becomes prime kindling; all the sapling trees (that would have been taken out by natural fires) become “straws drawing the water table down” as one scientist put it. This puts extra stress on each individual tree making them more vulnerable to fire.

Add to that, today’s warming temperatures and we get a perfect recipe (or a perfect storm) for massive wildfires. As one scientist who has spent decades studying wildfires and climate notes: in the last couple hundred years as we’ve taken ancient carbon from the earth (coal, oil, and gas) to run our industries and vehicles, we’ve speeded up the natural carbon cycle by tens of thousands of years. This has made our industrial age—by definition part of a geological ice age—into a fire age.

As narrators in the film pointed out, the easy solutions for reducing fires have already been enacted. Now we must tackle tougher problems. For starters, we need to learn more about Native American fire management techniques. Out West several tribes are now partnering with fire departments, the US Forest Service, and volunteer groups for learning and teaching about such techniques. All the western forests still are home to scores of different tribal peoples whose wisdom should be drawn upon.

Please join us for the next Green Issues film viewing and discussion of “Nausicaa: Staging the Ocean’s Biodiversity,” on Tuesday, July 26 in Hays Hall, Room 104 on the Wabash College campus. For this film we move from fire to water, the water of the deep oceans. Nausicaa is the largest public aquarium in Europe, located in northern France, and is a UNESCO Center of Excellence. It contains a 2.6 million-gallon tank that recreates nature, including day/night and seasonal cycles. The aquarium contains 1600 separate species and 60,000 individual animals. Nausicaa is helping to rebuild endangered species’ populations.

Green Issues films are free and open to the public. They all begin at 7 p.m. Parking can be found in the Center Hall lot reached through the gateway main entrance to Wabash College on Grant Street. Hays Hall is on the north side of this parking lot. We hope you will join us.

cents after all. You can have your own two cents any way you want.

Here’s the question: If you met God today, what would you want / expect him to say to you?

Notice the slash between want and expect? Don’t know about you, but I’m worried that the gap between what I want Him to say and what I expect is bigger than I am comfortable with.

Just saying. Thing is, any of us could meet God today. Think not? Take a look at the obituary page. It always has some folks who maybe didn’t have “Meeting With God” on this week’s to-do list. Yet there they are.

Since we don’t know when, where or how this will happen, doesn’t it make sense that we should try to put ourselves in a position so that He won’t have to struggle to find something nice to say?

As you ponder that, let’s also think about how we live our lives these days. Think about the things we say on social media about other folks. I mean, c’mon! Can you believe she would wear something like that at HER age? Or what about those idiots who love Donald Trump? What do you mean Joe Biden should run for another term? There surely isn’t a shortage of opinions . . . and tempers!

Don’t stop there. Think about our reactions when some moron, uh-oops, cuts us off on the interstate. Would we really say the same things if we were face to face with that driver or the person on the other end of the computer?

Maybe. Maybe not. Still, the reality is we’re saying them today. We might find ourselves explaining why to the man upstairs tomorrow.

I was listening to my favorite pastor Allen Jackson the other day and he asked a question that gave me pause. What could someone possibly do that would be considered brazen in today’s world? Wow! A few years ago, that’s a pretty easy question. Today? Not so much. That says a lot, doesn’t it?

If we could re-live our lives, there’s probably a lot of things we might do differently. I know for sure that I never would have sold my ’67 Chevy pickup. Most of us would probably make a good effort to be nicer, to do good things, to be respectful . . . all things we can easily start doing today. Right now.

We should anyways. Be it tomorrow, next year or a long time from now, the question stands: What do you want God to say to you?

Hearing Loss Makes Your BRAIN WORK HARDER

If you're struggling to hear, you don't just miss a few sounds here or there. New research shows that adults with hearing loss experience a 40% faster decline in cognitive abilities. This suggests that the entire brain may be struggling to fill in the gaps caused by untreated hearing loss.

Beltone Hearing Care Practitioners point to new research. "Several studies have done imaging to look at the brains of people with varying degrees of hearing loss," Beltone says.

With normal hearing, the section of the brain that's responsible for hearing lights up during imaging. But the scans reveal a different picture for a person with untreated hearing loss. Researchers found that the hearing center of the brain shrinks in age-related hearing loss. Therefore, other areas of the brain necessary for memory and thinking must take over to help compensate. That's why people with hearing loss are more fatigued at the end of the day. Your brain is having to work harder if you have untreated hearing loss.

"We want to keep you as healthy as we possibly can. And with hearing aids, you're not only taking care of your hearing and your relationships, but we have the potential, because of the auditory stimulation, to provide benefit for your brain health."

The symptoms may be obvious when you're struggling to hear your grandchild or trying hard to follow a conversation in a crowded place, but many people do not realize that even when you're home alone or in a quiet environment, your brain is still having to work harder than it should to compensate for your hearing loss.

Thankfully, research is showing that when hearing loss is detected early and treated with hearing aids, the brain can reorganize itself back to its usual operation. This research may help explain the link between hearing loss, cognitive decline and memory loss.

Beltone Hearing Care Practitioner

Beltone Hearing Care Practitioners say "We want to keep you as healthy as we possibly can. With hearing aids, you're not only taking care of your hearing and your relationships, but we have the potential, because of the auditory stimulation, to provide benefit for your brain health. Hearing loss is not just about your ears. A lot of people tell us that they 'get by just fine', but we remind them that they need to think beyond communication and instead think in terms of overall health."

Complimentary Services:

- ✓ Complete Ear Check - It may just be wax!
- ✓ Complete Hearing Screening
- ✓ Demonstration of the latest Beltone Technology
- ✓ If you currently wear hearing aids, we will clean them at no charge.

BUILD A RELATIONSHIP with a Hearing Care Specialist you can trust

If you've had a hearing exam before, you can expect a very different experience when you walk into Beltone. The Specialists readily admit that their goal is to help treat hearing loss, not to sell you a hearing aid.

"Often people walk in and their guard is up," say Beltone. "We get it. They say, 'I don't want to be sold to'. I say, 'Great! You're in a great spot!' We're health professionals, working in your best interest."

While many folks shop for the lowest price for hearing aids, it is highly recommended to shop for the best healthcare professional that you feel comfortable with to ensure your satisfaction and success.

"Think of your hearing in terms of the whole package. If you needed knee surgery, would you shop for the cheapest implant or the most qualified and experienced surgeon to provide the best product, outcome and follow-up care?"

You will be satisfied not when you pay the lowest price but when you get the best overall value for your investment, which is why at Beltone we are professional hearing care specialists that offer the most advanced hearing technology and service.

We pull from over 80 years of hearing healthcare experience and expertise to truly customize options to each individual budget and lifestyle.

Instead of focusing solely on price, We suggest you meet with a hearing care specialist who can not only determine if you have hearing loss and suggest a course of treatment, but work with you every step of the way to improve your quality of life.

"We come at hearing in terms of overall health. We want to build a relationship with you throughout your life. We understand the emotional and financial investment involved, which is why our goal is to keep you hearing your best for as long as we possibly can," Beltone says.

Beltone will provide an honest and clear path for your hearing loss. At Beltone we stand behind everything we do. If you're unhappy with the devices, we don't want you to leave them in the drawer. We set people up for success so they have a positive experience. We know it's an investment, and that's why we're going to take care of you.

TIME TO TAKE YOUR HEARING HEALTH SERIOUSLY

Hearing may be the most underappreciated of the five senses. If you can't see well, of course, you'll visit a licensed eye doctor to get glasses or contacts to correct your vision. But, in this day and age, people are still hesitant to see a hearing care specialist, professionals that are highly trained to treat hearing loss.

"The reasons are endless," says Beltone. "Many of us don't think we're old enough to need hearing aids, or we worry they'll make us look older. Some of us don't think our hearing loss is bad enough to need help, or we're worried about the cost."

The fact is that even a mild hearing loss may be affecting your brain function, your sense of balance and your relationships with family and friends.

"Hearing loss is hard on relationships."

You may think the simple solution is to just turn the TV louder or ask your kids or grandkids to speak up, but even a mild hearing loss can affect you in countless ways. If your hearing is at all impaired, your brain has to work harder, trying to make out words and sounds. A hearing loss can make it harder to interact in social situations, to spend time with family, or to be productive at work. Research has linked untreated hearing loss with cognitive decline, dementia and an increased risk of falls.

THE SOLUTION: Resolve to schedule a free hearing exam. It's quick, easy, and will provide you with the information you need to move forward in life.
