THREE THINGS You Should Know:

1 Nine-year-old Molly Sampson of Calvert County, MD dreams of becoming a paleontologist when she grows up; she wants to study the history of life on Earth, reports the Association of Mature American Citizens [AMAC]. Meantime, she likes to search the local beaches for sharks' teeth and recently came across a rather large tooth that belonged to the biggest shark that ever lived -- a giant 15 million-year-old shark known as a Megalodon. She took it to the Calvert Marine Museum on Solomon's Island where the paleontology department confirmed her find.

2 Feb. 20-26 is National Invasive Species Awareness Week, an international event to raise awareness about invasive species, the threat they pose to our environment and health and what we can do to prevent their spread. Invasive species are plants, animals and diseases that are not native to our area and cause harm to our environment, health and finances. You can fight back by learning the signs, reporting sightings, and taking precautions. Find out more at dnr.IN.gov/rules-and-regulations/invasive-species.

3 Senator Mike Braun released the following statement ahead of President Joe Biden's 2023 State of the Union Address. "Where I come from, you don't get credit for putting out a fire you started. When President Biden touts "deficit reduction" tonight he means adding slightly less to our $31 trillion debt bomb this year than the one and a half trillion he added last year. When he touts jobs coming back, he doesn't mention what they're coming back from: record high inflation he created and his COVID policies that paid people not to work. Three fifths of working Americans live paycheck to paycheck, and Hoosier families are spending more and getting less. The state of the union will always be strong as long as the American people remain resilient and innovative, and when I travel all 92 Indiana counties every year talking to Hoosiers I see that firsthand. But the state of our federal government is bloated, wasteful, and in need of real leadership."

Numbers are not political. "Data is just data," said Advi, an economics senior from Oman, who was talking about the course that most impacted her, the Economics of Racial and Gender Discrimination. The data demonstrates clear patterns that systems of law and culture have significantly impacted the economic health of minorities in the United States.

Everyone knows about slavery. It's the 165 years of systems since emancipation that impacted the black American minority in our country. (Can we speak of the other groups? Native Americans, Pacific Islanders, Hispanics and Asian Americans have their own systems to lament.)

Hardly starting on a happy note for Black History Month, and there's plenty to celebrate, but in the words of Scott Russell Sanders, "Since I could not forget the wounds to people and planet, could not unlearn the dismal numbers of pollution and population and poverty, I would have to look harder for antidotes, for medicines, for sources of hope."

Here's the rub. A lot people haven't learned enough to remember the wounds, the dismal numbers, the poverty and hurt. Most know that the 40 acres and a mule were "a dream deferred?" But what happens to a dream deferred, asked Langston Hughes? Sharecropping as a kind of indentured servitude, the Great Migration as a failed promise. History offered up more: racial covenants, sundown towns, redlining, educational inequality, employee-based healthcare, the historical basis of modern policing, "broken windows" governance and explicit health biases have all data sets that aren't political.

LET ME START by saying thank you to the good folks at St. Bernard's. They invited me to share some highlights of the Israel trip, and even went out of their way to feed me. How's that for a great day! A special thanks to Jan Sears for being so kind and making it easy!

ON THAT subject, if you would like a slightly used

Ruth E. Campbell Bunnell

June 5, 1919 - Feb. 4, 2023

Ruth E. Campbell Bunnell, age 103, died on Saturday, Feb. 4, 2023, in her apartment at Sugar Fork Crossing of Anderson, Ind.

She was born in her family home in Troy Township of Fountain County, Indiana, on June 5, 1919, to the late Andrew and Flo Smith Campbell.

She was married to Roy J. Bunnell on July 14, 1946, on the grounds of her parents' home near Veedersburg, Ind.

She attended grade school in Stone Bluff, Indiana thru the eighth grade, and graduated from Veedersburg High School in 1937. Following graduation, she worked for family friends caring for young children, but eventually secured a position with the AAA group that supported farmers in Fountain County and surrounding counties. She talked about getting to watch the artists as they created the murals in the Fountain County Court House where the office was located.

After living in Chicago for a short time, she and Roy set up housekeeping near Alamo, Ind., but eventually started working as renters on a farm near Osborn Prairie Church near Stone Bluff. After she and Roy rented farm ground near Newtown, Ind., they purchased a farm near Wingate, Ind., where she resided until 2016, when she moved to Pendleton, Indiana, to live with her daughter and son-in-law, Sally and Don Jones. Recently, she had moved to Sugar Fork Crossing Assisted Living facility of Anderson, Indiana. Ruth was a member of the former Center Christian Church near Elmdale, Ind., a member of American Legion Auxiliary, and had been attending the Pleasant Hill United Church of Christ in Wingate prior to her move. She has been a voting member of Farm Bureau since 1947.

She began playing piano for church at Osborn Prairie as a teenaged musician. She continued to do so in a church in every community where she lived, she and was still playing for the services at Pleasant Hill when she moved. She would occasionally play for her fellow residents at Sugar Fork Crossing. In addition to being a pianist, she was an accomplished cook who could whip up a fantastic pie or a loaf of bread in no time. Her homemade wares could be had at many a funeral dinner and bake sale in the community. When she and Roy purchased the Bunnell Machine Shop near Newtown, she became the bookkeeper of both that business and their farm. She enjoyed sewing many of her own outfits, and she dressed her family for many years in the items she created. She and Roy raised a large garden every year, and she preserved hundreds of jars of fruits, vegetables, and pickles over the years.

Survivors include a daughter, Sally, (Don) Jones of Pendleton Ind., and three sons, Bill Bunnell of West Lebanon, Robert 'Bo' Bunnell of Wingate, and Charles (Carol Ann) Bunnell of Clarklake, Mich.; ten grandchildren; eleven great grandchildren; and many cherished nieces and nephews.

She was preceded in death by her parents; her husband of 67 years, Roy Bunnell; son, Thomas 'Wayne' Bunnell; sisters, Inez Luzader and Louise Cumbow; brothers, Robert and Ray Campbell; twin great-grandsons, Roy Edward and Hanley Wayne Bunnell-Fry.

Visitation hours are scheduled 5 - 8 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 9, 2023 with funeral services 11 a.m. Friday, Feb. 10, 2023 with Pastor Kristine Marshall officiating at Family and Friends Funeral Home of Wingate. Burial will follow in Oakland Cemetery. Memorial contributions may be made to Purdue University Center for Cancer Research. Noted Entomologist Douglas Tallamy To Speak At Wabash College On Monday

Wabash College will host one of the nation's foremost ecologists and conservationists when Dr. Douglas Tallamy visits campus as part of the President's Distinguished Speaker Series. Dr. Tallamy will give a talk entitled, "Nature's Best Hope," on Monday, February 13 at 7:30 p.m. in Salter Hall of the Fine Arts Center.

Dr. Tallamy is a professor in the Department of Entomology and Wildlife Ecology at the University of Delaware. A graduate of Allegheny College, he earned a master's degree from Rutgers and his Ph.D. in entomology from the University of Maryland.

His research focuses on the impact on biodiversity when non-native plants are introduced in new ecosystems. He has written four books, including "Bringing Nature Home" and the New York Times Bestsellers, "The Living Landscape" and "Nature's Best Hope." His latest book is "The Nature of Oaks."

Dr. Tallamy has been featured in scores of podcasts and interviews, including in the New York Times, Washington Post, NPR, Associated Press, and numerous media outlets. He is the founder of Homegrown National Park, a grassroots call-to-action organization dedicated to regenerating biodiversity by planting native plants and creating new ecological networks. The organization's goal is to turn 20 million acres of manicured lawns into sites of native plantings and rich ecological diversity.

While researching the mating habits of the cucumber beetle decades ago, Dr. Tallamy looked for information on the association of native insects with invasive species. Finding very little, he shifted his focus to study how restoring native species of flora can recharge insect populations. Over the last 20 years, he has removed invasive species from his own property, which has returned hundreds of native insects, birds, and other wildlife. "Ninety percent of insects that eat plants can develop and reproduce only on the plants with which they share an evolutionary history," Dr. Tallamy told Smithsonian Magazine.

In his talk at Wabash, Dr. Tallamy will discuss his research, commitment to caring for native plants and the wildlife they support, and give advice on how anyone can play a role in this important ecological work. Twenty years ago, Dr. Tallamy planted an acorn, which today is a 40-foot oak tree that has restored over 240 species of caterpillars to his property.

Dr. Tallamy's lecture is free and open to the public.

Ivy Tech Lafayette Partners With In-Mac To Create Industrial Career Academy To Train High School Students And Develop Workforce

Ivy Tech Community College Lafayette will play a major role in the education and workforce development of high school students in Montgomery and Boone counties through the new Industrial Career Academy (I.C.A.), announced Ivy Tech Lafayette Chancellor Aaron Baute. Ivy Tech partnered with Indiana Next Generation Manufacturing Competitiveness Center (IN-MaC) to bring together key stakeholders and educators to connect high school students with industry and post-secondary opportunities by creating a high school-to-career pathway system.

Lisa Deck, IN-MaC's Program Manager Education Workforce, said that providing students with a supervised training plan at each partnering industry will give them the foundational skills to understand a manufacturing career fully. "We aim to increase the hands-on experience while focusing on the academic, technical, and durable skills needed for a successful future," Deck said.

Ivy Tech has joined West Central Indiana Career & Technical Education, Lakeside Book Company, and Pace Dairy Foods to create solutions to connect the next generation of the workforce with jobs and degrees in their communities.

"Ivy Tech is pleased to work with our partners in creating this career academy," said Ivy Tech Community College Lafayette Chancellor Aaron Baute. "We are proud to help power the workforce development initiatives in Montgomery County."

This partnership is designed to begin in Fall 2023 with Crawfordsville, North Montgomery, Southmont, and Western Boone school corporations. Students will participate in a two-year program that offers a Next Level Jobs program of study in Industrial Maintenance to prepare students to complete the Industrial Electrical Certificate. Students will earn both high school and college credit through Ivy Tech's dual credit and dual enrollment courses.

"We know that maintenance technicians are in high demand with our area employers," said Crawfordsville Mayor Todd Barton. "We are excited that Ivy Tech is creating a Career Academy in Crawfordsville to prepare residents for careers that will meet the need of employers, while providing a high quality, well-paying career for those completing the program."

The I.C.A. will provide students with a unique educational experience that not only utilizes hands-on learning, but will also provide students with on-the-job training. During the first three semesters of the program, students have an integrated classroom and industry training experience.

Students will participate in paid internships during their final semester of the program. Ivy Tech is excited to collaborate with local schools and industry to create a workforce solution and greater visibility to the area's student career options and pathways.

"This partnership with Ivy Tech Community College Lafayette and IN-MaC is a valuable opportunity for West Central Indiana CTE students to gain hands-on experience and foundational skills for a successful future in manufacturing careers," said West Central Indiana CTE Director Sara Nicodemus. "We are thrilled to be a part of this initiative to connect high school students with industry and post-secondary opportunities, and excited to see the positive impact it will have on our community."

Any family within the Crawfordsville, North Montgomery, Southmont, and Western Boone school corporations wanting to learn more about this opportunity should contact Sara Nicodemus at snicodemus@cville.k12.in.us.

Southmont Welcomes New School Board Member To Team

On Thursday, Jan. 26 the Southmont School Board voted Mr. David Reeves as the newest member to represent Clark Township. Mr. Reeves is a South Montgomery resident, graduate, homeowner, land owner, and parent of three students within the corporation. Mr. Reeves is a graduate of Purdue University and is the owner and Certified Crop Advisor of Reeves Agronomics.

Mr. Reeves believes that education is a balance between academics, athletics, performing arts, and vocational programs. He would like to see the students at Southmont learn to be successful, responsible, and productive members of our community. Mr. Reeves plans to ensure our students receive a quality education in a safe environment.

Mr. Reeves shared with the school board that Mr. Bob Tandy, prior Southmont Superintendent, stopped him after his own graduation and encouraged him to someday run for the school board. He has kept that thought in mind and now “someday” has arrived. Mr. Reeves is now ready to accept the responsibility and looks forward to doing what is best for all students, parents, teachers, and members of the community.

demonstrate clear trends, and tell stories that add up.

All of these events have a presence in central Indiana. Before 1820, African-Americans traveled with sympathetic Quakers to Indiana and established Lick Creek Settlement. As noted by Indiana's Forest Service, Jonathan Lindley, the child of County Wicklow, Ireland immigrants who first settled in Chester County Pennsylvania, was a Quaker with anti-slavery convictions. When his birth state of North Carolina failed him, he abandoned his position in the state's general assembly and took his business and beliefs, along with 11 free black American families, to Lick Creek or "Little Africa" east of Paoli, but in the Hoosier National Forest. At its height, the black farmers there owned 2,300 acres, larger than IU's entire campus.

Yet that story of Indiana as a safe state proved ephemeral. In 1814, Mary Bateman Clark, who came to Indiana enslaved, was supposedly granted her freedom, only to be forced into indentured servitude to Benjamin J. Harrison, then Gen. Washington Johnston. Clark sued for her freedom and won in an appeal to the Supreme Court. Gov. James B Ray told the Indiana Assembly that the influx of black Americans constituted a "siege" from "known paupers thrown at us from any quarter." By 1831, Ray had persuaded the Assembly to pass a law that required black Americans to pay $500 dollars to register in the state, and leading up to the Civil War, bounty hunters harassed black Hoosiers as part of the Fugitive Slave Act. Shortly after the war, the community declined and by the end of the South's Reconstruction Era, it had disappeared, as Diane Walker wrote in a detailed history in the Limestone Post.

If you've read Colson Whitehead's Underground Railroad, Lick Creek is the last stop on a fictional account that maps racial attitudes across the South and Indiana. Many who've taken Indiana history in school learned it was a Union-sympathizing state, but that view betrays its conflicted culture from its founding and helps explain the obdurate display the Stars and Bars with the flag that symbolized secession and the end of the Union.

In history and story-telling, according to Barry Lane, there is "shrinking a century" or "exploding a moment."

Notice here, that shrinking a century can betray the good people and lost but hopeful stories, the nuance gets lost, but the present narrative comes into focus. In this case, the degrees of separation between Indiana and Nathaniel Bedford Forrest (see the movie Forrest Gump for the short story of Forrest) are about three decades. Forrest's white sheet terrorism took root in Indiana, as noted by 1920s journalist H.L. Mencken and became an expected community membership for white people even in areas that did not post signs saying "N*, leave by sundown or else" or pass laws forcing minorities out of counties by sundown. Sociologist James Lowellen's Sundown Towns details the explosion of these racist practices, which evolved alongside racial covenants for neighborhoods and redlining for bank loans.

By the '90s, many of us had to read A Raisin in the Sun for high school English and it was the first we learned of covenants, codes, and redlining policies, but many Americans didn't have to read about it. They lived it. All it took was a landlord, a trailer court owner, a home association, or loan officers for this to continue into the 2000s. Other subversive, pernicious practices continue, such as assessing home values differently based on the race of the owners, or neighborhood owners intentionally outbidding black buyers to prevent them from moving there. The Pew Trusts reported in October 2022 that the U.S. Dept. of Justice settled a number of redlining complaints with lenders in New Jersey, Texas, Tennessee and Pennsylvania. Furthermore, it reported that "74.6 percent of white households owned their homes, compared with 45.3 percent of black households — a gap of more than 29 points. In 1960, the white homeownership rate was 65 percent, and the black rate was 38 percent, a 27-point gap." Compare that to 2004 when 49 percent of black Americans owned their home, according to the National Community Reinvestment Coalition (NCRC).

All of these practices over generations of family have put downstream pressure on black Americans health: financial, social, physical, and emotional health. Where a person lives — from the neighborhood's social connectedness to the quality of the structure — plays a huge role in health. We call this a social determinant of health. Where a person is born, grows, lives, works, plays and worships forms a web. Either it protects and connects, or it traps.

"For most Americans, homeownership is the largest component of their wealth," wrote the authors of the 2021 NCRC report. Financial security and assets are connected to lower stress, more educational stability, healthier lifestyles and access to healthcare. Living without economic security snowballs into crisis upon crisis. Without another kind of web of support that mitigates crises, lives are lost to despair, illness and addiction. That web if built to protect, could as miraculous in tensile strength as a spider's.

It takes intentionally analyzing and correcting broken systems that create downstream pressures. We need better housing policy for the low-income as well as the middle class. We need access to affordable healthcare for all, and keep triaging the pressure on the most vulnerable and exposed. As the Basque proverb reads, A thread usually breaks where it is thinnest.

Roger Taney in the Dred Scott case which proves that we really need to remember history, lest we make the same mistake again.

"It cannot be supposed that they intended to secure to them rights, and privileges, and rank, in the new political body throughout the Union, which every one of them denied within the limits of its own dominion. More especially, it cannot be believed that the large slaveholding States regarded them as included in the word citizens, or would have consented to a Constitution which might compel them to receive them in that character from another State. For if they were so received, and entitled to the privileges and immunities of citizens, it would exempt them from the operation of the special laws and from the police regulations which they considered to be necessary for their own safety."

weeks ago. Jack has been under the weather as well. Like John, I'm looking forward to seeing my friend for a cup of coffee when he is feeling better!

WE'VE BEEN talking about politics a lot lately. Here's a thought. What if every panel, every committee, every group that the Legislature or Congress creates always had an equal number of Republicans and Democrats? That premise would force them to compromise. Decisions would no longer simply be a reflection of the party in power. Probably wouldn't work but we need to find some answer, don't we?

WHILE ON politics, Crawfordsville's Steve Akers asked a great question after the column on the national debt. Who owns it? Some quick research shows that the debt is divided into intra-governmental holdings and public debt. The intragovernment is mostly debt through the Federal Reserve and Social Security. The public debt, unfortunately, involves a lot of money owed to Japan and China. In the U.S., public debt includes savings bonds, pensions, insurance companies, banks and more.

AT THE end of today's scribblings, we're talking a bit about comic books. But how many of you remember the big little books? My favorites had small drawings in the corner of some pages and when you flipped through quickly the drawings came alive. I remember a man running and another one with Tarzan swinging on a vine.

WHAT IS IT kids say? My phone blew up Monday afternoon. A lot of my friends (we'll say that loosely) sent me texts and photos of the collapse of the side of the Journal-Review building. "Are you guys shell-ing them?" came one. "Don't know if you did it or not, but if you did, thank you for getting rid of that mural," came another. Look, all kidding aside, we are thankful no one was hurt.

With that said, there are questions that must be asked. Has anyone known that wall was unsafe? If so, for how long. Why wasn't something done about it?

At the very least it is a terrible accident where human tragedy was averted. At the worst, it shows a lack of regard for the safety of employees as well as first responders. Let's hope that answers are found soon.

ARE YOU tired of the filth that passes for comedy on TV now? Well, if you can find it, check out Dry Bar comedy. If you have streaming TV, it's there. I think you can find it on the internet, too. There are a lot of very funny comedians and the humor isn't anything that would embarrass your mother. What a concept, huh!

DID YOU see the news reports about the Chinese balloon flying over the U.S.? It was reported to be the size of a few school buses and, disturbingly, was flying over areas where we have missile silos. Apparently, this isn't new and has happened a few times before. Still, with Russia and North Korea publicly discussing nuclear strikes . . .

DID YOU catch the comment Joe Biden made the other day? "More than half the people in my cabinet, more than half the women in my administration are women." Before that he was telling people how to report fraud online. He told us to go to "report fraud D-O-T-F-T-C dot gov." If it wasn't so sad it'd be funny.

FOR ALL the fans of Readers' Choice, fear not. We usually kick off the biggest promotion in Montgomery County early in the year. We're just running a little behind — which the older I get seems to be more and more common. Sigh. All I can ask is to be patient, and don't be fooled by our competitors' efforts to copy us. You know who's been doing this the longest and the best.

AND FINALLY, Jane Webb. A lot of guys I grew up with were either Betty or Veronica fans, Ginger or Mary Ann. You know what I mean? They either went for the girl next door or the high society type. Me? I always leaned toward Betty or Mary Ann. Jane Webb Karyl was the wonderful voice of Betty in the TV cartoon, Archie. Dawn Wells played Mary Ann on Gilligan's Island. Dawn passed away in December, 2020 at the age of 82 and Jane in 2010 at the age of 84. May they both rest in peace.

BTW, do you recall the last names of our four fictional ladies? Betty was Betty Cooper. Mary Ann was Summers. Ginger was Grant and Veronica was Lodge. Yeah, I had too much time on my hands as a kid and read all the comic books I could get my hands on. My favorites were Batman, Superman, Combat, Archie and the Lone Ranger. What were yours?

their blood sugar to feel better and reduce risk of health complication. Through this program you will learn how to prepare meals that are healthy and easy to prepare that taste good. You will get the opportunity to see several recipes demonstrated and taste each one. Participants of this program will learn up-to-date information on nutrition, meal planning, exercise and how to understand common diabetes-related medical tests. All participants will be given recipes and handouts.

Diabetes is a very serious and costly disease. According to the American Diabetes Association as of 2017, nearly 13% of Indiana's adult population has diabetes. Type 2 diabetes is the most common form of diabetes and is a life-long disease where there is high levels of sugar (glucose) in the blood. Type 2 Diabetes is often associated with older age, obesity, family history of diabetes, history of gestational diabetes, impaired glucose metabolism, physical inactivity and race/ethnicity. But research has shown that those who learn to manage their blood glucose (sugar) levels, eat a healthy diet and exercise regularly can lower their risks of complications and lead a healthier and more productive life.

Purdue Extension Montgomery County is currently recruiting participants for this program. If you have been diagnosed with type 2 diabetes, or know someone and are part of the support system for an individual and are interested in being a part of this program register at <https://cvent.me/20X-9WE>

Class's will be held at the Montgomery County Fairgrounds in the 4-H Building. For questions or help registering, please call Purdue Extension office at 765-364-6363 or e-mail Monica at monicanagele@purdue.edu.
