➔ THREE THINGS You Should Know:

1 Limbo dancing was quite the fad in the 50s and 60s. If you are not old enough to remember the craze, limbo is a dance where you have to duck lower and lower to get underneath a pole without touching the pole or the ground, says the Association of Mature American Citizens [AMAC]. It can be a challenge. Imagine how hard it gets if you're on roller skates and the pole is just about eight inches above the ground -- about the distance between the pavement and the undercarriage of a car. That was the challenge waiting for a seven year old girl in India. In fact, she put on her skates, bent over forwards [the hard way] and successfully made her way under, not one car, but 20 cars. You guessed it. The stunt earned Deshna Nahar of Pune, India a place in the Guinness Book of World Records.

2 The Indiana Department of Transportation announces U.S. 136 will close on or after Monday for a small structure replacement project near Mace, Indiana. U.S. 136 will be closed at approximately 5.14-miles east of the State Road 32/S.R. 47 intersection. It's expected to reopen at the end of September, weather permitting. The official detour follows U.S. 136 to S.R. 32 to I-74 to S.R. 39 and back to U.S. 136.

3 As hunting season quickly approaches, DNR is happy to provide you with the new 2022-2023 DNR Hunting & Trapping Regulations Guide. Pick up a copy at your local retailer, the Natural Resources Building at the Indiana State Fair, a DNR property, or view the guide online. It seems a lot of my scribbles lately have been heavy on the heavy stuff. I don't know what it is. The more I look around at the world, the more I worry for my grandpups. Still, there's a limit as to how much I can rant and rave, and most certainly on how much you are willing to read.

So let's lighten up a bit this week, shall we?
One of our readers was kind enough to send me an e-mail with a bunch of thought-provoking and smile-inducing images and words. I take no credit for any of these, but they are cer-

Mont. County Prepares For 15th Annual Taste

The idea that began sixteen years ago as a fun summertime fundraiser for the General Lew Wallace Study & Museum has evolved into the county's largest picnic and one of the area's most successful summer festivals. The fifteenth annual Taste of Montgomery County is returning to the grounds of the Museum in Crawfordsville on Saturday, Aug. 27 from 12-10 p.m. Museum staff and a small army of volunteers are preparing for the most successful outing ever.

Some of Montgomery County's finest restaurants, caterers, and food vendors will be serving up their most delectable delicacies on the Museum grounds this year. Accompanying the delicious food available at the Taste will be fabulous live music from local and regional acts, representing the quality and variety that Taste-goers have always enjoyed. From 1-3 p.m., the Elizabeth Lee Duo will perform. Indiana-born country star Eliana Weston will take the stage from 4:30-6:30 p.m. The Warrior Kings will provide hard rock and blues from 8-10 p.m. Advance tickets are $2 for students and $5 for adults. Tickets at the gate on the day of the Taste will be $3 for student tickets and $7 for adults. Advance ticket holders will also be able

Being Part Of The Solution

The news this summer has been filled with signs of climate change: fires out west, flooding in St. Louis and Kentucky, heat waves across the US and Europe. One contribution to climate change is the production of the stuff that we purchase. Recycling can help with this -- materials already taken from the earth can be remade into new containers. But that still requires energy for the manufacturing, and not all of our stuff

Do You Have The Cutest Dog In Indiana?

Lt. Gov. Suzanne Crouch, the Indiana Destination Development Corporation (IDDC) and Indiana's First Dog Henry are searching for adorable dogs in great locations across the state through the Visit Indiana Cutest Dog Photo Contest.

"I encourage all Hoosiers to make memories with your pup just like I do with my dog, Luna Lovegood (AKA Bubby)," Crouch said. "Show off your furry friends enjoying the beauty of Indiana whether that's at one of our incredible state parks, miles of trails or countless pet-friendly destinations."

A different winner will be selected every week for one year. Each winning dog will get:

- A note from Indiana's first dog, Henry;

- An exclusive 'More To Discover IN Indiana' dog bandana; and

- A feature as one of the Cutest Dogs IN Indiana on the Visit Indiana social channels.

To enter, upload a photo or video of your dog to Instagram, tag @VisitIndiana and use the hashtag #DogsINIndiana. Entries must include the location where the photo was taken.

"There's no need to leave your dog at home when traveling in Indiana," IDDC Secretary and CEO Elaine Bedel said. "No matter the time of year, Visit Indiana has plenty of resources to help you find the perfect spots to explore with your pets."

Pet-friendly trip ideas, destinations and lodging in Indiana are available at VisitIndiana.com.

The Indiana State Nature Passport and Indiana Arts and Culture Passport also highlight locations across the state welcoming to dogs.

For more information go to VisitIndiana.com/dogs or follow Visit Indiana on social media at @VisitIndiana on Facebook, Twitter or Instagram.

Top Indiana Companies Wait To Oppose New Abortion Ban Until After It's Enacted

By Casey Smith
Major Indiana companies that previously declined to publicly comment on a near-total abortion ban are now speaking out against the newly-enacted restrictions, saying the move could inhibit business growth and make it harder to retain skilled workers.

One of Indiana's largest employers and oldest companies, Eli Lilly and Company, was the first to step out, saying it will begin looking for expansion opportunities outside of the Hoosier State in the wake of new abortion restrictions.

The Indianapolis-based company remained silent while the abortion bill was debated for two weeks by Indiana lawmakers. Officials said in a statement Saturday — hours after the governor signed the measure into law — that the abortion ban could hurt the company's ability to bring in "diverse scientific, engineering and business talent" to Indiana.

"As a global company headquartered in Indianapolis for more than 145 years, we work hard to retain and attract thousands of people who are important drivers of our state's economy," Lilly officials said in a statement.

"Lilly recognizes that abortion is a divisive and deeply personal issue with no clear consensus among the citizens of Indiana," the statement continued. "Despite this lack of agreement, Indiana has opted to quickly adopt one of the most restrictive anti-abortion laws in the United States."

The new law outlaws all abortions except in the case of a fatal fetal anomaly and cases of serious health risk to the mother — up to 20 weeks post-fertilization. Rape and incest survivors can get an abortion up to 10 weeks post-fertilization.

Indiana is the first state in the nation to approve such legislation since the U.S. Supreme Court overturned Roe v. Wade in late June. The ban takes effect on Sept. 15.

A Lilly spokeswoman said the company plans to honor all current Indiana commitments.

In May, the drug manufacturing company announced plans to invest

$2.1 billion in two new manufacturing sites in Boone County. The new facilities are intended to expand the company's manufacturing network for active ingredients and new therapeutic drugs, creating hundreds of new jobs in the Hoosier state.

It's unclear if or how the new development might be affected by Lilly's opposition to the abortion ban.

Cummins speaks out against the new law

Cummins Inc., an engine manufacturing company that employs some 10,000 people across Indiana, said the abortion restrictions could impact the company's ability to attract and retain employees and will affect future decisions on growth.

Cummins is the largest employer in Bartholomew County, with about 8,000 employees in the Columbus area. Its global headquarters are in Columbus.

"Cummins believes that women should have the right to make reproductive healthcare decisions as a matter of gender equity, ensuring that women have the same opportunity as others to participate fully in the workforce and that our workforce is diverse," Jon Mills, a company spokesman, said in a statement Saturday. "This law is contrary to this goal and we oppose it."

Mills maintained the company, headquartered in Columbus, Indiana, has "been communicating our position on this issue" to its employees and "directly with legislative leaders prior to, and during, the legislative process."

He added that the company is "deeply concerned" about how the law could impede its ability to attract and retain a diverse workforce and the ability to ensure women have equal opportunity to fully participate in the workforce.

"For Cummins to be successful it is critical that we have a safe and welcoming workplace, and communities where we embrace our differences and enable all employees to thrive," Mills said. "As we continue to grow our footprint with a focus on selecting communities that align with our values and business goals, this law will be considered in our decision-making process."

Cummins officials said they will continue to provide its employees access to high quality and affordable healthcare, including reproductive health benefits, "regardless of where they live."

White House weighs in, too

President Joe Biden's administration has also condemned Indiana's decision. White House Press Secretary Karine Jean-Pierre called it a "devastating step."

"And, it's another radical step by Republican legislators to take away women's reproductive rights and freedom, and put personal health-care decisions in the hands of politicians rather than women and their doctors," she said in a statement.

Jean-Pierre said Indiana's ban should be "a signal to Americans across the country to make their voices heard." The White House also called on Congress to "act immediately" to pass a law restoring the protections set under Roe.

"Until then, President Biden is committed to taking action to protect women's reproductive rights and freedom, and access to care they are afforded under Federal law," Jean-Pierre said.

Biden signed an executive order on July 8 that sought to protect access to abortion medication and emergency contraception. Another executive order signed by the president aims to ensure women seeking abortions can travel across state lines to access to the procedure.

Vice President Kamala Harris earlier came to the Indiana Statehouse to oppose the abortion-restricting legislation.

She argued that the government "should not be telling an individual what to do," especially as it relates to "one of the most intimate and personal decisions a woman could make."

CenterPoint Energy Awards Grants To Communities For Safety Initiatives

This year, CenterPoint Energy's Community Safety Grant program awarded approximately 130 grants totaling more than $260,000 in Indiana, Louisiana, Minnesota, Mississippi, Ohio and Texas to fund safety-related equipment and projects in local communities.

"Safety is a core value of CenterPoint Energy's," said Alicia Dixon, Director of Community Relations for CenterPoint Energy. "Our Community Partnership Grant program allows us to stay connected to emergency officials, first responders and others in the communities we serve to support our customers' safety."

Recipients were determined based on the content of their applications. Participants were required to outline a safety-related problem, issue or need in the community and how a Community Safety Grant would help create a sustainable solution. Leveraging the chosen organization's local funds, the CenterPoint Energy grant is a matching contribution and cannot be more than 50% of the cost of the project. The program awards grants of up to $2,500.

Since 2003, through its Community Safety Grant program, CenterPoint Energy has funded more than 1,400 safety-related projects and contributed more than $2.7 million in donations to communities for safety initiatives.

Indiana Chamber's New Sustainability Leadership Program

Environmental, Social and Governance (ESG) has quickly become an essential component of business operations.

The Indiana Chamber's new 2022 Sustainability Leadership Conference on September 8 at the Indiana Chamber Conference Center in Indianapolis will help environmental professionals identify opportunities to optimize their company's ESG. Individuals also can attend virtually.

"Since ESG impacts a business' short- and long-term decisions, it's vital to 'future-proof' your organization by analyzing, strategizing and disclosing all ESG impacts," explains Kerri Begley, Indiana Chamber vice president of business education and events. "The conference will help attendees identify strategic opportunities and meet competitive challenges for your company."

Sessions include the following: global and national trends in sustainability; ESG 101: Requirements and reporting; EHS compliance and sustainability objectives; greenhouse gases (GHG); decarbonization and net zero strategies; why ESG matters to commercial real estate; and circular economy.

Admission is $449 for Indiana Chamber members and $549 for non-members.

Registration and event information is available at www.indianachamber.com/conferences or you can register by phone at (800) 824-6885.

This conference is presented by global sustainability consultancy Keramida, Inc.

Indiana's Child Well-Being Is 28th In The Nation

By: Whitney Downard
A family and children advocacy group ranked Indiana as the 28th best state for child well-being, a slight improvement from last year's ranking of 29th.

The Annie E. Casey Foundation released its annual KIDS COUNT Data Book, which analyzes 16 indicators across four categories — economic well-being, education, health and family/community factors — to rate each state's overall environment for child well-being.

Indiana's ranking lags behind Illinois, which ranked 23rd, but ahead of other neighboring states, including Ohio (31st), Michigan (32nd) and Kentucky (37th).

"The KIDS COUNT Data Book provides valuable insight into where progress is being made and where we need to focus our efforts," said Tami Silverman, president and CEO of Indiana Youth Institute, Indiana's member of the KIDS COUNT network. "Indiana's improvement in ensuring child well-being is a result of the hard work and dedication of thousands of caring adults and youth-serving organizations across the state. While there are positive signs across many indicators, we need to do more to ensure Hoosier children, especially our children of color, have bright futures."

In particular, Indiana ranked in the top 20 states for both economic well-being and education, coming in at 19th and 17th, respectively.

Between 2012 and 2020, Indiana reduced the number of children in poverty — from 21% to 18% — and the number of children whose parents lacked secure employment from 31% to 27%. The state also decreased the number of children living in households with a high housing cost burden — from 30% to 22% — as well as the number of teens not in school/ not working — 8% to 6%.

In terms of education, Indiana increased the number of young children in school, fourth grade reading proficiency, eighth grade math proficiency and the number of high school students graduating on time.

Where Indiana falters But for health and family/ community, Indiana ranked in the bottom 20, coming in at 31st for both categories and dragging down the state's overall child well-being score.

Indiana did improve its teen birth rate since 2010 — from 37 teen births per 1,000 births to 19 teen births per 1,000 births in 2020 — but still ranked above the national average of 15 teen births per 1,000 births.

It also didn't move the needle on the percentage of children in single-parent families, which remained at 34%.

The number of children in families where the household head lacks a high school diploma slightly decreased from 13% to 11% and the number of children living in high-poverty areas also decreased from 11% to 8%.

In terms of health, Indiana only improved in one area by reducing the number of children without health insurance to 6% from 9%, which is still higher than the national average of 5%. But across the other three categories — low birth-weight babies, children and teen deaths per 100,000 deaths, and number of overweight/ obese children and teens — Indiana regressed.

The news release urges action to address the youth mental health crisis exacerbated by the COVID-19 pandemic, showing that children and teens struggle with anxiety and depression at "unprecedented levels."

Nationwide, the KIDS COUNT Data Book notes, anxiety and depression rates in youth have increased following the coronavirus pandemic. In Indiana, anxiety and depression rates increased from 11.7% to 15.9% between 2016 and 2020.

Notably, Indiana has a shortage of mental health providers, with 4.7 million Hoosiers living in a Mental Health Care Health Professional Shortage Area, according to the Kaiser Family Foundation.

According to the release, 9% of high school students attempted suicide in 2019 nationwide, but children of color and LGBTQ+ youth reported much higher numbers.

For Black students, 12% attempted suicide, jumping to over 25% for American Indian or Native Alaskan students. For young people who identified as gay, lesbian or bisexual, 23% attempted suicide compared to 6% for their heterosexual peers.

The Trevor Project reported that 22% of transgender boys attempted suicide in the last year as well as 12% of transgender girls, though rates fell dramatically when LGBTQ+ youth reported support from their families or schools.

In response to the reported mental health toll, the foundation called for lawmakers to invest in programs to alleviate poverty, which exacerbates mental health conditions, and prioritize financial stability for families.

That includes expanded mental health care access, which the organization recommended achieving by increasing the presence of social workers, psychologists and other mental health professionals in schools.

The mental health care available should be trauma-informed, the release said, and account for the experiences and identities of youth.

The state announced plans last month to spend $54.8 million to expand mental health services and stabilize the workforce, with much of the funding coming from the federal government.

Anti-Common Core Activist Failed To Register As Lobbyist For Rokita's Office

By Leslie Bonilla Muñoz

A Hoosiers Against Common Core co-founder turned policy consultant and state contractor mistakenly registered as a lobbyist for the city of Indianapolis rather than the state of Indiana, Attorney General Todd Rokita's office has confirmed.

Erin Tuttle formed Tuttle Consulting, LLC, on August 16, 2021, according to Indiana Secretary of State records. Just one week later, on August 23, Tuttle and Chief Administrative Officer Larry Hopkins signed a two-year, maximum $200,000 contract for research, analysis and communications help for Rokita's office.

The $8,333-a-month contract went into effect August 30 of that year. Among Tuttle's listed-out duties: "Contractor shall interact and communicate with legislators."

That item set Tuttle up for a potential violation of Indiana's lobbyist requirements when she didn't register with the Indiana Lobby Registration Commission. She was not listed in the commission's annual rosters for employer and compensated lobbyists, which were both released in April 2022.

Indiana Capital Chronicle

There's a two-part test under Indiana law:

Someone must register as a lobbyist when lobbying — or communicating by any means with a state political candidate, state legislator or most legislative branch employees with the intent of "influencing any legislative action."

Someone must also earn at least $500 for the work — or spend that amount — during a registration year.

'An abundance of caution'

In a statement to the Capital Chronicle, Hopkins said Rokita's office requested that Tuttle register as a lobbyist, but that she did so with the wrong entity — Indianapolis' Department of Business and Neighborhood Services.

"Out of an abundance of caution, we asked [Tuttle] to complete the necessary registrations that are required," Hopkins said in a statement Friday.

"But this week, it was determined that she had inadvertently registered with the City of Indianapolis lobby commission. That oversight is being corrected and all appropriate filings relating to her and this office are being completed with the Indiana Lobby Registration Commission."

By Monday, Tuttle's name was listed in the commission's public dashboard, albeit without any filings. And it came only after the Capital Chronicle inquired about the issue.

Tuttle herself declined to comment, saying she was not authorized to speak to media.

If Tuttle's work included lobbying, she was compensated for it. Rokita's office paid Tuttle $75,400 across 11 invoices from the beginning of the contract through June 30, 2022, according to the Indiana Transparency Portal. So far this fiscal year, the office has paid Tuttle $25,000 in three invoices. The money came out of the office's general fund.

She was listed in the office's staff list, but without a photo or biography — which was instead marked as "coming soon."

Nuances abound
Indiana Lobby Registration Commission Executive Director and General Counsel Edward Ferguson said he wasn't able to "conclusively determine" whether Tuttle met the two-part test. He indicated the question required more comprehensive review because at least six terms in the test have their own definitions in Indiana law.

"In determining whether or not one has met the test(s) and must register, reference must be made to the definitions of 'lobbying,' 'compensation,' 'expenditure,' 'legislative person,' 'legislative action,' and 'influencing legislative action,'" he wrote.

A job description, for example, doesn't always translate to actual duties.

Office spokeswoman Kelly Stevenson said, in a statement, that Tuttle "provides valuable insight and guidance on a variety of legislative issues, including but not limited to education, immigration, and pro-life policies."

Ferguson wrote that while Indiana code exempts public employees from having to register, contractors aren't public employees and aren't exempt on that measure.

Hopkins said Rokita's office brought Tuttle on as a contractor instead of as a full-time employee to afford her "the most flexibility possible to perform her assigned duties."

Past activism

Tuttle, an Indianapolis Catholic school mother, was key in the conservative Hoosier movement against Common Core, framing the national educational standards as a case of federal overreach, according to the Indianapolis Star. She and friend Heather Crossin co-founded Hoosiers Against Common Core in 2010, according to her LinkedIn, and blew the standards into a major political issue in Indiana and further afield.

Indiana, an early Common Core adopter, was in 2014 the first state to withdraw from the standards. Then-Gov. Mike Pence signed legislation ending the state's participation.

Tuttle went on to work as a policy analyst for the American Principles Project, a conservative, family-focused political group. Tuttle was there until 2018, according to the LinkedIn. In a photo on the organization's website, Pence, Tuttle, Crossin and a former senior fellow smile together.

"Like previous administrations, the Office of the Attorney General utilizes outside contractors to assist in a variety of capacities, including legal work and legislative and policy assistance," said office spokeswoman Kelly Stevenson in a statement. "We are fortunate to have her on our team."

Field Trip Grant Program Benefits Approximately 1,500 Children

Students from 21 Indiana schools will take field trips to Indiana State Park properties this academic year thanks in part to the Discover the Outdoors grant program administered through the Indiana Natural Resources Foundation (INRF), the supporting nonprofit of the DNR.

The program awards public, private, parochial, or home-school educators grants that range from $180-$250 to fund transportation costs, program fees, and classroom supplies related to preparation or follow-up for the field trips. An estimated 1,454 students from K-12 will benefit from the $5,080 in grants the program expects to distribute.

Since the program's inception in 2013, it has awarded a total of 174 grants to provide approximately 17,000 students the chance to visit one of 25 state parks, eight reservoirs, two state forest recreation areas, and two off-road state recreation areas at less cost to them and their schools. More than $46,000 in overall funding has been distributed to engage students in learning about Indiana's fish, forests, wildlife, natural habitats, and conservation.

To see more about this grant program, visit you.be/uC4QjhsBLO8.

The fund was established in memory of Tom Huck, a long-time DNR employee who was an ardent supporter of outdoor experiences for children in parks. Periodic financial assistance also comes from the Indiana Master Naturalist Advisory Council.

"We appreciate the generosity of those who contribute to Indiana's youth," said Jody Kress, executive director of INRF. "We hope to see this program grow so we can educate more students across the state about our natural and cultural legacy."

tainly worth sharing. I hope you enjoy them as much as I did.

I'm old enough to remember when paper bags were being blamed for the destruction of the trees – and plastic bags were the solution.

Kind of makes you wonder what "common wisdom" will tell us in 40 or so years, doesn't it?

I'm so old I remember when multiplication was called "Times Tables."

Oh, me too! And I remember even more a few nuns at Our Lady of Grace losing patience with one young moron, uh, me, who couldn't seem to grasp the table involving sevens!

I'm so old that when I was a kid we actually had to win to get a trophy.

Sadly, that no longer means you're THAT old!

When I was a kid I didn't need an Elf on the Shelf to motivate me during Christmas time. I had a belt on the shelf that motivated me to behave the whole year through.

Didn't we all!

Some of y'all never held a flashlight for your dad when he was working on the car . . . and had him yell at you for not shining it in the right place. And it shows.

What I wouldn't give to have another day of working on the car in the garage with my dad, or my grandpa.

This one just has a picture of an old man and a young kid walking arm in arm and says: Spend time with your elders. Not everything can be found on Google.

Amen!

Y'all enjoy those 20s, 30s and 40s, because in your 50s that check engine light is gonna come on.

Amen, again!

If Jesus tried to feed the 5,000 today, he'd hear: I can't eat fish. I'm vegan. Is that bread gluten free? Has the fish been tested for mercury?

It'd be funny if it weren't the truth.

One minute you're 21, staying up all night drinking beer, eating pizza and doing sketchy stuff just for fun. Then in the blink of an eye, you're 50, drinking water, eating kale and you can't do any sketchy stuff because you pulled a muscle putting on your socks.

Those pulled muscles hurt!

I survived playing in the mud, getting spanked, rusty playgrounds, second-hand smoke, toy guns, lead paint, no seatbelts, no helmets and drinking from the hose?

And most of those things were pretty darn fun!

One of my favorites is a photo of a toy cap gun. You remember the cowboy six shooters that had the roll of caps inside? The caption simply says: I can smell this photo.

So can I!

And my favorite one: Kids today will never know the joy of laying around and reading the Sunday funnies.

I'm sure every generation looks back and feels similar. I have no idea where things are going and what kind of world those aforementioned grandpups will grow up in. But one thing I do know, I don't think we're in a better world than the one our grandparents grew up in. And unless we made some course corrections pretty quick, I'm pretty sure it ain't getting any better.

So I hope you'll bear with me when I harp on some of the silliness that goes on today. If we all say enough is enough, then maybe your grandpups and mine have a shot.

to get into the gate faster on the day of the Taste, as they won't have to wait in line to purchase tickets.

Volunteer opportunities are still available for this year's TASTE. Volunteers receive free entry to the TASTE and their choice of a TASTE t-shirt or five food tickets. Those interested in volunteering should visit <http://www.tasteofmontgomerycounty.com/volunteers/> to sign up online.

The Taste would not be possible without our generous sponsors. Every year the Taste Committee and the Lew Wallace Study Preservation Society Board and staff are amazed by the local businesses and individuals who contribute to this event and we sincerely thank them for their support.

The Lew Wallace Study would like to thank Title Sponsors of this year's event: Acuity Brands, Dr. Howard Miller, Hoosier Heartland State Bank, Market Street Wealth Management – Jessica Bokhart, Montgomery County Tourism Commission, The Paper of Montgomery County, Tri-County Bank & Trust, and Teachers Credit Union.

Contributing sponsors include: Cook Home Services, First Merchants Bank, The Juniper Spoon, Nucor Steel Indiana, Sanders-Priebe Funeral Care, Valero Renewables Linden, Wabash College, Walden Transport & Recycle, and Crawfordsville Radio: WCDQ, WCVL, and WIMC.

Supporting sponsors include: Arthur's Excavating & Farm Drainage; Burkhardt Funeral Home; Alvin Lee & Esther Thornton; Color Art – Lafayette Printing; Davis Morrison Realty; Henthorn, Harris, & Weliever; Indiana American Water Co., Inc.; Industrial Federal Credit Union; The Kids' Dentist; LSC Communication; Mishler Dental; Northridge Chiropractic; Mike Reidy; NFP Insurance; nPrint; Pace Dairy; Sugar Creek Eyecare; Taylor, Chadd, Minnette, Schneider, & Clutter, P.C.; J.M. Thompson Insurance; and Watson Dental, LLC.

Don't forget to come to the Taste and show these sponsors how much you appreciate their commitment to our community!

Instead, reuse! Numbers 1 and 2 plastics can be recycled, but many water bottles still end up as trash (they are light weight and can easily blow out of recycling bins) or in the oceans. (When you recycle your plastic bottles, do leave the lids on – otherwise they tend to fall through the processing machinery and are lost from recycling.) Instead of using single use plastics, take your own water bottles and grocery bags. Just say no to straws, or take your own reusable metal one. Plastic straws, as with bottle lids, are small and tend to fall through the machinery and not get recycled. If you forget your bottle and do need to purchase water, refill that bottle, rather than purchasing multiple bottles.

Disposable coffee cups, although often made of paper, typically have a plastic lining that is not recyclable. And when the plastic is attached to the paper, it is not cost effective to separate the materials. Take your own coffee mug with you!

Paper, especially cardboard boxes, is recyclable. Alternatively, shredded paper can be added to compost (shred your old receipts, then compost them, and no one will be able to find your credit card number on them). In addition, cardboard or newspaper are superb weed suppressants. Flatten them out, cover the ground where you wish to plant, cover that cardboard or newspaper with dirt, compost and/or mulch. Now you're on your way to nourishing your soil, reaping the benefits of no-till, and recycling your cardboard or newspaper even as you're creating a planting bed.

Animal shelters will take old sheets and towels for bedding. You can donate your flower vases to florists to use again. Donate old clothing and other items to thrift stores like Goodwill and Trinity. Shop there, too – vintage clothing; items to make Halloween costumes from; reusable cups, plates and silverware for parties.

Are you a yogurt eater? Yogurt usually comes in plastic #5, which is difficult to recycle. Instead, make your own! Amazon sells yogurt makers for under $30, or a slightly fancier one for about $50 (both styles come with 7-8 reusable glass jars). Yogurt at the local stores costs about 70 cents per serving. In just over a month of daily yogurts, the cheaper yogurt maker would be paid for, or under three months for the fancier version. Suggested yogurt recipe: 3 cans coconut milk (cans are readily recyclable), heat to 185 deg F, add 1.5 tablespoons Tapioca granules, let cool to 110 deg F stirring occasionally, mix in 1 packet yogurt starter (available in many health food stores or Amazon), incubate for 15 hours overnight. Blend in your favorite fruits, food flavorings, and/or spices (e.g., cumin, mango powder + mint, Japanese pickled ginger) just before eating. This recipe makes 7 servings. (The cardboard from the yogurt maker, Tapioca, and yogurt starter are all recyclable, or compostable – you could grow your own berries or herbs in the compost that you make from your old cardboard boxes, then add them to your homemade yogurt).

For further reading on recycling, check out Can I Recycle This? A Guide to Better Recycling and How to Reduce Single-Use Plastics, by Jennie Romer. (And the Crawfordsville Public Library has it, so you don't even have to kill extra trees to read it!)
