How Will My Wife's Social Security Be Affected By Her Teacher's Pension?

Dear Rusty: My wife, born in 1960, was a Texas school teacher for about 10 years and receives a $1,000 per month pension from that work. She didn't pay into Social Security while teaching, but she paid into it for about 23 years while working elsewhere. I paid into Social Security my entire life, the maximum in most years, so my SS benefit will be much greater than hers.

I understand there are some sort of penalties or restrictions on my wife's Social Security benefits and also for spousal benefits due to her school pension. Please share the process I can use to estimate my wife's Social Security and tell me if she can file for spousal benefits. Signed: Planning for the Future

Dear Planning: Because your wife has a Texas school teacher pension earned without contributing to Social Security, any SS benefits she is entitled to will be affected by two rules - first, by the Windfall Elimination Provision (WEP) which will reduce her personally earned Social Security retirement benefit and, second, by the Government Pension Offset (GPO) which will reduce any spousal boost (if she is entitled to one) to her own benefit.

The amount of the WEP reduction to your wife's personal SS retirement benefit will be computed using a special formula which considers the number of years she has contributed to Social Security through other (non-state) work. Since your wife became eligible for Social Security benefits in 2022 the maximum WEP reduction with 23 years contributing to SS will be $358. If your wife has already obtained an estimate of her Social Security retirement benefit, deduct $358 from that estimate and that will be pretty close to her actual SS retirement benefit when she claims. Social Security will figure out the exact amount of her WEP reduction when your wife applies, but you can also use Social Security's "WEP Calculator" for an estimate, which you can find at this link: www.ssa.gov/benefits/calculators/.

Whether your wife will be entitled to a "spousal boost" to her own Social Security retirement benefit depends on how your respective FRA entitlements compare, and the GPO. The base amount of your wife's spousal boost will be the difference between her pre-WEP FRA entitlement and 50% of your FRA entitlement. If your wife's normal FRA entitlement is less than 50% of your FRA entitlement, the difference is a "spousal boost" added to your wife's personal SS retirement

International Researchers Have Created An Algorithm That Uses Data Available Through Standard Patient Monitoring Practices

A Purdue University mechanical engineer and his international collaborators have developed a patent-pending method and algorithm to predict the recurrence of prostate cancer in patients treated by radiation therapy.

Hector Gomez, a professor in Purdue University's School of Mechanical Engineering, said data indicates the model-based predictors can identify relapsing patients a median of 14.8 months earlier than the current clinical practice.

Gomez said radiation is an effective treatment for patients of all ages to treat tumors ranging in risk from low to very high. According to Johns Hopkins Medicine, between 20% to 30% of patients will experience a recurrence after the five-year period, post-therapy.

"The detection of prostate cancer recurrence after radiation relies on the measurement of a sustained rise of the serum levels of a substance called prostate-specific antigen, or PSA," Gomez said. "However, the recurrence may take years to occur, which delays the

How To Navigate Your Medicare Options During The Annual Enrollment Period

(StatePoint) The average Medicare beneficiary in 2023 has access to 43 Medicare Advantage plans, the largest number of options ever, according to KFF. With so many plans to choose from, the Medicare and Prescription Drug Plan Annual Enrollment Period (AEP), taking place from October 15 to December 7, may be overwhelming and confusing.

"The Medicare Annual Enrollment Period is when you can shop for a new plan, if you want to," says Kate Long, consumer financial wellness advocate at Assurance IQ. "If you have a new doctor, are taking new prescriptions or if your existing plan simply no longer meets your needs, it could be time for a change."

As Long points out, shopping for a new plan doesn't necessarily mean you cannot stay with the same carrier. They may have multiple plans avail-

Digital Genealogy Resources

DELLIE CRAIG
Fresh Off The Shelf

In our June article, we covered the resources available on the Crawfordsville District Public Library website.

In this follow-up, we will explore other digital resources available that are fun ways to explore genealogy and the history of our county and state.

Providing a broad range of services and digital ephemera is the Indiana State Library collection and genealogy: <https://www.in.gov/library/collections-and-services/genealogy/>

MICHELLE OGDEN

license databases, state documents, and more. If you need help, located at the bottom of the page is Ask-A-Librarian, to connect with staff at the State Library.

A similar effort has been made by other Indiana institutions and libraries to share information on Indiana Memory: <https://digital.library.in.gov/> This project was made possible by a grant from the Institute of Museum and Library Services. While you can use the search box in the upper right-hand corner, my favorite thing to do is browse the collections. To browse, select either Collections Across Indiana or Collections Lists at the bottom of the Home page. On the Collections Across Indiana page, you can select a collection or use the Indiana map to select a county to view the collections for that county. Hovering your cursor over the county will bring up the name of each county. View historic Indiana maps, including old maps of the state parks, muster rolls from the Civil War, old photographs and works of art, trade catalogs from Indiana businesses, and so much more. Indiana Memory is a gold mine of state history. Purdue University also has e-archives, which can be found at <https://earchives.lib.purdue.edu/digital/> Included are many papers from famous astronaut Neil Armstrong, aviatrix Amelia Earhart and her navigator Fred Noonan, and other famous graduates. If you or a family member attended Purdue, search for them in the online version of the Debris yearbook (1889-2008). Early theses from the founding of Purdue to 1923 have also been digitized for online reading as PDF files. Medieval holdings, old photographs, Purdue periodicals, scrapbooks, and more have also been made available in the e-archives. The Purdue Archives also offers a reproduction service if you would like to order a high quality copy of a digitized item.

Another library that has digitized yearbooks is the Frankfort Community Public Library. Thanks to grant funding, scanned copies of yearbooks from Clinton Prairie, Clinton Central, Rossville, and Frankfort High Schools are available. The digital scans can be found on the Libby app for checkout using your Crawfordsville District Public Library card. While you are using the Libby app be sure to search for other genealogy books and magazines. Local library patrons also have access to the Hoopla app with their card. Hoopla provides access to The Great Courses, which has a Genealogy course that is a great starting point for beginning family historians. Hoopla also has some census records for checkout and a selection of hundreds of other genealogy books.

Genealogy and historic documents are more accessible with the digitization and preservation efforts of genealogists. You no longer need to travel long distances to look up references, you can view them at home. If you would like to learn more about researching your family tree, please visit the Marian Morrison Local History section on the second floor of the Crawfordsville District Public Library or the Local History webpage <https://www.cdpl.lib.in.us/services/local-history-and-genealogy/>. You can also make research appointments with the library's Local History Specialist by emailing drcraig@cdpl.lib.in.us For questions on using the Libby or Hoopla apps call (765-362-2242), or visit the library reference desk on the second floor. Library hours are Sunday 1-5 pm, Monday through Thursday 9 am-9 pm, and Friday and Saturday 9 am-5 pm.

-Dellie Craig is a Local History specialist and Michelle OGDEN is a Reference Library Assistant. Both work in the Reference and Local History Department at the Crawfordsville District Public Library.

The algorithm is based on a patient-specific mechanistic model, informed by the periodic PSA measurements for an individual patient. These measurements are part of the standard monitoring for prostate cancer patients who have undergone radiation.

"The PSA data is used in conjunction with the model to obtain patient-specific parameters that determine the PSA dynamics and serve as classifiers for recurrence," Gomez said. "In addition to recurrence identification, our model can be used for designing personalized PSA monitoring strategies. It can tell physicians the right time to investigate tumor recurrences and maximize the window of curability."

Gomez and his collaborators tested the method using retrospective data from a cohort of 166 patients.

"For each of these patients, we compared the time when our model first identified the recurrence with the standard medical practice," Gomez said. "We found that our method predicted recurrence a median of 14.8 months earlier."

Gomez said the model will be further developed to expand the population of patients who can benefit from it.

"Our current model can be used only for patients who do not receive any treatment additional to radiation," Gomez said. "Some patients receive radiation and hormone therapy simultaneously and cannot benefit from our method right now. We plan to extend the method to make it applicable also to patients who receive radiation and hormone therapy simultaneously."

Gomez disclosed the innovation to the Purdue Innovates Office of Technology Commercialization, which has applied for a patent from the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office to protect the intellectual property. Industry partners interested in developing and commercializing the innovation should contact Patrick Finnerty, senior business development and licensing manager in life sciences, at pwfinnerty@prf.org.

Hector Gomez is among the Purdue University faculty whose work is supported by the Purdue Institute for Cancer Research.

"There is an important need for prognostic technology like Hector's to be further developed to begin to predict which prostate cancer patients are at high risk so they can be followed more closely and monitored to verify the recurrence," said Timothy Ratliff, former director of the Purdue Institute for Cancer Research and Distinguished Professor of Comparative Pathobiology in the College of Veterinary Medicine. "I am proud that Purdue University has outstanding organizations like the Institute for Cancer Research that bring together faculty to generate new technologies that impact people's lives."

Facts about prostate cancer
In its Cancer Facts & Figures 2023 report, the American Cancer Society estimates that more than 288,000 new cases of prostate cancer will be diagnosed in the United States in 2023.

- It estimates more than 34,000 American men will die from prostate cancer in 2023.

- Early-stage prostate cancer usually shows no symptoms. The five-year survival rate of men with distant-stage disease is 32%.

The American College of Surgeons reports 1 in 8 men will be diagnosed with prostate cancer in their lifetime. Prostate cancer is the No. 2 cause of cancer-related death among men.

benefit. However, that base spousal boost will be reduced if taken before your wife reaches her FRA, and even further reduced by the GPO (the GPO reduction will be 2/3rds your wife's State of Texas pension, e.g., about $667). Any remainder left after these reductions to your wife's spousal boost will be added to her own WEP-reduced SS retirement amount, but if the remainder is $0 then no spousal boost will be given, and your wife will get only her WEP-reduced Social Security retirement amount.

FYI, Social Security's WEP and GPO provisions apply to anyone who has a pension earned without contributing to Social Security, including many public service retirees in the 26 states which do not participate in the federal Social Security program. I've published numerous articles about how these rules affect benefits, and also about the rationale behind both provisions, which you are welcome to review at this AMAC Foundation website: www.SocialSecurityReport.org.

able in your area. The important thing is finding a Medicare Advantage plan that addresses your unique healthcare and budgetary needs. To help you navigate your options, consider these tips from Assurance IQ:

- The first tip is to review your Annual Notice of Change, which should have been mailed to you before October 15. This document explains changes to your plan, such as providers, prescription drugs or services no longer covered. Make sure to review it carefully to understand if these changes could impact your plan benefits.

- Next, you'll want to assess your healthcare needs and financial standing. Are there services you know that you'll need in the coming year? If your finances have changed, can you still afford your current plan? Are you taking a new prescription that your current plan doesn't cover?

- Now it may be time to shop around. Before enrolling in a plan, make sure that your preferred doctor, specialists and any prescriptions you need are covered. Ask which out-of-pocket costs you will be responsible for. It's important to find an affordable plan for you.

- You could also speak with a licensed insurance agent about your needs. Prep for the conversation by having a list of your prescriptions on hand, having your Medicare card nearby, and having a list of your doctors and medical equipment you use. Knowing which company provides your medical equipment is also important. Be sure to also read the "Medicare & You" handbook that is mailed to all Medicare beneficiary households in late September. You can also find it online by visiting medicare.gov/medicare-and-you.

Medicare options are more expansive than ever. And while that makes the Annual Enrollment Period more complicated, the upside is that by doing your homework, you'll be more likely to find a plan that works for you.

SBOA Details Auditing Duties And Added COVID Responsibilities

By Whitney Downard
Indiana Capital Chronicle

The influx of billions of dollars in federal relief funneled through the state to Indiana's counties, cities and townships has increased the workload for the State Board of Accounts (SBOA) by 30%, as the entity audits local budgets and implements federal spending requirements.

"Lots of communities are kind of 'sitting on their money.' They're not spending it all on one place," said Kendra Leatherman, the general counsel for the SBOA. "They are taking a more budgeted approach to what they're doing and because of that, we don't anticipate that (30%) increase to go away until probably after (Fiscal Year) 2027."

SBOA is tasked with auditing local government's finances at a cost that cannot exceed 80% of the market rate, or roughly $262 per hour. The agency reported its full cost rate to be $129 per hour, or 49% of the market rate in the last year.

The department presented its annual report before the Legislative Council's Auditing and Financial Reporting Subcommittee on Thursday, detailing its traditional duties alongside its added workload from federal dollars and proposals for future legislative action.

The trouble with federal dollars

Communities receiving funds from either the CARES Act, the American Rescue Plan Act (ARPA) or the Bipartisan Infrastructure Law have until the end of 2026 to spend all of the funds, though various accounts have earlier deadlines.

Cris Johnston, the director of the Office of Management and Budget, noted that each pot of money had different missions for their dollars.

"The CARES Act was really looking in the rearview mirror, covering your cost of fighting the pandemic. It's pretty easy to identify a cost that you incur," Johnston said. "The ARPA and infrastructure dollars that came into the local units, you're looking forward."

Many, especially smaller municipalities, may not be familiar with a more forward-looking federal spending plan.

"A lot of times, in order to meet these federal guidelines, you have to put a plan together, submit it to the federal awarding agency and get them to sign off on that. Then you've got all of the terms that go behind that as well," Johnston said.

"It's a much more protracted planning process and execution process than it appears."

He said the latter may be why many municipalities are still carrying large balances. Additionally, the SBOA doesn't start the auditing process until someone has spent more than $750,000 — though that bar could increase to $1 million, based on federal regulations.

One of the problems several municipalities had encountered, Leatherman said, is not knowing the different procurement laws required when spending federal funds. Additionally, some units aren't checking to see whether their contractors have been suspended by the federal government and are thus ineligible for those dollars.

"That's pretty common; also, it's pretty easy to check," Leatherman said.

Traditional SBOA duties

In years where SBOA doesn't check billions in federal spending, it audits local units of government at least once every four years — though school corporations are audited every other year.

As part of their annual report before the Legislative Council, SBOA detailed the various entities who had faltered in their financial reporting or were noncompliant and potentially failed to make corrective actions.

Paul Joyce, the State Examiner, told the committee that municipalities have an opportunity to make a correction themselves before receiving a state notice. He said that repeated mistakes not only hurt their finances but also take valuable state resources.

"There's times in the past where we wrote (the same thing) 13 times in a row ... it's a real waste of time to go back and write the same thing up all the time but you get no results," Joyce said.

Twenty-five entities had no submitted corrective action plan — though their local officials had met with SBOA about the repeat findings — and an additional 63 had issues appearing in three or more public reports. Hundreds of other units had demonstrated progress.

SBOA asked the committee to place additional, public pressure on these entities to address their books in the form of a written letter. But lawmakers noted violations ranged from minor issues of internal records on bank reconciliations to more serious issues such as overdrafted cash balances.

"If this doesn't work, then let's have a discussion about what's that next step. Because at some point in time ... we'll need bank records; we'll need internal controls," Joyce said.

Whether it's complying with federal requirements for funds or tidying the books, Joyce and Leatherman repeatedly said that SBOA has those resources and training available to municipalities — but not everyone took them up on that offer.

Planning for the 2023 session

With the legislative session just months away, SBOA introduced a handful of proposals for lawmakers to consider in preparation — including small tweaks such as requiring county auditors to report their attendance at mandated state trainings.

Bigger changes include designating some of their employees involved in fraud investigations as part of a 'Criminal Justice Agency,' a label that allows those auditors access to certain law enforcement databases during the course of their investigation.

Additionally, the department wants to codify what audits are shielded from the public, such as internal risk assessments.

"For anyone that works in the private sector, everyone knows that internal audits are confidential. They're supposed to be for management ... for decision-making," said Leatherman. "They're not supposed to be out there for everyone ... (but) because we work in government, there's a little bit of a question on how far that confidentiality goes."

Lastly, Leatherman said several local officials had been accused and held civilly accountable for using their office to supplement their incomes, which in turn inflates their state pensions. Nothing bars that person from running again for office and, additionally, SBOA can't claw back the inflated pensions, meaning that the individual continues to earn money from the state.

Leatherman proposed lawmakers consider a fix that would recognize this theft of public property, which can also include non-monetary benefits.
