Ask Rusty - How Can I Access My Social Security as Soon as Possible?

Dear Rusty: I am a few weeks away from my 61st birthday in November 2022. I was wondering how far in advance of my 62nd birthday next year should I file my Social Security benefits paperwork in order to get my first check the same month I turn 62? I usually work a part time job during the winter months - but that job fell through this fall 2022. So, I do not want to waste any time getting that first check arriving the minute I turn 62 in November 2023. I don't want to take any chances of delays in starting my Social Security retirement

What Women Should Know About Stroke Risk-Factors

(Family Features) It may not be widely known that women face unique risk factors for stroke throughout their lifetime. Things like pregnancy, preeclampsia and chronic stress can increase the risk for high blood pressure, a leading cause of stroke.

What to Know About Careers in the Home Healthcare Industry

(StatePoint) Medical professionals, patients and their families are increasingly seeing the value of home care, and the industry is expected to grow. In fact, home health and personal care aide job openings are projected to grow 33% from 2020 to 2030, with experts predicting an estimated 8.2 million job openings in home-based care by 2028. Industry experts say that workers from all backgrounds, not just nursing, will be needed now and in the future.

"If you enjoy working with people and helping others when they need it most, a job as a home care or hospice nurse, home health aide, personal companion or caregiver could be a good fit for you," says Jennifer Sheets, president and chief executive officer of industry leader, Interim Health-Care Inc. "Likewise, if you're currently a medical professional seeking more flexibility and to be reminded of why you entered the field in the first place, home

Operating Within Our Means

Sen. Phil Boots

Indiana is consistently recognized as one of the most fiscally responsible and business-friendly states in the country, in large part because of our steadfast commitment to operating within our means.

Here in Indiana, we balance budgets and stay committed to our priorities, including investing in important public needs like schools and roads, maintaining a favorable tax climate and paying off debt.

For example, we continue to aggressively pay down our outstanding obligations to the Pre-1996 Teachers' Retirement Fund, so it doesn't remain hanging over the heads of Hoosier taxpayers. We were pleased to have recently paid down an additional $2.5 billion

DNR Offers Free Admission To Veterans, Active-Duty Military

All veterans and active-duty military personnel, and everyone in their vehicle, will be admitted free to DNR state parks, reservoir properties, state forest recreation areas, and off-road state recreation areas on Veterans Day.

This includes admission to Falls of the Ohio State Park's Interpretive Center.

"We appreciate the sacrifices and service of our veterans and active-duty military and look forward to recognizing them with a day to explore some of the best outdoor places in our state," said Terry Coleman, director of Indiana State Parks.

Veterans and military personnel should simply let the gate attendant know at the property they visit that they are either a veteran or serving and on active duty.

For general information about state parks, reservoirs, forest properties, and off-road state recreation areas, see on.IN.gov/reguide.

Reader Questions Fire Issues With Solar

Dear Editor,
I am writing to voice fire safety concerns about massive 10 plus square mile solar parks.

With 13+ square miles of panels how could the fire department ever get access to fight a fire? CEL&P has had fires involving over 40 DC to AC Inverters and has had to physically cut power lines to stop the panels from feeding power to Inverters. As long as the sun is up the panels continue to feed the fire. With dry and windy conditions like this summer and fall, an inverter fire would race across dry grasses. Then with little to no buffer areas to act as fire breaks jump into surrounding cornfields endangering people, their homes, barns and livestock.

What would they use to fight such a fire? Some have suggested aerial water drops. Water is not used to put out an electric fire. I don't think the county wants to buy a plane and all associated expenses either. We would need to have solar companies put up a trust fund / grant to pay for fire training, including how to cut power, chemicals and special equipment to apply the chemical fire suppressant.

Fire lanes would have to be spaced throughout the entire 13 square mile field to give firefighters access. This fund would need to cover all associated costs with built in adjustments for inflation and actual supplies used over the 35 year time period.

Lastly who would be financially liable if someone had a loss of home, barn, livestock or worse, loss of life? I think a lawyer would go after all involved, the original builder, current corporate owner of panel field, the land owner and possibly the county.

Red Cross: Turn Your Clocks Back, Test Your Smoke Alarms This Weekend To Help Stay Safe From Home Fires

As daylight saving time ends on November 6, the American Red Cross encourages everyone to test their smoke alarms as they turn their clocks back to help stay safe from home fires.

"Home fires claim more lives in a typical year than all natural disasters combined, but working smoke alarms can cut the risk of dying in a home fire by half," said Leslie Montgomery, Regional Disaster Officer for the Red Cross-Indiana Region. "The sooner an alarm alerts you to a fire, the sooner you can get out. When you turn your clocks back this weekend, also test your smoke alarms to help prevent a tragedy in your home."

Over the past year, local Red Cross volunteers responded to help 5,000 people in the Indiana region affected by home fires, which account for most of the more than 60,000 disasters that the Red Cross responds to annually across the country.

HOW TO TURN AND TEST When turning your clocks back this weekend, test your smoke alarms and replace the batteries if needed. Visit redcross.org/fire for more information, including an escape plan to create and practice with your family, or download the free Red Cross Emergency app by searching "American Red Cross" in app stores.

- Install smoke alarms on every level of your home, including inside and outside bedrooms and sleeping areas.

- Replace smoke alarms that are 10 years or older. Components such as sensors can become less sensitive over time. Follow your alarm's manufacturer instructions.

- Practice your two-minute home fire escape plan. Make sure everyone in your household can get out in less than two minutes — the amount of time you may have to escape a burning home before it's too late.

- Include at least two ways to get out of every room and select a meeting spot at a safe distance away from your home, such as your neighbor's home or landmark like a specific tree in your front yard, where everyone can meet.

IF YOU NEED HELP If you cannot afford to purchase smoke alarms or are physically unable to install one, the Red Cross may be able to help. Contact your local Red Cross or call 1-888-684-1441 for more information.

HOME FIRE CAMPAIGN SAVES LIVES Since October 2014, the Red Cross Home Fire Campaign with community partners has saved more than 1400 lives by educating families about fire safety, helping them create escape plans and installing more than 2.4 million free smoke alarms in high-risk neighborhoods across the country. Visit redcross.org/homefires for more information.

About the American Red Cross:

Get Prepared For The Winter Heating Season

As the seasons change and Daylight Saving Time ends on Sunday, Nov. 6, CenterPoint Energy is reminding customers that now is a good time to prepare for the winter heating season with some simple household safety and energy efficiency measures.

When setting your clocks back one hour on Sunday, remember to take care of these tasks around your home:

- Replace the batteries in your home's smoke alarms and carbon monoxide detectors.
- Check the expiration dates on these devices. Smoke alarms typically have a lifespan of 10 years, while carbon monoxide detectors last five years.

- Clean the vent ductwork on your dryer to reduce the potential for a dryer-related fire. It also helps your appliance run more efficiently.

- Schedule your annual furnace inspection with a qualified technician to make sure your heating system is running safely and efficiently.

Now is also a good time to take advantage of energy efficiency tips to reduce your energy usage and lower your utility bills:

- Replace or clean your furnace filter regularly. Good air flow is essential for maximizing efficiency and the life of your furnace.

- Uncover heating vents. Make sure vents are not blocked by furniture or drapes to ensure proper air flow.

- Turn down the thermostat. Lower it by 10 degrees at night or when you're away for at least eight hours. You can potentially save 10% on your space heating costs. With a programmable thermostat, it's easy to have your heating system work around your schedule.

- Seal air leaks with caulking and weather stripping around windows and doors. By keeping warm air in and cold air out, you can reduce your energy usage and costs.

- Turn ceiling fans to rotate clockwise. It produces an updraft and moves warm air away from the ceiling into the rest of the room.

- Close the fireplace damper when not in use. An open damper allows warm air to escape your home.

WOMEN

tion (CDC), and 1 in 5 women will have a stroke. However, a large majority of strokes can be prevented.

Caring for yourself by understanding your risk factors can help reduce your risk for stroke and provide a better quality of life. Start managing your stroke risk with these tips from the American Stroke Association, a division of the American Heart Association:

Monitor Your Blood Pressure:

The first step you can take in reducing your risk for stroke is knowing your blood pressure and keeping it in a healthy range. High blood pressure is the No. 1 preventable cause of stroke, according to the American Heart Association.

The best way to know your blood pressure is to have it measured at least once per year by a health care professional and regularly monitor it at home then discuss the numbers with a doctor. For most people, a normal blood pressure should be 120/80 mm HG or less.

In addition to properly monitoring blood pressure, maintaining a healthy weight, being physically active, eating healthfully and reducing or eliminating alcohol and tobacco usage can help control blood pressure. If you do develop high blood pressure, work with a health care professional on a plan to help manage it.

Plan for Pregnancy:

In the United States, high blood pressure during pregnancy is becoming more common, according to the CDC, and medical conditions including preeclampsia, gestational diabetes and blood clots during pregnancy all increase stroke risk during and immediately following a pregnancy.

Managing conditions like high blood pressure before getting pregnant helps keep you and your baby healthy during pregnancy and beyond. In addition, your health during and immediately after a pregnancy can shape the lifelong health of you and your child. If you're planning to become pregnant or are currently pregnant, it's important to regularly monitor your blood pressure.

Take Care of Your Mental Health:

Some stress is unavoidable but constant stress is not healthy. Chronic or constant stress may lead to high blood pressure and other unhealthy behavior choices, which can increase risk for stroke.

Based on findings in a Stress in America 2020 survey conducted by the American Psychological Association, the top sources of stress are money, work, family responsibilities and health concerns. Managing your stress and blood pressure can improve your overall health and well-being. Reclaim control of your schedule and build in time to invest in your health. Find 10 minutes every day to do something for you, like listening to music, meditating or going for a walk.

Learn the Warning Signs:

A stroke can happen to anyone at any point in life. Immediate treatment may help minimize the long-term effects of a stroke and even prevent death. Learn how to spot a stroke F.A.S.T:

- Face drooping - Does one side of the face droop or is it numb? Ask the person to smile. Is the person's smile uneven?
- Arm weakness - Is one arm weak or numb? Ask the person to raise both arms. Does one arm drift downward?
- Speech difficulty - Is speech slurred? Is the person unable to speak or hard to understand? Ask the person to repeat a simple sentence like "The sky is blue."
- Time to call 911 - If someone shows any of these symptoms, even if the symptoms go away, call 911 and get to a hospital immediately. Check the time so you'll know when the first symptoms appeared.

Talk to your doctor about ways to improve your well-being and help prevent stroke. Find more wellness tips at stroke.org.

RUSTY

November 2023 will be your first month of eligibility and your first payment will be received in December. But if you turn 62 after Nov. 2, your first month of eligibility will be December 2023 and your first payment will be received in January 2024 (Social Security pays benefits in the month following the month they are earned).

Social Security recommends you apply for your retirement benefit about 3 months before you wish your payments to begin, but you can apply as much as four months prior. When you complete the application there will be a question asking when you wish your benefits to start, and you should select the one that says, "I want benefits beginning with the earliest possible month and will accept an age-related reduction." Be aware that your age 62 benefit amount will be permanently reduced (your age 62 benefit will be 70% of the amount you would get at your full retirement age (FRA) of 67).

By applying as suggested above, you will get your first Social Security payment as early as possible, but you should also know that the exact date of your payment depends on the day of the month you were born. If you were born between the 1st and 10th of the month, you'll get your payment in your bank account on the 2nd Wednesday of every month; if you were born between the 11th and 20th of the month, your payment will be received on the 3rd Wednesday of every month; and if your birthday is after the 20th of the month, the payment will be in your account on the 4th Wednesday of every month.

You can apply for benefits by making an appointment to do so at 1 (800) 772.1213 or by calling your local SS office, but the most efficient way to apply is online at ssa.gov/retire. To apply online, you'll need to first create your personal "my Social Security" online account, which is easy to do at ssa.gov/myaccount.

healthcare can offer greater job satisfaction and a much-needed change of pace."

To help potential job candidates understand this growing industry, Interim HealthCare is sharing some quick insights:

Why In-Home Care?: Home care describes personal care and support services provided to an individual in their home. Often referred to as senior care, it provides help with the activities of daily living as well as companionship to those who need support to maintain their independence at home.

Home healthcare on the other hand, entails medical-based care to help patients recover from an illness or injury, or to provide in-home medical oversight and ongoing care for complex, chronic medical conditions. Many families and patients can testify to the various ways home care can be a game-changer, and a growing number of physicians and medical professionals are recommending home health services to patients of all ages because it delivers cost-effective, high-quality care in the setting where patients most often want to be -- home. Among these services are in-home nursing, physical, occupational and speech therapy, hospice care and bereavement services.

What Employers Want:

Those in the know at Interim HealthCare say that being compassionate, trustworthy, dependable and having the ability to work independently can help you thrive in the field of home care. "Made for This," Interim's current recruitment campaign, highlights the company's need for registered nurses, licensed practical and vocational nurses, along with certified nursing assistants, home care aides, home physical therapists, occupational therapists and speech therapists. Veterans, with their track record of serving and protecting others, are encouraged to apply for a home care job, along with anybody who thrives in a job that offers variety, challenge and new faces and places.

What to Look for in Employers:

Seeking a career in the field of home care? Be sure you work for a home healthcare organization with a positive work culture that has your best interests in mind. That includes offering good work-life balance, flexible schedules, rewarding assignments and competitive pay. The employer should also prioritize your continuing education and professional development by offering advanced learning opportunities and room for growth, along with additional perks like tuition discounts, to make it all possible.

For a home healthcare career guidebook, visit info.interimhealthcare.com/jobs-in-home-health-care.

As demand for medical and personal care in the home grows, consider a career in this thriving field, whether you're entering the workforce for the first time or embarking on a career

OPERATING

this year. Once this fund is fully financially self-sustaining, Indiana will have $1 billion a year freed up in our state budget.

Because we operate within our means, we were also able to pass House Enrolled Act 1002 to phase down Indiana's income-tax rate to 2.9%, which is tied for the lowest rate in the nation among states with an income tax.

was recently ranked No. 1 for infrastructure by CNBC due to the overall sustainability of our roads, bridges and broadband access - all of which have been made a priority by my colleagues and me.

Lastly, Hoosiers and entrepreneurs from other states see our state as a place to invest in. Last year, Indiana set a record for new small business startups, which is a direct indication of our healthy business climate.

Practicing fiscal responsibility and investing in Hoosiers will remain priorities for me as your state senator, as I believe it will pave the way for tremendous opportunities in the near future.
