Psalm 119:89 For ever, O LORD, thy word is settled in heaven. (KJV)

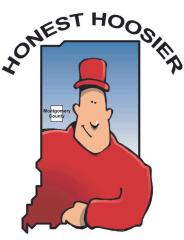

Meet Ryder

Ryder is an 8 year old medium size (SENIOR) male Terrier mix that has been at the AWL since 8/31/2022 (with breaks in foster homes with some of our amazing fosters). Ryder is a HAPPY BOY with a SUPERSTAR PERSONALITY! Look at that smiling boy! Ryder loves going for walks/jogs, playing fetch, and will gladly sit for treats. Ryder is house and crate trained. He makes virtually no messes and is such a lover. Ryder has been around other dogs at the shelter with no issues.

Ryder is neutered, dewormed, and up to date on his shots. Ryder is ready to go to his forever home! Ryder is looking for his best friend.

Could that be you? AWL is open Monday - Friday from 12:15p-5p and Saturday's from 9:30a-3p. Come say hi!

Why the outcry over the Department of Education? We all seem to agree that students aren't faring as well, yet we don't want to change anything? (And let's not forget that the federal DOE has only been around since 1980 – it's not like the founding fathers created it. In fact, pretty sure their idea was to leave it up to individual communities!)

Women's History Month: Looking Back and Moving Forward

30 years, the month of March has been officially recognized as Women's History Month, a time for

For more than remembering and celebrating women's experiences and contributions throughout this country's history.

Women's History Month began as a local, week-long celebration in the 1970s. It became a national affair in 1980 thanks to the efforts of a group of historians and women's organizations led by the National Women's History Project and a proclamation by President Jimmy Carter announcing the week of March 8, 1980 as Women's History Week.

In 1987, Congress passed a law designating March as Women's History Month. Every president since that time has followed through with official proclamations of Women's History Month.

Over the years, these presidential proclamations have highlighted women's contributions across a wide range of arenas. For example, President Reagan's proclamation in 1988 recognized women's achievements in "business, government, volunteer activities, religious life, education, health, the military, sports, the arts, and many other areas."

In another example, President George H.W. Bush's Women's History Month proclamation in 1991 identified numerous women by name. Some were historic firsts, including "Dr. Elizabeth Blackwell, the first woman in the United States to receive a medical degree." Others were artists and innovators, including author Flannery O'Connor and American Red Cross founder Clara Barton. Still others, he stated, are notable for "upholding the principles on which the United States is founded." These include Harriet Tubman and Harriet Beecher Stowe, who "became heroines in the struggle against slavery"; Lucretia Mott and Elizabeth Cady Stanton, who "also advocated the abolition of slavery as they championed woman's suffrage"; and Rosa Parks, "whose courage and resolve in the face of bigotry gave heart to an entire social movement" against racism.

In the first Women's History Month proclamation of the twenty-first century, President Bill Clinton similarly singled out individual women who were influential in a variety of fields, including astronaut Ellen Ochoa; Mary McLeod Bethune, "who, with only $1.50 in her pocket, founded a school for young black women"; Margaret Chung, "the first Chinese American woman physician"; labor organizer Dolores Huerta; photographer Margaret Bourke-White; and Air Force Lt. Col. Eileen Collins.

In addition to highlighting notable individuals, presidents Women's History Proclamations have identified women's participation and contributions to the United States more broadly. Twenty-five years ago, for example, President George W. Bush proclaimed for Women's History Month in

Butch Wonders If You Know Someone Like This

BUTCH DALE

I have known thousands of people during my lifetime, and each one has a distinct personality all Columnist their own. Let me tell you about one person who I have known since he was a toddler. I wouldn't say his personality was strange or abnormal, as I have met several others like him who share the same traits. But he is different in many respects.

As the oldest child, he received much attention and became quite independent. He was a fast learner, often copying the habits and actions of his parents and other adults, which sometimes led to a few problems. Although he had siblings, he seemed to enjoy doing things on his own. The same held true when he started school. He had many friends, but was hesitant to become close to anyone, and avoided becoming part of a clique. He wasn't lonely, unhappy, or antisocial. He enjoyed the company of others ... up to a point, but preferred solitude and quiet times

As a small child, there were many times when his parents had no idea where he had gone, but they need not worry. He might be laying in tall grass in a field, watching the clouds drift by. The boy may have climbed up into the haymow to read a book and gaze out the barn window on a rainy day. Sometimes he would sit on the roof of the house, scan the countryside and watch the headaches. But me having one? Not so much.

So, not sure what brought this one on. Could be the Indiana Legislature trying to run us out of business with their public notice campaign. Or maybe it's the statement they made about not cutting property taxes, but "cutting" the increase? Or maybe it's listening to Democrats' singing?

Dunno. But whatever the reason, I felt a doozy coming on.

The shrill ring of the phone didn't help.

"This here is a Cert-E-fied employment offer for one Tim Timmons," a nasal twang said.

"How would you like to have a career paying $50,000 or more just watering plants? Or how about turning on and off the automated lights in a health spa? Or how about . . . "

The nasal twang, the mangled pronunciation of certified, the ridiculous sales pitch . . . it could only mean one thing.

"Hello, Bubba."

For those who don't know him, Bubba Castiron is his own circus - if you took away the tents, elephants, ringmasters and acrobats and left the bumbling clowns. He makes the stereotype of a hillbilly redneck look like an Ivy League professor (before Ivy Leagues descended into the darker regions of wokedom).

"Dang, Timmons! How'd you know it was me?"

"Lucky guess, Bubba. But listen, I've got-"

"Now don't you go getting all high and mighty on me and say you got something impotent to do," Bubba said.

"Important."

"Hun?"

"Never mind. OK Bubba. What can I do for you?"

"I want to ask if you got religion, Timmons."

I was worried where this was going. Was Bubba about to launch into some sort of campaign that I didn't want or have time to hear? You never know what's coming next with Bubba. I just knew I had to be careful.

"If you're asking if I believe in God, you bet," I started. "In fact, one of my vows for Lent

THREE THINGS

You Should Know

- Indiana Newspapers are having a rally day at the Indiana Statehouse on March 19 and would love for you to come along. Here's the scoop. State lawmakers are trying to take legal notices out of newspapers and put them on a government website. Not only would that be like the fox guarding the henhouse, but it will cost taxpayers more than they are currently spending. It will also hurt, perhaps severely, some Hoosier newspapers. So at 11 a.m. newspapers from all over Indiana are going to the Statehouse to show our opposition to the move - and we hope readers join us! Newspapers are a part of Indiana history and an important part of an open government. The Founding Fathers thought so and put it right there in the First Amendment.
- Construction sector employment increased by 19,000 positions in February as all five nonresidential and residential segments of the industry added workers, according to an analysis of new government data by the Associated General Contractors of America. But association officials warned that uncertainty caused by tariffs and labor shortages could undermine future growth Nonresidential construction firms added 6,000 workers, with gains of 1,700 in building construction, 2,000 in specialty trades, am 30, 1,700 in building construction, 2,000 in specialty trades, and 2,500 in heavy and civil engineering construction. Residential construction employment climbed by 12,700, as homebuilders and other residential building construction firms added 100 positions and residential specialty trade contractors added 12,600.
- The state is accepting applications through March 24 for the 2025–26 Governor's Fellowship. The Governor's Fellowship places reliable for the section of reliable for reliable for the section of reliable for reli two years of full-time professional experience. OBITUARY

James Ratcliff

September 28, 1961 - March 5, 2025

James "Jim" William Ratcliff, age 63 of Kingman, passed away on Wednesday, March 5, 2025, at St Vincent Hospital in Indianapolis. He was born in Crawfordsville on September 28, 1961, to the late William Delbert & Edna Mae (Wethington) Ratcliff.

Jim graduated from Fountain Central High School. Throughout the years he worked at R.R. Donnelley's for 25 years and Subaru in Lafayette for 25 years. He enjoyed drinking, riding his motorcycle, and hanging out with friends.

He is survived by three sisters, Carolyn Cole of Michigan, Phyllis (Steve) Canfield of Crawfordsville, and Loretta (Dan) Milligan of Tennessee; his best friend, John Wolf; several nieces and nephews; and many friends.

He was preceded in death by his parents and a sister, Nancy Jean Ratcliff.

Cremation was chosen with a gathering at a later date. Sanders Funeral Care entrusted with care. Share memories and condolences online at www.SandersFuneralCare.com.

barn swallows dart back and forth. On many days, he walked back to the woods to enjoy nature, explore and rest by a small stream. Even when he accompanied his father to the nearby town where many people had gathered, this boy preferred to sit by himself on a wooden bench, lick his ice cream cone and watch the world go by.

When this boy became a high school student, he participated in sports and practiced with other boys. But he practiced more at home by himself ... shooting baskets down at the barn, or throwing a baseball on the barn roof and catching it as it came rolling down. He rode his bike to nearby ponds to fish, and made things from wood in his father's toolshed. He had inherited some of his mother's artistic skills, and spent many hours alone in his bedroom drawing and painting.

Well, the young man did well in school and enrolled in college. He married his high school sweetheart, an only child, who shared many of the same personality traits as him, and they were quite happy together. During his college years he got along well with his classmates and professors, but he did not join any clubs or organizations, or attend sports events. He was not one to socialize, and he read, studied, and completed his lessons alone in the college library. He enjoyed his classes immensely and subsequently made good grades. He and his wife enjoyed many activities in their free time, but rarely ever went out with other couples. They both preferred it that way.

Now you would surmise that this fellow chose an occupation in which he would not need to interact with people. Not so. Through the years, all of his jobs involved interacting with the public. He enjoyed teaching, assisting people, helping them solve problems, etc. during his working hours. But when back at home, he savored the quiet evenings away from the crowds to be with his wife and children and enjoy various hobbies. He considers himself a Christian, and prays each day, but he 2005 that "as mothers, sisters, and daughters, (women) bring compassion and integrity to our communities and help to teach our children the values that make our country great." With the Iraq War still under way, he went on to note that "women today ... join a long tradition of defending our nation. Today, more than 200,000 women are serving in our nation's Armed Forces and working to defend America and advance peace and freedom."

President Barack Obama's 2015 proclamation a decade ago focused on women's role in strengthening American democracy and economy. He noted that "through protest and activism, generations of women have appealed to the values at the heart of our nation and fought to give meaning to the idea that we are all created equal." He further observed that "women are nearly half of our nation's workers, and they are increasingly among the most skilled ... This increasing participation of women in our workforce has bolstered our economy and strengthened our families."

President Donald Trump's Women's History Month proclamation in 2020 also marked, in his words, "the centennial anniversary of the 19th Amendment to the Constitution, securing the right to vote for women." He took the opportunity to highlight how his administration empowering all women across the nation and around the world to continue pursuing their dreams and lifting humanity to new heights."

Finally, President Joe Biden's Women's History Month proclamation last year reminds us that women's historical achievements "have strengthened our nation and opened the doors of opportunity wider for all of us," but also that "there is more work ahead to knock down the barriers that stand in the way of women and girls realizing their full potential - in a country founded on freedom and equality, nothing is more fundamental."

According to the National Women's History Alliance, this year's Women's History Month theme is "Moving Forward Together! Women Educating & Inspiring Generations." It's an opportunity to look back at women's historical role as educators and mentors, and to think about how women can help lead the country through the challenges of the twenty-first century.

this year is to finish reading the Bible. I just wrapped up Ecclesiastes and-"

"Yeah, yeah," Bubba cut in. "Good to know, Timmons. And since you are reading the Bible, you are the perfect guy to ask something that's puzzling me and Big Country."

Big Country is one of the gang Bubba hangs out with at a seedy little joint named the Crawl-On-Inn. Bubba took me out there once but I couldn't find it again if I had to. It's somewhere between Bowers, Kilpatrick, Colfax and Clarks Hill. A guy named Elvis tends bar and Bambi, part-time waitress and part-time truck driver, takes care of food and drink orders – mostly drink. Tater, Gumball, Big Country and Bubba are there so much they probably ought to pay

"OK, Bubba. I'll play your silly game. What is it about religion that's got you calling?"

"Is you familiar with Jonah getting swallered up by a whale?"

"Sure, Bubba," I said. "God told Jonah to go to the sinful place of Nineveh and-"

"Yeah OK, Timmons. We know the story. The question we got is did a whale really swaller him up? I mean, OK, we believe that part. But Jonah lived inside that big ol' fish for three days and then done got spit up on shore? C'mon, Timmons. How likely is that?"

"Well Bubba, it's detailed pretty well in the book of Jonah in the Old Testament. If you-"

"Alive and breathing for three days? INSIDE a whale? C'mon, Timmons. This has to be one of them stories that is allergenic or something, right?"

"Allegorical." "Huh?"

"Never mind. Look Bubba. There's no definitive answer to your question. It boils down to a matter of faith and belief."

"Yeah, I guess," Bubba said. "Elvis said that we'll just have to wait until we get to heaven and ask him ourselves."

That gave me an idea! Bubba is always messing with me, so I thought I'd have some fun and really throw Bubba for a loop. "Well geez Bubba, you know that Jonah did defy God's command to go to Nineveh. What will you do if you get to heaven and he's not there?"

"Then YOU ask him, Timmons!"

All I heard was the howl of Bubba's laughter as he hung up the phone. Where's that aspirin bottle?

Two cents, which is about how much Timmons said his columns are worth, appears periodically on Wednesdays in The Paper. Timmons is the publisher of The Paper and can be contacted at ttimmons@ thepaper24-7.com.

doesn't attend church, although he believes it is beneficial for many people. What is more surprising is that this fellow ran for public office. Of course, in keeping with his personality, he did not campaign in public or go door to door to seek votes ... just one speaking appearance in all of the months prior to the election. But many people knew him and liked his ideas, and he won!

One thing that I have always noticed about this individual is that his mind always seems to be working. I am certain he talks to himself in various trains of thought. He prefers accomplishing tasks on his own, and after much thinking, makes decisions on his own. He may ask for an opinion or advice, but doesn't seem to need any validation or approval from others. This fellow now lives in an old farmhouse in a very sparsely populated section of the county. He has no desire to live in a fancy new house, or in a town or city. Like his childhood days, he is often difficult to track down. One might discover him walking down the country road, watching the birds and wildlife, enjoying the peace and quiet, watching the clouds drift by ... but his mind is always at work, thinking about the past and the future.

When I was a high school freshman, I read the classic book "Walden," written by Henry David Thoreau. Part of it stated, "Why should we be in such desperate haste to succeed, and in such desperate enterprises? If a man does not keep pace with his companions, perhaps it is because he hears a different drummer. Let him step to the music which he hears, however measured or far away."

I think that best describes this individual. There are many others like him. They value independence and selfreliance, and are willing to take risks. They believe each person should just be who they are. They feel that people should think and do things in their own way, rather than imitate others. Perhaps you are like that. You might even know the fellow who I have described. I see him every day...when I look in the mirror.
