THREE THINGS You Should Know:

1 Looking for a part-time job that does not involve the words: Would You Like Fries With That? The Paper of Montgomery County offers jobs that include pagination and page design, basic clerical and even some photography and writing. We're looking for bright and eager people to join our winning team! Let us know you are interested by sending an e-mail with your resume and a note telling us what you love about newspapers to jobs@thepaper24-7.com.

2 In the good old days, Halloween displays might feature a bigger-than-life pumpkin or an oversized wicked witch on a broom. But says the Association of Mature American Citizens [AMAC], this is the 21st Century and technology and an overactive imagination might compel some of us to up the ante. Take the Halloween display Dave and Aubrey Appel created in Plainfield, IL. It attracted crowds of onlookers so big that it got them into trouble with their neighbors. The gawkers scratched their heads as they watched a "real life" levitation display, as a no-strings-attached mannequin floated over the Appel's front yard. How did they do it? They're not telling.

3 Are you a proud parent or grandparent? Got a great photo of your loved one? E-mail it to news@thepaper24-7.com along with the pertinent info (and your contact information so we can reach you if we have questions). C'mon, let's show off as many bright and smiling faces as we can and make clear exactly why Montgomery County is such a great place to raise a family!

Election Day In Montgomery County

Yesterday was Election Day and the voters have spoken. In Montgomery County, incumbent Sen. Todd Young and incumbent Rep. Jim Baird (IN-4) both handily won against their opponents in re-election bids.

In a crowded and competitive field for the Crawfordsville School Board At-large race, J. Monte Thompson, Kathleen Brown and J. Kent Minnette emerged as the three winners.

Turnout in Montgomery County for this year's general election was 38.67%, or 9,921 total ballots cast. The County Clerk's office was unavailable for comment.

Frances Wooden Park: Another Reason To Love Calling Cville Home

The League of Women Voters, open to men as well as women, is a nonpartisan, multi-issue political organization that encourages informed and active participation in government. With the election behind us, let's take a cleansing community breath and celebrate Crawfordsville parks, especially the swanky update slated for Francis Wooden Park. After an anonymous donor infused new life into the Kathy Steele Park on West Main, the donor said,

"Let's do this again." For Mayor Todd Barton, Frances Wooden Park was on deck. A community meeting in October allowed for input on the installations and the historic markers that honor the hallowed history of the space next to Bethel AME, a stop on the Underground Railroad.

The place is storied from the 175-plus year history of Speed Cabin and Bethel AME to the park's namesake. In July, Bethel AME celebrated its 175th year, and its history is one of Crawfordsville's gems, worth treasuring. Originally far smaller than today's modest building, the sanctuary of Bethel AME is the "new" portion of the building. The original architecture included a cellar to which African Americans who escaped slavery would race, after having slipped off the trains into town and having crept through an underground tunnel. The Speed cabin,

Montgomery County Head Start

Head Start serves as a child and family development program for low-income infants, toddlers, and preschoolers. Children are provided with high-quality, research-based early learning experiences as well as a full assessment of their health and a full assessment of their health status to ensure status to assure that they transition into school healthy and ready to learn. United Way in Montgomery County funds are used to help offset the costs of child assessment systems. These systems allow the teachers/home visitors to track a child's progress and look for trends in each child's learning. This aids teachers and parents to best meet each child's educational needs.

EDITOR'S NOTE:

Live United, Montgomery County! This is a continuing series explaining a little bit about each United Way agency. And please don't forget that the annual fund drive is going on right now. This fund drive helps these agencies, which do so much good work in our county, keep their doors open. If you would be willing to donate, you can do so at www.uwmontgomery.org. Or you can mail donations to PO Box 247, Crawfordsville IN 47933. And if your employer doesn't offer the ability to donate through work, you can drop off the donation at 221 E Main St, Second floor.

JUMP Needs New Volunteers

Sean is an 8-year-old boy that is wishing for a mentor to take him fishing. He even has his own fishing pole. Sean has been on the JUMP waiting list for close to 3 months and is really excited to have an adult volunteer to take him places and do fun things with him.

Sean's mom describes him as a very kind child but her heart breaks for him when he sometimes gets picked on by other family members. Being one of the youngest of many siblings is not always easy for him. Mom says Sean can at times be hyper but he is very loving and can put a smile on anyone's face. He struggles in school but is working very hard to improve and gets extra help at school. His mom says he loves to ride his bike, go swimming, go to the park, watch tv and play with his actions figures. Of course, like most kids, he loves to play games on a tablet. Sean states he really likes school and Math is his favorite subject. He likes to play basketball but knows he needs to work on this skill. He also likes to ride his bike, play with his soccer ball and go to the movies. If he could learn something new, it would be to go bowling or ride a horse.

His favorite movie is The Lion King and his favorite books are about sharks. He likes to go to water parks and eat at the China Buffet. Sean stated he is pretty good at basketball and tennis but would like to learn to swim over handed and hold his breath under water for longer length of time.

At first meeting, Sean is quiet and sweet. He is easy to talk to and he warms up quickly to others. He is ready and eager to do all the things he loves as well as learn new things once he gets a mentor. If you are interested in mentoring Sean, please contact Jill Hampton at 362-0694 ext. 103 or email jill@mcysb.org.

Round two voting is now underway with the remaining 32 teams from 28 communities around the state battling it out. Public fan voting for this round ends Thursday at 10 p.m. In the single-elimination bracket, each winner goes to the next round until the Coolest Thing Made in Indiana champion is crowned.

Online voting for the competition takes place at www.indianachamber.com/coolestthing.

catur, Elkhart, Fishers, Gary, Goshen, Greens Fork, Greenwood, Indianapolis, Jasper, Lafayette, Leesburg, Logansport, Merrillville, Nappanee, Nashville, Rensselaer, Sellersburg, South Bend, Syracuse, Upland, Wawaka, Westfield and Zionsville.

Decatur, Goshen, Indianapolis and South Bend have multiple companies left in the contest.

Voting for the second round concludes on Thursday, November 10 at 10 p.m. and overall on November 30. The timeline of each round of voting is as follows; all times noted are in Eastern Time.

• Round 2: Nov. 8-10 (at 9 a.m.; closes 10 p.m. Thursday)

The champion will be announced Dec. 14 at our 2022 Best IN Manufacturing Awards Luncheon, which also features the first honorees in the Indiana Best Places to Work in Manufacturing program.

Coolest Thing Made in Indiana sponsors are spirit sponsor Purdue Manufacturing Extension Partnership (MEP); gold sponsor Gibson; and silver sponsors Evonik Corporation, Insuperity, Nucor Steel Indiana, SMC Corporation of America and The Horton Group.

Entry in the tournament is free. To participate, a company did not need to be headquartered in Indiana, but the product entered must be manufactured in the state. Companies are limited to having one product nominated for entry.

For fairness, the initial matchups were generated via an online randomizer, notes the Indiana Chamber.

named for John Speed who aided the network of safe spaces for freedom seekers, sat next to the property for years. While Indiana never legalized slavery, escapees could still be pursued, captured and returned to enslavers. Sadly, after the Civil War, Indiana reacted poorly to Emancipation. The presence of the KKK proliferated. After Illinois, it became the second most common state for Sundown Towns and communities. While Indiana had more than 300 such towns, Crawfordsville never passed laws or hung signs, though businesses refused to serve black Americans over the years. Crawfordsville's Lincoln School moved from the current site of Valentino's restaurant to the site of Lincoln Park, and there African-American children in grades K-8 attended school. Schools in town were not fully integrated until 1968. Among the young children who attended the Lincoln School was a hidden hero of this city: Frances Wooden.

At the recent Frances Wooden Park planning meeting, Vickie Swisher Hudson raised her hand and asked if the park's new play installations would be (dis)ability friendly.

"Because Frances Wooden suffered from polio and was disabled," Swisher-Hudson added. Wooden's polio significantly affected her ability to walk. She grew up near the second Lincoln school, which was close to the Midstates Wire and the California Pellet Mill. Wooden's father worked at Midstates Wire Mill before the Depression but the manufacturer's fumes harmed his health. He worked as a custodian at the Strand Theater, which later collapsed.

After surviving polio, Wooden had to walk with a crutch, but she was a spitfire who used to steal tomatoes with her siblings from a neighbor's yard. She once said she hoped to catch mumps from her brother Elijah. She didn't but he died from the disease. The sparing of her life benefited us all.

Frances was an industrious and conscientious child. She had many jobs to help the household. She picked greens, collected fishing worms and still prioritized her education, a value instilled by her mother. Like all black and "mulatto" students, she had to attend the segregated Lincoln School through the eighth grade. In high school, when students integrated, Wooden struggled to navigate the highly waxed floors at the old Crawfordsville High School. She was resilient and active in high school. Wooden joined the Sunshine Club and chorus.

She loved music and her faith in God, which she shared with all people that she met. Practicing what she preached, she read her Bible daily. Her favorite Bible passage was Matthew 19:14: "Let the children come to me, do not hinder them; for to them belongs to the kingdom of God." In the 1935 Crawfordsville High School yearbook, her senior quote was "great works are performed by perseverance." She and the only other two black students in Crawfordsville High School – Oleatha Shenall and Edna Burnside – had to draw from that promise of strength and perseverance. For Wooden, who walked to school daily and had to walk on the top of her polio-stricken foot, where the shoelaces are, the effort spoke to her character.

"My foot turned clear over. I had to have a pair of shoes every other week. That's expensive, even if they were cheap shoes," she recalled. Nevertheless, she persisted.

Wooden hoped to attend Purdue to become a dietitian but she never did leave. Her entire life is a real-life edition of the legendary George Bailey from "It's a Wonderful Life." Instead of fulfilling her personal ambitions, she transformed Crawfordsville by working with our youth teaching art and creativity at the rec center and local schools. When the mayor recognized her in 1985, she said, "maybe I could make this wheelchair dance." She died in 1987 after years of serving children and maintaining park services. Governor of Indiana Robert Orr honored her after her death.

No wonder Swisher-Hudson asked if the park named for this hometown heroine would accommodate all children, regardless of ability.

The park is months out from renovation, but soon it will be a gathering place for Crawfordsvillians and while anyone who visits can enjoy the park, they might also worship with the small but valuable community at Bethel AME.

Oh pshaw, I say. My daughter says that's like saying, "other than that, how was the play Mrs. Lincoln?"

Kids. And like a lot of guys, I do tend to ignore some things. I've always figured if it's serious enough we'll figure it out sooner or later. Until then, I don't want to dwell on every little ache and pain.

Except the other day. I had this pounding headache that hurt all the way from the top of my head down to the corns and bunions below.

I opened my desk and was looking for the bottle of aspirin – nuclear strength – when the phone rang so loud it rattled my wisdom. (No, I didn't leave out the word teeth.)

"Paper, Timmons." "This here is your lucky day my good man," a very loud and very twangy voice boomed into my ear. "This here is Bob Eubanks and we are calling some of the original contestants from The Newlywed Game with a free prize! All you have to do is answer the following question, when is the best time to make whoopee?"

Good Lord! That twang and the stupid gimmick could only mean one thing. Bubba Castiron was calling me . . . again!

Did I mention how badly my head hurt?

"Bubba, first off – the Newlywed Show was on in the 1960s. My wife and I may have been together for 40 years, but we didn't even know each other back then. And second off, when we make whoopee is none of your business." "Don't happen very often, huh?" Bubba cackled. "Doggone Timmons, I thought for sure the Bob Eubanks thing would get you. I figured at your age you'd just believe you forgot being on that show."

"Bubba, listen, didn't we just talk a couple of weeks ago? You only call every few months, if that often. Why are you calling so soon?"

"I got to tell you, Timmons, that hurts my feelings. I mean I think a lot of you and value your opinion and all. Why you got to be so cross?"

Inside my head a thousand tiny men with jackhammers were pounding away on the back side of my eyeballs. And now, on top of everything else, I was feeling guilty about being short with Bubba.

"Ah, look, Bubba. I didn't mean to –"

"Ha!" Bubba shouted. "I was just yanking your chain. The only time my feelings get hurt is when the store is out of Falstaff beer."

"Bubba! Listen, I really am busy and it really is a bad day for this," I steamed back. "Exactly what is it I can do for you?"

"Dang, Timmons, you really is in a mood today, huh? You know what you need, son? What you need is what my great-grandpappy used to call an altitude adjustment."

"Attitude?"

"Huh?"

"Never mind."

"Timmons, you just got to open your eyes to the wonders of the world, to a meridian of possibilities."

"Myriad?"

"Huh?"

Why do I bother?

"Look, I'll tell you what Timmons. You play along with me on this and I will stop bugging you for the day, AND I promise you that you will feel better. I am going to pry your eyes open to the wonders of the world like a metal key opening a can of Spam."

Prying my eyes actually might help with the pain. And even though I had no illusions that whatever Bubba had up his sleeve would be worthwhile, I was willing to do darn near anything to end this conversation.

"Fine, Bubba. I'll play your silly game. What is it?"

"OK, Timmons. Good deal. Now, what if I could show you something that you have never, ever seen before and will never, ever see again. Would that make you change your crappy outlook today?"

Bubba, I am old enough to be on Medicare. I have worked from one coast to the other and have seen an awful lot. I seriously doubt that you can show me something that A) I have never seen before and B) will never see again. It just isn't possible."

"Yeah, OK, Mr. Know-It-All, that's just fine," Bubba said. "If I can do that, will you admit you're wrong and adjust that attitude?"

I just wanted this to be over. "OK, fine, Bubba."

"Then here's what I want you to do, Timmons. Close your eyes."

How would he know? I just sat there.

"Dang it, Timmons. No cheating. Now close them eyes!"

Sigh. I closed them.

"OK, now I want you to imagine we are in a movie theater. And imagine me holding a big tub of hot buttered popcorn. Got it? "Yeah, yeah, I got it Bubba. But if you're thinking about a movie, that won't work. You said that you're going to show me something I've never seen before and will never see again. You can show me a movie I've never seen, but nothing would prevent me from seeing it in the future."

"Would you relax, Timmons," Bubba said. "Stop getting ahead of yerself. Just keep those eyes closed."

The pain in my head wasn't getting any better. "OK, now focus on the big ol' tub of hot-buttered popcorn. Can you smell it, Timmons?"

I've got to admit that I was starting to think about how good that would taste. Warm butter/ A little salt . . .

"OK, Timmons. Now I reach my hand way down in the tub and pull out one popped kernel from the bottom. Can you see it?"

"Yeah, Bubba. I know what a popcorn kernel looks like."

"I pop that puppy in my mouth and there you go! You never saw that kernel before and you'll never see it again! Now open them eyes Timmons and stop overthinking everything. Maybe you just oughta be thankful for what you got!"

Just like that, Bubba was gone. The pain wasn't, but it didn't feel quite as bad.

Two cents, which is about how much Timmons said his columns are worth, appears periodically on Wednesdays in The Paper. Timmons is the publisher of The Paper and can be contacted at ttimmons@thepaper24-7.com.
