2 The Carnegie Museum of Montgomery County is pleased to announce that Santa Claus will be visiting the museum for "Photos with Santa" on Saturday Dec. 3, 2022, from 2:30 - 4:30 p.m. Bring your camera and take pictures with Santa. This time with Santa is not only for kids; it can be a great time to bring the whole family together for a photo with Santa and his sleigh. 3 The late, great American jazz comedian and pianist of the early 20th century, Fats Waller, wrote and performed a hit song called Your Feet's Too Big. Tanya Herbert of Houston, TX has big feet -- big enough to be honored by the Guinness Book of World Records -- but they are definitely not too big for her, says the Association of Mature American Citizens [AMAC]. Tanya stands 6' 9" tall and wears woman's size 18 shoes, which are hard to find. So, she says she buys "the largest shoes I could find online and manipulate those to extend them out a little longer and make them a little wider so that they fit my feet."

Butch Remembers Some Boring Christmas Gifts

BUTCH DALE

Well, it's that time of year again...time to select Christmas gifts for our family. Even though our four children are grown, we still think of them as our "little kids." With nine grandkids, too, it can be expensive, but since we never go on a vacation, we save that money for Christmas gift-giving.

To make it easy, my wife usually has everyone make a list of things they might like to have, and then we just go buy some of the items on the list.

Sometimes Life Comes Down To A Simple 'Doink'

JOHN MARLOWE

Every time a National Football League placekicker lines up to kick a field goal, my friend Brian cringes. This holds true for college and high school field goal kicking, too, but his attention is most frequently focused on the professionals. You see, Brian believes that field goal kickers are getting robbed.

I was over at his house, Sunday, watching the big game. At the end of the first half of the con-test, the visiting team rushed their field goal kicking unit onto the field. They hoped to add three points to their score before heading into intermission.

As time ran down, the placekicker drew back his leg, and launched what would have been a 52-yard field goal had the ball made it successfully through the uprights. Instead, the football sailed end-over-end, and smacked squarely into the left upright, tumbling harmlessly back onto the field of play. The score remained tied to the delight of 60,000 people in the stands.

"That's just not right," said Brian, shaking his head in disgust.

"Sure it is," I said. "The ball hit the upright. It never made it

A Thanksgiving Unlike Any Before

TIM TIMMONS
Two Cents from The Holy Land

Thursday marked the most untraditional of Thanksgivings. But what a day to be thankful for.

Our first stop after leaving the Dead Sea was Masada. If you don't know the story, you would be hard pressed to find one with more drama, courage and sacrifice. If you do know the story and have never been, it's this reporter's opinion it is worth adding to the bucket list.

Briefly, Masada was a fortress on top of a mountain in the Judean Desert of southern Israel. Herod, as in Herod the Great, built a royal citadel on it for his family. However, after he died, the Jews took back the mountain in a surprise attack and held on to it for years. But when Rome decided to retake the mountain, the almost 1,000 on top had a choice to make.

There's More Than One Way To Have A Family

Every now and then, thought Doc, that opportunity comes back to haunt me. Like it is right now on this crisp morning walk. It came early in his medical life, an invitation to join with a famous big hospital Back East. He'd make more money, he knew, and there was the seductive challenge of being on the cutting edge of what the world of medicine had to offer to the world of people.

He stopped for a minute and looked up through the stark tangle of bare limbs on a cottonwood tree. The filigree patterns of early winter never grew old to Doc. Sometimes they reminded him of capillaries or the branching out of small spring creeks heading for a trout river. And sometimes, they were just pretty to look at and deserved a pause in Doc's morning walk.

He and his wife, known to everyone as Mrs. Doc, had come here to the valley many years ago. Each had become a local institution the way these things go in a small, rural area. They both regretted not having any children of their own, but the devotion each felt for the other tended to at least partially fill that emotional cavity.

Columnist

Jeffrey Martin came trotting along the sidewalk on his way to school. Had his book backpack and lunch too. "Mornin' Doc!" he said.

"Hey Jeff. How's school?"
"Just fine. Gotta run. I'm late."

Doc smiled after him. Third grade this year? Close to that anyway. Jeffrey had been a difficult birth. So had Jeffrey's mother. And Doc had been there for both of them. There's more than one way to have a family, Doc thought, smiling.

Give a kid's life a boost.

Meeting Notes

Montgomery County Retired Teachers Association

Minutes for Nov. 14, 2022

The Montgomery County Retired Teachers Association met at noon on Nov. 14, 2022 at the Crawfordsville District Public Library. Twenty-nine people attended with many enjoying the catered meal of roasted pork tenderloin, mashed potatoes and gravy, corn, salad, and caramel apple cake served by Sunoco.

President Kim Nixon called the meeting to order. A welcome was given to first-time attendee Laurel Moore. The Pledge of Allegiance was recited and the invocation was given by Debbie Howard. November birthdays were recognized.

Program - A very informative program was given by Sally Zachary Motsch. Sally is originally from Ladoga. As a young married woman, she lived in New York City and then in 1983 moved to Jeddah, Saudi Arabia with her husband, Larry, for his work. They lived there in a walled compound with about 3,000 other people until 1997, at which time Sally moved back to the U.S. with her children. Ex-pat students can only stay through 8th grade as the Saudis don't want their high-schoolers to mix with them. Sally's husband continued to live and work in Jeddah until 2004. Moving to Jeddah was quite a transition from NYC, but Sally made the best of it. She gives the following advice for moving to a foreign country:

1. identify the rules (e.g. she chose to dress in a black abaya and a head covering) 2. Find friends (it was difficult to communicate with family at home because phone calls were expensive and monitored) 3. Don't sit around and moan about what you don't have but find what is there to explore and do (she scuba dived in the Red Sea). Sally worked parttime at a private girls' school where she was able to interact with Arab women and children. She noted that the literacy rate has risen dramatically for girls since the first girl's school opened 1955. For women three factors shape them: tribal and family loyalty, tradition, and the Islam religion which is the foundation of the legal system. Things are gradually changing for women but it is still a male-dominated system. Sally feels the Saudi women don't necessarily want to be "us". Sally demonstrated the Saudi dress of the men and women, using volunteer "models" from the audience.

Secretary's report - There were no minutes available from the October meeting to be read at the meeting. They will be emailed to the group. Karen Thada shared thank yous from the Montgomery County Free Clinic for the gift of $126 and from the Family Crisis Shelter for the gift of $120.

Treasurer's report - Larry Manlove reported a November 14 balance of $3,566.31 after deposits of $387 for dues and meals, and disbursements of $364 to Sunoco for meals.

Committee reports
• Community Service - Nancy Bowes reported that $75 was collected for Blue Star Mothers at today's meeting. Nancy needs our volunteer hours by the end of the year, preferably at the next meeting. She has forms if needed. Please separate youth hours from other hours.

• MCRTA/IRTA Foundation Grants – Kim Nixon reported the MCCF grant for $1,000 was sent to Youth Service Bureau.
• Member concerns and services – sympathy cards were sent to the families of Margie Zimmerman, Dr. Robert Brower, Marge Hughes, and Barb Cook. Many other get well and thinking-of-you cards were sent as well.

Membership stands at 114.

Colleen from AMBA shared that she has had lots of questions about Medicare Advantage plans. She explained that Indiana Retired Teachers Association does not endorse any Advantage Plans.

Old business – Because attending membership is down, Kim sent an email asking for input on how to make MCRTA better. She had only 4 responses and she shared that information. Kim asked for further input and suggestions for menus.

New business – In the recent edition of Bulletin Board Laura Penman is said to be hosting Retired-side Chats. Chat three is now up. You can tune in to hear important legislative updates from Steve Beebe, IRTA lobbyist and Nancy Tolson, IRTA Legislative Committee Chair. You can watch these chats on the IRTA website.

Next meeting is Dec. 12. Deb Howard and Linda Sabol are doing decorations. Debbie Howard will have devotions. The program will be music from The Crescendos.

Door prizes were distributed.

Darlene Dusek moved to adjourn at 1:45. Barb Foster seconded. Motion carried.

The Wailing Wall has two sections – one for men and the other for women.

It was clear they could hold on for a while, but at some point, Rome was going to win.

Elazar Ben Yair, according to multiple records, gave a stirring speech about the choice to live (and die) in freedom, or to live as slaves to the Romans. The Jewish people of Masada chose Freedom. So 10 numbers were drawn and the 10 men chosen were tasked with taking the lives of their fellow citizens. When that was done, lots were cast again and one man killed the other nine and then took his own life. When the Roman soldiers arrived the next day, they found almost 1,000 bodies and the Jewish people had a story for the millennium. Some two thousand years later, our tour guide said the Israeli military still says, "Masada, never again."

From there it was a bus ride through the desert. We passed Bedouin encampments, a herd of perhaps 20 or 30 camels, multiple shepherds herding sheep and goats and even a small ibex – a relative of the deer family, from the looks of it.

We made a short stop at the Oasis of Ein Gedi, a place where David hid from Saul (Samuel 23) and wrote several Psalms while doing so.

We next went to Qumran, the area where the Dead Sea Scrolls were found – another breathtaking site. In 1947 ancient biblical texts were found inside old pottery in caves. The discovery changed – and confirmed – much of what we knew of the Bible. We were going to take a hike through the oasis, but a prediction of rain closed the area. Apparently, in the area there, it does not take a lot of rain to create flash floods down the mountain. A group of nine college kids were killed exactly that way in 2018.

Had the day ended there, it would have been a great one. It didn't. Less than an hour later we went over a hill and there, in all its splendor, was the Holy City, Jerusalem – one of the oldest cities on the planet. We will spend the remainder of our trip here – and still not get to see everything. When you think about it, it's the site Abraham thought he was supposed to sacrifice his son Isaac. David took the city with his army around 3,000 years ago. Jesus came into the city in a celebration that we now know as Palm Sunday. Pontius Pilate sentenced Jesus to die there – and indeed it is the city where he was crucified. The Jews built their temple there. The Muslims took over.

The events. The history. The magnitude.

Even the day before we arrived an incident of terrorism took place as a bomb killed a young teen and wounded almost two dozen others.

So with security heightened, we made our first stop the Western Wall – also known as the Wailing Wall. The base of the wall sees people – many Jews, yes, but people from all over – praying and leaving notes to God. And at the top lies at worst an enemy and at best an uneasy relationship with a neighbor, the Muslims. We were given time to pray if we wished – I did – and then went on a fascinating tour of the Western Wall Tunnels, a long and ancient tunnel that lies at the base of the Western Wall.

Hard to say if there are any non-believers in our tour group. But if there were, it'd be a bigger challenge to remain that way after everything we've seen. This visit takes events off the pages of the bible and makes them real. It's history, plain and simple.

In the next couple days, we'll visit Bethlehem where Jesus was born as well as explore further into the Old Town section of Jerusalem where Pilate's order to crucify Jesus was carried out. As our guide said, all these amazing things happened and came together right around the time Jesus was here – it has to mean something, doesn't it?

through." "I'm not talking about that. I know it didn't make it through. I just think there should be some points for that."

"It's a doink. No one gets any points for a doink," I said.

"What the [heck] is a doink? I don't remember seeing that term used in the rule book anywhere."

"It's not," I said. "Football analyst Cris Collinsworth gets credit for popularizing the term in 2018. Kicker Cody Parkey's game-winning field goal try was partially blocked, and the ball sailed toward the goalposts. However, it hit the right upright, then bounced off the crossbar, and ultimately came to rest in the end zone. My beloved Chicago Bears lost the game to the defending champions Eagles."

"Collinsworth called the kick a 'Double Doink'. It's an onomatopoeia." "A what-a-mata-pee-a?" "An onomatopoeia. That's a word that sounds like the noise it describes, like 'smack' or 'buzz' or 'zap'. If you were at the game, that's the sound you would have heard when the ball hit the goalpost."

"If I was at the game, I wouldn't have heard anything. I'd be downstairs getting a hotdog," Brian said. He mused on. "It's much harder to actually hit the goalpost than it is to not hit the goalpost. They should get at least one point for that."

"This isn't bowling, you know," I said, quite surprised at how quickly I thought of a parallel. "They aren't trying to hit the goalpost."

"Well, they count a shot in basketball even when players aren't trying to make it go in. Some ac-cidents get rewarded."

Drat! I hate it when I get out-paralleled.

Besides, Brian may have just created a nice wrinkle to the game. Maybe we should give kickers an extra point when the ball hits an upright or the crossbar. After all, kickers have the elements to deal with. A muddy field, a cold football, a gusty crosswind affect their segment of the game more than any other.

Had Brian's scoring system been in place in 2018, Collinsworth still could claim his "double doink" coinage, but I would have something to claim, too. A win! Adding one point for each part of the goalpost the football hit during Parkey's kick, would have given my Bears the win over the Eagles 17-16.

"You may have something there, Brian," I admitted.

"Yeah, but what good is it? They will never consider making a change."

"Probably," I started. "but there is precedent for change."

"A field goal in the early years was worth five points. Because this created a lot of tie ballgames, the total for a successful field goal was lowered to four points in 1904, and then lowered again to the current three points in 1909."

"The goal posts were initially seated right on the goal line, but then they were moved back ten yards when end zones were added. When the passing game developed, the goalposts were moved back to the goal line to accommodate passes caught in the end zone. They were moved back to the end line in 1973 when "soccer-style" kicking became en vogue, and too many successful kicks were recorded."

Brian thought for a minute. "That's a doink," he said.

"What do you mean?" I asked.

He turned, scratched his back, then muttered as he walked away.

"Every time I have a great idea, someone is always moving the goalposts on me."

BUTCH

Gee, that never worked for me when I was growing up! As I mentioned in a previous column, I did receive some great gifts through the years...a Hopalong Cassidy capgun and holster, a BB rifle, a Lew Burdette autographed baseball glove, and a Milwaukee Braves baseball cap... just to name a few. But my folks never had much money, so many times I think they just waited until the last minute and grabbed whatever they could afford. I have mentioned these before...slinky, Viewmaster, Mr. Potato Head, ant farm, Woolly Willy, etc. Not too exciting, but those did keep my attention for a short amount of time. But then there were gifts that, sad to say, were just downright boring...for instance...

When I was in the fourth grade in 1958, I received a present wrapped in a tiny little box. I was "going steady" with Linda Quigg, who had long, blond curls. (Our romance consisted of sitting next to each other at basketball games.) I wanted a necklace with my name engraved on it, as it was a custom then to exchange these with your significant other. I was very excited until I opened the box and discovered a brand new pair of...nail clippers. Now that's something every boy certainly desires with all their heart! Whoopee.

The next year, as a fifth grader, one of my presents was a tube of Brylcreem. On the box, it stated that it was "The Best Selling Hairdressing in the World." It should also have said "Most Boring Christmas Gift in the World." I don't think Elvis even used that stuff.

Some of the other gifts that I received through the years were such items as socks, underwear, and coats. Practical? Yes. Exciting? No. And I could always guarantee you that there would always be an orange in my stocking. Hey, Mom and Dad, this is not the Great Depression. It's the 1950s, I want candy! They must have inherited their gift-giving skills from their parents. My Grandpa and Grandma Dale couldn't buy anything. They had 22 grandkids and very little money. But Grandpa and Grandma Grimes always gave me really "special" presents...gloriously exciting items like cufflinks, pencils, ink pens, handkerchiefs, and yes...they also gave me some nail clippers. One time, I received a new striped bowtie. My God, where I am going to wear that...to the insane asylum for adolescents? Maybe I could also buy a straw hat and become a carnival barker at the ring-toss tent.

In high school, my basketball coach required that the team members dress up for the games and wear a hat...those stupid looking Fedorastyle hats. So, of course, as a freshman that was one of my Christmas presents. It was greenish-brown plaid with a little feather in the hat band. Great...I always wanted to look like Fred McMurray. I also received a new athletic supporter, i.e. "jockstrap." Really. Yes, something I would always treasure.

Well, I received gifts from other people, too. When I was 15, the Methodist Church, where I had attended Sunday School for the last ten years, gave me a small edition of the New Testament. That was nice of them. However, at that age, I would have preferred the 1964 Holiday edition of Playboy magazine.

Through all of those Christmas seasons, I learned some valuable lessons. First of all, what you want...and what you receive...are entirely two different things. Secondly, money cannot buy happiness...but it sure can't hurt any either. Thirdly, my parents and grandparents did not spend much time in selecting gifts. But that's OK, because in gift-giving it is truly the thought that counts. The best gifts are having good health and a loving family...and most importantly, Christmas Day is the occasion to celebrate the birth of Jesus.

If anyone needs any nail clippers, I have an extra pair.
