THREE THINGS You Should Know:

1 Identity Theft reports have increased by 200% in the U.S. over the last decade, and 584% in the last 20 years. ConsumerAffairs released a report that examines identity theft statistics locally to shed light on trends and how they vary across the country. Indianapolis had the 93rd highest amount of identity theft reports per capita in the U.S., and highest in Indiana. Indiana had the #28 highest reports of Identity Theft in the U.S., and saw a 95% increase in reports since before the pandemic.

2 The Indiana Department of Workforce Development is accepting applications for DUA from individuals in Allen, Benton, Clinton, Grant, Howard, Johnson, Lake, Monroe, Morgan, Owen, Sullivan, and White counties whose employment or self-employment was lost or interrupted due to severe storms, straight-line winds, and tornados between March 31, and April 1. Applications for DUA must be filed by May 22.

3 The city of Crawfordsville will host a county-wide job fair on Tuesday, May 16, 2023 from 9AM - 6PM at the 4-H Fair Grounds. Nearly 40 employers have already registered for the event with more continuing to be accepted. This job fair is available for all individuals looking for a job or a career change.

By The Numbers, a look at what's in the news . . . by the numbers. These are just numbers, not suggestions that they mean more or less than what they are. We do not suggest that one number is connected to another. These are simply facts with no extraneous details, bias or slanted reporting. To borrow (and perhaps mangle a bit) a quote from legendary fictional detective Joe Friday, it's just the numbers, ma'am!

The amount of bills filed for Indiana's General Session 2023

$44 Billion

Indiana's new biennial budget plan was passed.

Hundreds of bills passed the legislature. Here is a recap of some,

252

Of the bills filed, Indiana Lawmakers passed this amount.

110 Days

The Republican-controlled General Assembly convened for 110 days during which education, healthcare and taxes were at the forefront of the discourse.

48%

The final budget kept some increases, but gave the state's highest elected offices their own boost — including a 48% raise for the governor's office. Leaders said those offices were "woefully" underpaid and needed to grow in order to keep up with comparable positions.

$160 Mil

Now, $160 million annual line item — added by Senate Republicans — ensures that Hoosier families will not have to pay student textbook fees in K-12 public schools. Private school students who qualify for free or reduced lunch will also see their textbook fee waived, according to the budget.

$225 Million Over The Biennium

Lawmakers opted to fund roughly two-thirds of Holcomb's ask for public health, or $225 million over the biennium. But House Speaker Todd Huston said that legislators will return in the next few years to see what the results from that investment are and reassess funding.

Wrapping Up Reader's Choice

Readers' Choice is wrapped up for another year, and once again, The Papers' annual promotion to recognize your favorites in a multitude of categories was a huge success.

Back when our company was founded, the staff at The Paper brought Montgomery County this fun and good-natured promotion that features local businesses, people, products and more and gives you, our readers, the opportunity to vote for your favorites. We often joke that this is like Chicago politics and encourage you to vote early and vote often.

You see, this has never been about the rigidity of the process. Instead, it is designed to be an absolutely fun and very positive way for our readers to cast a good light on their favorites. And oh, how you have responded!

We annually see ballots that number in the hundreds of thousands – so many in fact that we had to find a way to automatic the counting process.

This year, rather than unveil all the winners at one time like we have in the past, we are revealing several categories a day.

Today's categories can be found inside and a quick list is also provided here.

When the final winners, runner-ups and honorable mentions are revealed, we will compile all of them into one keepsake edition that will stay posted on our website for the entire year.

Lastly, we encourage you to pay attention to the many businesses who are saying thank you with their ads. Without those supporters, local news and specifically your daily edition, wouldn't be here.

Of All Things, "Bunny Food"

CARRIE CLASSON
The Postscript

The TSA agent looked stern—as they usually do.

"I'd like to look inside this bag, ma'am," he said.

"No problem!" I always sound a little too eager when being questioned by an authority figure. I'm trying so hard to prove I have nothing to hide that I sound like I must have something to hide.

The agent proceeded to open my carry-on bag. "It's a bowl!" I told him, with a little too much enthusiasm.

My husband, Peter, was supposed to have put the bowl in his checked luggage, but at the last minute he became concerned it might break. It was a large ceramic bowl we were bringing back from Mexico, and we've had ceramic stuff break in the past.

"Why don't you put it in your carry-on?" Peter asked, after I was already more or less packed.

"That big bowl in my carry-on?" I was dubious. "I think it will be safer. I can take whatever you had planned to put in your carry-on."

So I took the bowl, already wrapped up in bubble wrap, and put it in my carry-on, and now the TSA agent wanted to take a look at it. Of course, it wasn't empty.

We had a lot of little things to bring back from Mexico after three months, and Peter had stuffed who-knows-what into the bowl before wrapping it in bubble wrap. So when the agent asked me what was in the bowl, I looked bewildered—which was not the look I was going for when being inspected by this serious agent.

"Peter!" I hissed. "What's in the bowl?" "Food!" Peter replied. "Food?" the agent asked.

Oh, great, I thought. Now this agent is going to be thinking we're bringing in a ham or something. We know the rules of what can and cannot come into the country. But some things are a little vague. Meat is out. Cheese is OK. Some fruits and vegetables are out. It's confusing, and I was worried that whatever Peter had put in the bowl might cause issues.

"Yup!" Peter said, apparently unworried. Well, it was my luggage after all, I thought.

The TSA agent proceeded to unwrap the bowl, tearing off the packing tape and taking a lot of time with the whole procedure. We had a connecting flight, and I was getting nervous, so I smiled even more broadly. At this point I was as curious as the agent to discover what was inside the bowl I had been blithely smuggling into the country.

Inside the bowl were several suspicious-looking bags. Inside the bags were lentils, chickpeas, chia seeds and shelled pumpkin seeds. The TSA agent looked up at Peter.

"Bunny food," he said. I couldn't tell if he was mocking Peter or simply making an official identification.

He wrapped the whole thing back up in the bubble wrap, and we went on our way.

"Bunny food!" I said to Peter, as we finally headed away from security.

We got home late. It was cold and rainy and so different from the sunny Mexico we had just left behind. In the morning, we learned we had both gained almost 10 pounds. Everything seemed a little dreary.

I unwrapped the brightly colored bowl. It looked wonderful in our apartment. I put Peter's bags of seeds on the counter for his morning breakfast.

I was glad we brought these things back from Mexico. As we get used to gray skies and cool temperatures up north, we need the comfort of a little extra color. And we certainly need a little extra bunny food.

Till next time,

Mikinna King and Georgia Taylor Dancing With The Montgomery County Stars Profile

Dancing with the Montgomery County Stars is the largest fundraiser for the Montgomery County Youth Service Bureau. Jason Anderson and Ashley Clute are the latest selections announced by the YSB.

The event is scheduled to be May 20th at Knowing Fieldhouse on the Campus of Wabash College and is to start at 6 p.m. The doors will open youth in the community until I was asked to be a Star and really dug into their services. I am very excited to fundraise and show my support for them!"

Georgia Taylor is a dance teacher and student, and a brand ambassador for EPN, which is a sports supplement brand. When not working, she likes to sketch, clean, play video games, and at 5 p.m.

Mikinna King is a realtor for Heard Real Estate Team | Exp Realty. In her spare time, she loves to hike, swim, and spend time with her animals. She also enjoys shopping, and spending time with her family and friends. She has lived in Montgomery County for eight years. She moved to Crawfordsville with her parents, Brian and Melissa King, and brother, Dylan, when she was 13. Not knowing anyone here, she very quickly got involved in different activities. She and her younger brother were involved in 4H, and also a part of the local homeschool group, CACHE. They live on a mini farm where they raise chickens, turkeys, and goats. She also has quite a few dogs and cats. After moving to Crawfordsville her mom became ill with Lyme Disease and stayed home and homeschooled her and her brother. She loves any music with a good beat, but one of her favorites that makes her dance every time is "Classic" by MKTO. When asked to be a Star, Mikinna says, "I was shocked! I've been to the event before and it was always such a great experience. Never in a million years did I think I would be asked to be a Star! But I am so excited to be participating!" Mikinna wanted to participate in the YSB fundraiser because, she said "I thought this fundraiser would be a great way to give back to the community, as well as show support for such an amazing organization. I didn't realize how much the Bureau did for the choreograph dance. She has lived in Montgomery County for 18 years. She is the oldest of six children, four girls and two boys. Her mother is a SAHM and homeschooled her all the way, preschool through her senior year of high school, and she is continuing with the rest of her siblings as well. Her sister is at Anderson University preparing to graduate in Media Arts and Dance, and the next oldest is preparing for college and getting ready to graduate high school at 17 years old. Georgia says, "I'm very proud of my mom for pushing us and staying strong through teaching us all." Georgia danced for Crawfordsville Academy of Dance for 16 years, learning the Italian ballet and classical dance techniques. Eight of those years she auditioned for and participated in the CAD Jr. and Company as well. She also danced a year in Gainesville, GA, when her family moved away for my father's work, and there she had her first taste of Russian ballet. Georgia loves all kinds of music and dance, but says, according to her phone, she listens most often to alternative and hip hop/rap. She decided to participate as a pro in the fundraiser because she is very passionate about dance. "And after our initial meeting and talking about the YSB and what kind of impact we're actually making by doing this show, I'm even more motivated to give it my best shot. I had no idea how much they do for the children of our community, so I am definitely proud to be able to help in this way."

All-New Honda Accord & Subaru Crosstrek Immigrate To Indiana

Honda recently celebrated forty years of building the Accord at its plant in Marysville, Ohio – the first domestic assembly plant for the automaker. By 2025, the just-redesigned Accord will transfer to Greensburg, Indiana as Honda refocuses Ohio operations on EVs. Similarly, Subaru has long built models like the Outback, Legacy, Impreza, and Ascent in Lafayette. For 2024, the Impreza migrates back to Japan while the all-new Crosstrek takes its place. It's all good news for Indiana.

2023 Honda Accord Sport Hybrid
 "The all-new 11th-generation Accord is essential to our lineup as a critical driver of brand loyalty, and with hybrid models representing 50% of sales, a key part of Honda's electrification strategy," said Mamadou Diallo, vice president of Auto Sales, American Honda Motor Co., Inc. "This is our best Accord ever, a true benchmark in its class, offering an unbeatable combination of style, efficiency, performance and connectivity."

I recently had a chance to drive an Accord Hybrid Sport nearly 600 miles over Interstates and hilly two-lane backroads between Indianapolis and southern Kentucky. Like every Honda, the Accord feels like deep in its soul live a couple of racing engineers striving for excellence.

The latest hybrid provides a sportier driving experience whether taking the kids to class or carving up tight two-lane roads through bourbon country. Combined with a 2.0-liter Atkinson cycle four-cylinder engine, the system produces 204 horsepower and 247 lb.-ft. of torque. That's adequate if not stellar, but the continuously variable transmission was programmed to feel more like a traditional geared automatic. Fuel economy is rated a stellar 46/41-MPG city/highway.

I enjoyed driving it very much. Eco, Normal, and Sport modes adjusted throttle responsiveness to my mood, but the tight suspension, quick steering, and 19" alloy wheels gave confidence to have some fun. Adaptive cruise, automatic emergency braking, blind spot warning, lane keep assist, and rear cross traffic alert kept me safe.

You may never guess the advanced powertrain by looking at the Accord Sport. Its sleek understated shape is handsome, if not especially glitzy. Inside, the feel is more Civic Sport with a thick leather-wrapped steering wheel, firm supportive seats, and clear gauge cluster. A strip of mesh plastic hides the dash air vents. Tap into Apple CarPlay- and Android Auto-connected devices through a super simple touchscreen. Using navigation and streaming music was super easy. Soft-touch materials, aluminum pedals, and leather shift knob amp the premium feel.

The Honda Accord Sport Hybrid starts at just $31,895, making it very competitive with the Toyota Camry Hybrid, Hyundai Sonata Hybrid, and Ford Escape Hybrid.

Preview - 2024 Subaru Crosstrek Wilderness
 The first two generations of the compact Subaru Crosstrek crossover were built in Japan while the compact Impreza on which it's based was built in Lafayette. As the U.S. market migrates from cars to crossovers, it makes sense to build the Crosstrek here and send the Impreza packing. Beginning with 2024 models, Crosstreks with the 2.5-liter engine will be built in Indiana. That includes the new Wilderness edition I recently previewed in California.

For those not in the know, Wilderness is Subaru's most adventurous trim. That means more exuberant style with aggressive black body cladding, black mesh grille, and 17" matte black wheels wearing Yokohama GEOLANDAR tires. An upgraded suspension allows 9.3" of ground clearance. Copper accents identify tow and mounting points.

Differentiating the Wilderness interior are vegan leather seats, copper trim, and LEDs under the tailgate for loading bikes and camping gear after sunset. Luxuries include dual-zone auto climate control, Harman Kardon audio, power moonroof, heated seats, wireless Apple/Android connectivity, and wireless phone charger.

Fortifying off-road capability is a 2.5-liter four-cylinder engine, delivering 182 horsepower and 178 lb.-ft. of torque, to tow up to 3,500 lbs. Standard X-Mode configures the standard all-wheel-drive system for conditions like snow and mud plus hill descent control for easing down steep inclines. Out on the road, a new three-camera EyeSight system enhances adaptive cruise, automatic emergency braking, and lane keep assist.

This car makes so much sense one has to wonder

CASEY WILLIAMS

why it took so long for Subaru to offer a Crosstrek Wilderness because its short wheelbase and narrower track make it perfect for serious trails. It's also the kind of car, like the 1970s GL/DL, on which Subaru built its reputation in America. No matter, it's a pretty smart choice because this little crossover is sure to be in hot demand with a base price of $31,995.

Leaflets Three...Let It Be!

JOHN R. ROBERTS, M.D.
Montgomery Medicine

It appears that consistent warm weather has finally arrived in Indiana and people are finally able to get out to commune with nature.

This will probably result in a lot of rashes showing up in doctors' offices. Most of the rashes we see in the summer are caused by poison ivy, one of three plants in Indiana that are members of the genus Toxicodendron. This genus also includes poison sumac and poison oak.

The physical appearance of the poison ivy plant is highly variable, though it always has leaves in sets of three (see illustration). A memory aid from my Boy Scout days lets me recall what it looks like – "leaflets three let it be." However, not all leaves of three are poison ivy, and other plants, like Virginia Creeper, can have a similar appearance.

The rash of poison ivy, like most contact rashes, is caused by the reaction of the immune system to the plant's oil on the skin. When dealing with poison ivy, sumac or oak, it causes a typical rash, known as "rhus dermatitis."

In the case of poison ivy, oak and sumac, the offending chemical is the plant resin urushiol. This resin can be found on any part of the plant, including the leaves, stems, roots, and berries. Even if the plant is dead, or the leaves have fallen off, urushiol can remain active for up to five years. Urushiol is also found in mangos and the shells of cashew nuts.

To develop rhus dermatitis, you must be sensitized to urushiol. This means you have to have had a prior exposure to the resin to activate your immune system. The typical rash then develops on subsequent exposures. Between 15 to 30 percent of people require numerous repeated exposures to urushiol before they have any reaction at all. It's interesting to note that Native Americans, who have lived around these plants for centuries, react the least of any race.

The initial rash usually occurs 24 to 48 hours after exposure to urushiol. It appears as redness with blisters, usually found in a line where the plant brushed the skin. Areas of skin covered with clothing are generally spared unless the victim transfers the oil from clothing to skin that was covered (important health tip to males – if you've been handling plants, always wash your hands with soap and water before urinating).

People often have the misconception that fluid from the blisters can spread the rash. However, once the resin is washed off the skin with soap and water, the rash can no longer spread. People often wonder if it's not contagious, why does the rash seem to spread? This depends on the amount of resin the skin is exposed to. If an area is exposed to a large amount of urushiol, it will break out sooner after contact. Areas that get a smaller dose may not break out for up to two weeks after the exposure. Someone might also be getting repeated exposures from clothing or tools they were using or even from pets that might have the resin on their fur. The entire course of the rash may last up to a month or so if left untreated.

Treatment of rhus dermatitis is based on the severity of the rash. If you know you have touched poison ivy, wash the area of contact immediately with lots of soap and warm water. Minor rashes usually respond well to cool compresses and either topical or oral diphenhydramine (Benadryl®). Over the counter 1% hydrocortisone cream applied three to four times a day can also speed resolution, though you should not use it around the eyes or mouth, areas of the body that have thin skin, and very sparingly on children.

More severe cases may require a trip to the doctor. We usually prescribe a steroid cream, ointment, or sometimes steroid pills. Pills are usually prescribed if the rash is found on the face or around the eyes. Occasionally scratching the rash may cause a secondary bacterial skin infection. If this happens your health care provider may also prescribe antibiotics.

As always, an ounce of prevention beats a trip to the doctor. Know what the plant looks like. When you're in an area with possible poison ivy, wear long sleeves, pants, and gloves. Avoid rubbing your skin with clothing or gloves that have come into contact with vegetation. Take a hot soapy shower or bath as soon as possible. Wash your clothing in hot water as well.
