Ask Rusty - About Taxation of Social Security Benefits

Dear Rusty:

I am past my Social Security full retirement age, and I am still working. I am married and we file our income tax jointly. My husband is 64 and is not working now, but he may, or may not, be able to work in the next year or so. At what point will my Social Security benefits be taxed, if I decide to take them now?

Signed: Worried About Taxes

Dear Worried:

Many Social Security recipients are surprised to find that their benefits may be considered taxable by the IRS, so I welcome the opportunity to clarify this topic for you.

Whether or not your Social Security benefits are taxable depends on your overall combined taxable income for your IRS tax filing status. Taxation of Social Security benefits for a married couple (filing jointly) depends on your combined income as a couple, which is called your "Modified Adjusted Gross Income" (MAGI) by the IRS. Your MAGI consists of your normal Adjusted Gross Income (AGI) on your IRS tax return, plus 50% of the SS benefits you received during the tax year, plus any non-taxable interest you may have had.

If your MAGI (filing jointly) exceeds $32,000, then 50% of the SS benefits you received during the tax year becomes taxable, but if your MAGI as a couple exceeds $44,000 then up to 85% of your received SS benefits becomes taxable (at your standard IRS tax rate). Note that these tax thresholds are less for those who file their taxes as a single - e.g., for someone whose IRS filing status is "single," half of their Social Security benefits become part of their taxable income if their personal MAGI is over $25,000, and up to 85% of their SS benefits are taxable if their individual MAGI is over $34,000.

Another factor often misunderstood is that

Doctors' Tips for a Healthy and Safe Holiday Season

(StatePoint) The holiday season is a joyous time of year, but it can also throw your wellness routines out of alignment. Doctors advise prioritizing healthy choices during this period, so you can start 2025 on the right foot.

"Everyone's holiday wish is to be happy, health and safe, but the season is often a time for overindulgence in food and drink, increased stress and exposure to respiratory illness," says Bruce A. Scott, M.D., president of the American Medical Association (AMA).

50 years. Five decades. A very long time that in many ways seems like yesterday. Yep, you guessed it - been writing historical articles that long and I can still remember my first article that was published. I wrote one for Steve Thompson who had a genealogy article in the old Montgomery Magazine (Pat Cline editor) but my name wasn't on it. No biggie - it was still a thrill!

From that, Steve went up north to teach and thus Pat asked me with a big smile to take over the genealogical article over (she loved it that my writing is more Little House on the Prairie style vs technical) and I entered into the wonderful world of sharing history. I have always loved history - a natural I guess as my paternal grandmother was born and raised in Italy and she loved to share stories with me (two brothers, two male first cousins so I spent lots and lots of time with my Nona and heard many stories many multiple times but never got tired of them - ever). My dad used to tell me I was born a history buff. Been in many clubs (DAR; Genealogy; Historical ...) pertaining to such and written so many articles, I'd really not be able to tell you how many. Fairly sure I'd not be remiss of saying over 1,000. I've written other things too - a how to write column, children's lit one, other historical pieces for nearby counties, a booklet on early doctor's of MoCo and my big one: the book, Crawfordsville, Athens of Indiana. I also write little pieces, such as an OTD (On This Day - so & so happened to such & such) for two Facebook pages, Who's Who items for the three GenWeb pages I do (with a lot of help from hubs and many other wonderful folks).

When I came up with the idea of writing the Montgomery Memories, I was so thrilled to have a boss (thanks TT) who sees the value of the history of a community. I love genealogy as most of you know (I actually go beyond that - it is my passion - I live and breathe it) but I really have had as much fun with the local folks' genealogies as I do our family's. Right, I don't find Kings and Queens or Adam and Eve for all of the local folks but there is almost always someone interesting in the subject's past as well as about whom I chose to write.

I realized a few weeks ago that I am about out of a couple of things that it takes to do well in the local history world. One was ideas and two steam. So, I told Tim I was going to hang it up at the end

THREE THINGS You Should Know

- The seemingly never-ending controversy over daylight savings time is in the news again - mostly because between bedtime Saturday night and church Sunday morning, we Hoosiers will "fall back" an hour. Yes, daylight savings time in the U.S. begins on the second Sunday and March and ends on the first Sunday in November. So if you are up at 2 a.m. Sunday morning, and if you don't have one of those clocks that do it automatically, re-set the clocks to 1 p.m. - and just our advice, but go to bed and enjoy an "extra" hour of sleep!
- The Indiana DNR plan for the strategic direction of the DNR Division of Forestry is now available for public comment at on.IN.gov/forest-management. Hoosiers are also invited to attend public meetings in November or December to learn more about the five-year strategic plan and ask questions. The meetings will be held Nov. 6, Nov. 14, and Dec. 4. Comments will be accepted online through Dec. 17 at 5 p.m. Meetings will take place at Fort Harrison, Salamonie Lake and Spring Mill State Park.
- Our friends at Thelines.com have come up with Hoosiers' favorite pro teams, based on Google search data over the last 12 months for all 125 Major League sports teams in the U.S. No big surprise, but the Indianapolis Colts finished first (hey, at least they finished first in something). Of course that was before the quarterback decided he was too tired to play. Our Pacers finished third, surprisingly behind the Chicago Cubs. Chicago struck again at No. 4 with the Bears and the Cincinnati Reds were fifth?

OBITUARY

Robert Alan Surface

May 5, 1955 - October 29, 2024

Robert "Bob" Alan Surface, age 69 of Crawfordsville passed away on Tuesday, October 29, 2024 at Franciscan Health Lafayette. He was born in Crawfordsville on May 5, 1955 to the late Thomas and Sandra (Harwood) Surface.

Bob graduated from South Montgomery High School in 1974 and went on to attend Purdue University. He worked at Crown Cork & Seal for 25 years and then retired from Whitesville Mill Service, where he was a Scrap Yard Manager. Bob owned Surf and Son Lawn and Garden with his son, Beau.

Bob married the love of his life, Tammy Kay Tauscher, on October 2, 2010. Throughout his life, Bob appreciated camping with his family at Nevins Campground, located on Raccoon Lake. He enjoyed deer hunting, fishing, gardening, processing gold and silver, and feeding his koi fish. Bob loved spending time with his family, especially during the holidays. He was a master grill and smoker. Bob was well known for roasting hogs in New Market for the Fire Department Hog Roast and was famous for his BBQ sauce. Bob also enjoyed mushroom hunting with Beau. He was a member of the Masonic Lodge in Crawfordsville.

Bob will be deeply missed by his wife, Tammy; son, Beau (Abby) Surface; daughter, Lori (Jeff) Pollard; siblings, Jeanie Surface Cummins and Anita Jo (Rich) Blanford; grandchildren, Jaleeza, Henley, Remi, Ada, Collin, Cora, Nella, Tyler, Dani, and Eli; stepchildren, Shelly (Tilmer) Paulson and Tony Fifer; his beloved fur babies, Doodle and Winnie; and several nieces and nephews.

A visitation will be held for Bob at Sanders Funeral Care, 315 S. Washington Street in Crawfordsville on Saturday, November 2, 2024 from 11:00am until the time of funeral service at 1:00pm. Burial will follow at Oak Hill Cemetery South. Share memories and condolences online at www.SandersFuneralCare.com.

Election Trust and Integrity is My Duty as Your Secretary of State

DIEGO MORALES
 Guest Columnist

As Indiana's Chief Election Officer and as an immigrant elected to a statewide office, my duty is to do everything I can within my authority to ensure that our elections are conducted in a lawful, accountable, and trustworthy manner for all Hoosiers.

It's entirely appropriate for election administrators, starting with myself, to respond to concerns that non-U.S. citizens can register to vote and vote, under what is basically an "honor system" for the citizenship qualification. Concern about the ease at which a non-citizen may register to vote and cast a vote, have been expressed to me directly from voters and local election officials, and is not far-fetched or unreasonable.

There has been a critical outcry from some, that not relying of the "honor system" for U.S. Citizenship is somehow mean spirited or unpatriotic. I disagree. I'm sure virtually no respectable Hoosier would try to sneak into a Taylor Swift concert, or attend a Colts game, or board a commercial airline, without a ticket, or carrying a prohibited item. Still, despite our trust in people's honesty, it's virtually unquestioned that everyone attending a concert or game, or boarding an airplane, will be asked for their ticket and screened for dangerous, prohibited items. Asking everyone is not discriminatory, accusatory, mean-spirited, or unpatriotic – it's basic common sense. In another context, President Ronald Regan once famously said "trust but verify". Asking 70,000 Colts fans to show their ticket and pass security screening is not a challenge to their integrity or an effort to lower game attendance. Likewise, unobtrusive screening for non-U.S. citizens who may have intentionally or unknowingly registered to vote is not casting dispersion on all who are eligible to vote.

People would not visit a doctor or hospital, board a commercial airline, or entrust their child to a licensed daycare center, if they did not have confidence that government agencies had done their duty to assure that everyone conducting those activities met required qualifications. As a matter of duty, and in the interest of integrity and assurance, government should respond to any reasonable concern that any government regulated provider may lack required qualifications.

I do not believe or suspect that 585,774 non-citizens are on Indiana's voter registration list. I know for a fact however, that there are some non-U.S. citizens on Indiana's voting rolls who have been issued a government ID which would allow them to vote.

As a naturalized immigrant myself, I know the process to U.S. Citizenship. I know that federal and state laws for resident aliens, parolees, even illegal migrants, have holes that can be exploited for voting. Here are a few real examples:

Recently, a non-citizen contacted my office explaining that he had registered to vote, and wanted to know how to cancel his registration, which he recognized was illegal and might derail his hopes for immigration. He was directed to a state form to complete and submit for that purpose.

The question remained, how had he become registered in the first place? His voter file included a completed and signed voter registration form. In Box 10, where an individual attests that they are a citizen, he had correctly checked "NO". Pursuant to law his completed registration form was forwarded to a county voter registration office, where a clerical mistake entering his information into the computerized voter registration database had been made. This was not the individuals fault.

A second example came directly from a County Clerk. A registered voter in her district asked if they needed to be a citizen to vote. The Clerk explained the law, and through the conversation discovered that the individual had been unintentionally prompted to register to vote during a visit to an Indiana BMV branch.

This example is the most common way that non-citizens end up on Indiana's voter registration list. The National Voter Registration Act provides that most federal and state government agencies that provide services or assistance to the public must inquire about voter registration and offer forms and assistance with registering. Some government agencies provide aid and assistance to individuals in need, without regard to residency, immigration status, or citizenship.

only a portion of SS benefits are added to your income amount taxed by the IRS. The amount added – somewhere between 50% and 85% of the SS benefits received during the tax year (depending on your MAGI) – becomes taxable income at your normal IRS tax rate.

So, in your case, if you claim your SS benefits now, and your combined income (your MAGI) exceeds the above levels for a married couple, then a portion (either 50% or up to 85%) of your SS benefits received during the tax year will be included in your income taxable by the IRS. Note, too, that it is possible to have income tax withheld from your Social Security benefits by submitting IRS form W-4V to your local Social Security office. You can download this IRS form at www.irs.gov/pub/irs-pdf/fw4v.pdf.

these steps during the holidays:

1. Vaccines are a safe and remarkably effective defense from a number of serious respiratory viruses that circulate in the fall and winter. To protect yourself and your family, get up to date on your vaccines, including the annual flu shot, as well as the updated COVID-19 vaccine for everyone 6 months and older. Vaccines are also available to protect older adults from severe RSV. Tools to protect infants during RSV season include maternal vaccination as well as the monoclonal antibody immunization. If you have questions, speak with your physician and review trusted resources, including getvaccineanswers.org.

2. Watch what you eat. Pay particular attention to labels and avoid processed foods as much as you can, especially those with added sodium and sugar. Consider having a healthy snack before the big meal or offer to bring a healthier dish for the holiday spread. Drink water instead of sugar-sweetened beverages, and eat nutritious, whole foods like fresh fruits and vegetables alongside richer holiday fare.

3. Stick to your exercise schedule and prioritize physical activity during this busy time of year. A good rule of thumb for adults is at least 150 minutes a week of moderate-intensity activity, or 75 minutes a week of vigorous-intensity activity. Brisk walks, bike rides, hikes and even family-friendly sports like basketball and touch football are good for heart health.

4. Use time with relatives to find out whether your family has a history of type 2 diabetes or cardiovascular disease, and whether other family members have been told they have prediabetes. With this information, you can better understand your risk and take charge of your health.

5. Prioritize your mental health. Factors like holiday spending and navigating time with extended family can bring on extra seasonal stress. You can help manage stress by getting sufficient sleep, exercising and seeking help from a mental health professional when you need it.

6. Make smart choices and plan ahead if you're driving. In December 2021 alone, 1,013 Americans died in alcohol impaired-driving crashes. Do not drive under any circumstances if you intend to drink. And if you are the designated driver, make a 100% commitment to sobriety.

7. Be prepared when traveling. Whether you're flying or taking a road trip, you might be tempted to grab convenient, unhealthy food for the journey. Consider packing your own snacks, such as fresh fruits and vegetables or small portions of dried fruits and nuts.

8. Get New Year's resolutions started early. Speak with your doctor or health care professional about quitting tobacco and nicotine use, and declare your home and car smoke-free to eliminate secondhand smoke exposure.

"The holiday season is a wonderful time to reconnect with family and friends – it's also a chance to reconnect with your physical and mental health," says Dr. Scott.

Before I became a naturalized citizen, I recall visiting a BMV branch and being asked if I wanted to register to vote. I knew enough English to say no, others however, may lack sufficient English comprehension to understand what was being asked or the ramifications.

Indiana has been a model for election laws, and frankly, I don't anticipate learning that many non-citizens have landed on our voter registration rolls. Still, voter concerns about non-citizens unfettered access to registration and voting exists, and even looms large for the important upcoming election. I'm not about to dismiss Hoosier's concerns without first inquiring into the facts.

My sincere hope is that USCIS will respond to my request to confirm citizenship for Indiana registrations made without credentials that can help confirm U.S. citizenship. Hopefully the activity will demonstrate to concerned Hoosiers that the issue is relatively small and limited. I hope that this can serve to increase confidence in our elections and among our citizens.

When you vote on Election Day, I hope you will see "Indiana Voters Bill of Rights" posters in English and Spanish displayed at your polling location as well as signs laying out some basic requirements to vote: an unexpired government issued photo ID, and U.S. citizenship.

During the first 22 months of my term as your Secretary of State hardly a day has passed that I have not devoted some time and effort encouraging eligible Hoosiers to register to vote and to vote in our elections. I hope more Hoosier voters than ever vote on November 5th, including a record number of naturalized Hoosiers like me, and that they do so with confidence that my office has done all that it can to ensure the integrity of our elections.

Diego Morales is Indiana's Secretary of State.

People with Medicare Need to Know About Medicare Open Enrollment

#1 Open Enrollment is from Oct. 15-Dec. 7
This is the one time each year you can review, compare and make changes to your Medicare health and prescription drug plans for next year.

#2 Compare Plans Every Year
Medicare plans change every year and so can your health. By comparing options, you could save money, find a coverage option better tailored to you or both.

#3 New for 2025
All Medicare plans will include a $2,000 cap on out-of-pocket costs for covered prescription drugs. The cap only applies to drugs that are covered by your plan, so it's more important than ever to check to make sure your drugs are covered.

#4 Start with the Official Medicare Source
Medicare.gov and 1-800-MEDICARE are the official sources for unbiased Medicare information. Start at Medicare.gov and click on "Find Plans Now." You can input the list of prescriptions you are taking and do a side-by-side comparison of plan coverage, costs and quality ratings.

#5 Struggling with Prescription Drug Costs?
Extra Help is a Medicare program that can help pay for your drug coverage (Part D) premiums, deductibles and other costs. If you make less than $23,000 a year ($31,000 for married couples), it's worth it to apply. Go to ssa.com/ExtraHelp.

Back in the Day with Butch Dale

Today there are many movie stars and singers who are cult heroes to many of their fans. Back in the 1920s silent film era and then in the golden age of movies, one of the most popular movie stars was Greta Lovisa Gustafsson, who was born in Sweden in 1905. Yes, she was a true star and cult figure ... the amazing Greta Garbo.

Soil & Water Offers Women's Learning Circle

The Montgomery County Soil and Water Conservation District is back with another Women's Learning Circle on Nov. 12 from 9 a.m.-3 p.m. This free event will give you a foundation of soil health knowledge and resources to help you better manage your land and make the best possible decision regarding your lands future.

The Learning Circle will be led by women conservationists from around our area. Organizations include NRCS, Purdue Extension, CCSI, and the State Association of SWCDs. After a morning full of discussions and demonstrations there will be a free lunch and tour of a working farm and cover crops in the afternoon. The address and lunch options can be found in the sign-up form. Registration is mandatory for this event to make sure there is enough supplies for everyone.

To sign up you can scan the QR code below, call the SWCD office at (765) 362-0405 ext. 121 or email programs@montgomerycoswcd.com. While this event is free, spaces are limited so sign up soon!

Learning Circles are a great opportunity to expand your network with fellow landowners in the area and share ideas and experiences. No matter the amount of land you or your family owns, the health of the natural resources on it is important not only for you and for your future descendants as well.

Ranking Big Ten (Plus Eight's) Hardwood Coaching Jobs From Top to Bottom

KENNY THOMPSON
Columnist

On the eve of the first Big Ten (plus eight) men's basketball season, let's rank the coaching jobs in the conference from best to worst.

History plays a role in my rankings, as does recruiting area, coaching and NCAA tournament success.

Indiana

If this were 25 years ago, the Hoosiers would be the unquestioned best Big Ten program. But since Bob Knight was fired by university president Myles Brand in 2000, IU has gone through six head coaches counting Dan Dakich's seven-game stint after Kelvin Sampson was dismissed in 2008.

To put that in perspective, Purdue has had two head coaches since 1980.

The Hoosiers have so many advantages. Older fans remain loyal to Knight and passed along that passion to their children and grandchildren. Despite the best efforts of the Indiana High School Athletic Association to make sure every youth gets a trophy, the state remains fertile basketball soil.

Assembly Hall remains one of the Big Ten's, and the nation's, toughest places to play.

UCLA

I could almost write the same things about the Bruins, winners of 11 national championships and owners of at least 11 NCAA tournament success records.

As every basketball fan knows, UCLA has its own coaching icon in John Wooden. Wooden's 10 national championships remain the gold standard. But since Wooden's retirement after winning the 1975 national title, the Bruins have gone through 11 coaches.

Jim Harrick was the only one of those 11 to win a national championship (1995) but lying about a recruiting violation cost him his job a year later. Larry Brown also exited after NCAA violations voided the 1980 tournament run to the title game.

For the others leading up to current coach Mick Cronin, not being John Wooden soon led to resignations or outright dismissals.

While passed by in prestige in recent years by schools like Duke and Connecticut, UCLA remains a destination school and can recruit nationally. It remains to be seen if the move to the Big Ten will benefit the Bruins.

Michigan

A strong recruiting base across the Midwest and a reputation for outstanding academics are two factors in the Wolverines' favor.

In my lifetime, the difference between the right coach (Johnny Orr, Steve Fisher, John Beilein) and the wrong coach (Brian Ellerbe, Tommy Amaker and most recently, Juwan Howard) makes the difference between an NCAA championship contender and a Big Ten also ran.

It says something about the Michigan job that new coach Dusty May chose the Wolverines over Louisville and other prominent vacancies when he chose to cash in on Florida Atlantic's 2023 run to the Final Four. Taking the Michigan job may have closed the door on the 2000 Indiana graduate returning to Bloomington in the foreseeable future.

Michigan State

Purdue isn't the only Big Ten school with long-term stability. Jud Heathcote and protégé Tom Izzo have been the faces of the Spartans program since 1976.

Each has a national championship built on the foundation of in-state recruits (Magic Johnson and Greg Kelsey in 1979; Mateen Cleaves, Morris Peterson and Charlie Bell a.k.a. "The Flintstones" in 2000).

The winningest coach in Big Ten basketball history, Izzo has also built a reputation that his teams play their best basketball in March with eight Final Fours to his credit.

Ohio State

Football is king in Ohio, but basketball is the crown prince.

The legendary Jerry Lucas and John Havlicek delivered a national title to Columbus in 1960. That squad began a five-year streak of outright or shared Big Ten titles.

But the end of the Thad Matta era began a decline in Ohio State's basketball fortunes. Fans and Ohio State officials hope Jake Diebler can bring the school its first Big Ten title since 2012.

Purdue

Ask any casual Big Ten basketball fan which school is the league's winningest program. You could probably give them three guesses and most probably wouldn't answer Purdue.

From 1980 to last year's run to the NCAA championship game, Gene Keady and Matt Painter have combined for 11 of Purdue's Big Ten-best 26 championships, 959 victories and a winning percentage of .669. Keady is in the Naismith Memorial Basketball Hall of Fame and Painter will likely join him someday.

But perception is reality and Purdue is the only school among my top seven Big Ten jobs not to win an NCAA national championship. Its three best chances were blocked by two all-time great teams (1969 UCLA, 2024 Connecticut) and a cheater (Larry Brown and UCLA in 1980).

Since Bob Knight's angry exit from Indiana in 2000, Purdue has slowly eroded the Hoosiers' in-state recruiting dominance. Last season's NCAA runner-up had eight scholarship players from Indiana, including Mr. Basketball winners Braden Smith and Caleb Furst. The 2024-25 roster has seven native Hoosiers.

Mackey Arena is arguably the best basketball facility in the Big Ten and inarguably the loudest. If Painter can build off the school's first Final Four appearance in 44 years, perhaps Purdue could rise a couple of spots in these rankings.

Oregon

Nike co-founder Phil Knight was a year old when the Ducks won the first NCAA men's basketball championship in 1939.

It just seems like Knight, the co-founder of Nike, has spent his life trying to buy title No. 2 for Oregon. Having a billionaire benefactor plus the cool factor of having colorful uniforms and basketball courts keeps Oregon among the higher profile schools.

The right coach makes a difference with so many programs, and Oregon hit the jackpot in 2010 when it lured Dana Altman away from Creighton. In addition to being the only coach in school history to lead his team to three consecutive NCAA tournaments – a run that reached five in a row – Altman won half of Oregon's eight conference titles between 2016 and 2021. Oregon reached just its second Final Four in 2017.

Illinois

The eternal mystery in Champaign-Urbana is why a school located in a basketball-crazy state and just a few hours drive from talent-rich Chicago cannot consistently be a Big Ten and NCAA title contender.

Over the last 60 years, neighbors Indiana and Purdue each have more Final Four appearances (a combined eight) and Big Ten titles (27 combined) than Illinois. Lou Henson won just one Big Ten title but reached the 1989 Final Four. Bruce Weber raised two Big Ten banners and took Illinois to the NCAA title game in 2005.

The Fighting Illini went 17 years without a Big Ten championship until Kofi Cockburn, Trent Frazier and Co. delivered in 2022 under Brad Underwood.

Underwood used the transfer portal to his advantage a year ago with Terrance Shannon and Marcus Domask joining forces with Coleman Hawkins to carry Illinois to the Elite Eight. Whether that can be a sustainable strategy remains to be seen.

Maryland

The Terrapins own a national championship, in 2002 during Gary Williams' successful tenure in the ACC. Williams took Maryland to seven Sweet 16 appearances between 1994 and 2003. But the Terrapins have been back to the Sweet 16 just once since, in 2016. Maryland also earned a share of its first Big Ten title in 2020 and finished 24-7 before COVID-19 wiped out the Big Ten and NCAA tournaments.

Maryland is within easy driving distance of some of the best basketball high schools in the nation. But since joining the Big Ten, the Terrapins have yet to put together a consistent program.

Wisconsin

Like their football team, the Badgers owe their identity on the basketball court to physical play and tough defense.

Thank Dick Bennett and Bo Ryan for bringing Wisconsin out of the basketball wilderness. Before Bennett arrived in 1995, the Badgers played in just two NCAA tournament: the 1941 national championship season and 1947.

Bennett and Ryan took the Badgers back to the Final Four a combined three times and to the NCAA tournament 19 times. Ryan's successor, Greg Gard, has two Big Ten titles to his credit.

Only a lack of a natural recruiting base is keeping the Badgers out of the top Big Ten echelon.

Iowa

It's difficult to believe the Hawkeyes haven't won a Big Ten championship since 1979 and made a Final Four since 1980, the year Purdue defeated Iowa in one of the last NCAA tournament third-place games.

In the ensuing seasons since Lute Olsen delivered a Big Ten title to Iowa City, nine schools have captured at least a share of a Big Ten championship. It's not been for lack of talent. Former national player of the year Luke Garza, B.J. Armstrong, Roy Marble, the late Chris Street and Brad Lohaus are among the standouts to have played inside Carver-Hawkeye Arena.

Current coach Fran McCaffery is entering his 15th season without reaching the second weekend of the NCAA tournament in that span. But his teams score lots of points and play an exciting brand of basketball. The fan base is passionate but the Iowa job is not a win-or-else proposition.

Minnesota

A tough job from the bitter winter weather in a football state to playing in the second-oldest arena in the Big Ten.

Williams Arena opened in 1928 but hasn't officially been home to a Big Ten champion since 1982. The Gophers' 1997 title and their lone Final Four appearance were vacated by the NCAA due to recruiting violations.

It's been a century since the final game of the winningest coach in school history. L.J. Cooke went 250-135-2 from 1896 to 1924.

Rutgers

The Scarlet Knights have had their moments, most notably in 1976 when they took a 31-0 record into the NCAA tournament and reached the Final Four. Since then, the state university of New Jersey has had just one other Sweet 16 appearance (1979). But enthusiasm for Rutgers basketball has grown under ninth-year head coach Steve Pikiell and cozy Jersey Mike's Arena (which seats 8,000) is a difficult place to play.

USC

Imagine playing in the same city as your archrival, 11-time NCAA national champion UCLA. At least Trojan fans have a brand name in football.

USC hasn't won a conference championship since 1985, and its most recent Final Four appearance came in 1954.

Nebraska

The Cornhuskers are the only major conference program without an NCAA tournament victory. Nebraska didn't qualify for its first NCAA tourney until 1986, and this past season marked just the school's eighth NCAA berth.

While Nebraska will probably always remain a football school, university officials have invested in the basketball program with the construction of Pinnacle Bank Arena and bringing in former Chicago Bulls coach Fred Hoiberg.

Washington

Stop me if this sounds familiar: the basketball program is overshadowed by football. The Huskies' basketball home, Hec Edmundson Pavilion, opened in 1927. Washington fared well in the various entities of the Pac-12, winning 24 conference championships. But NCAA tournament success has been rare with its most recent Final Four/Elite Eight appearance coming in 1953.

Penn State

Yet another football school on the lower half of this list but unlike some of its Big Ten peers, basketball appears to be an afterthought at State College.

Former Purdue assistant Micah Shrewsberry left Penn State for Notre Dame in 2023 after two seasons, with most of the roster following him out the door.

Success on the court has been rare. One conference title in school history, the 1991 Atlantic 10 postseason tournament. The school's lone Final Four came in 1954.

Northwestern

Chris Collins has been a miracle worker in Evanston, guiding the Wildcats to their only NCAA tournament appearances in 2017, 2023 and 2024.

But the program's ceiling is low. Its most recent Big Ten championship came in 1933. Newly renovated Welsh-Ryan Arena has a capacity of just 7,500. For all of Collins' efforts, he enters the 2024-25 season one game under .500 for his tenure (162-163). Northwestern hasn't had a coach leave with a winning record since Arthur Lonborg in 1950 with a mark of 236-203-1.
