Butch Recalls the Amazing Tribbett Brothers

BUTCH DALE Columnist

On a few occasions when I was a youngster, I accompanied my Dad when he visited Wesley "Wes" Tribbett, who lived in a little house on Madison street in Darlington. Wes was the town's superintendent of power and light, and had great knowledge of electricity, machinery, tools, etc. Dad often sought his advice concerning a problem at our house and farm. As they spoke, I noticed a model of an airplane that sat on the desk in Wes's living room. Like my Dad, Wes was a member of the local American Legion. Dad had served in the army during WWII, and later on I found out that Wes had also served our country in the war. When I taught history at Darlington school in the 1970s, I invited WWII veterans to speak to my classes . . . Wes Tribbett was my first speaker. I was amazed at the story of Wes and his three brothers during the war.

In 1942, at the age of 21, Wes enlisted for flight training in the Army Air Corps, and was commissioned as a 2nd Lieutenant. He became a B-29 command pilot and was assigned to the Pacific theater of operations, based on Saipan in the Mariana Islands, with the 20th Air Force, 73rd Bomber Wing. During the war, he flew 29 combat missions and two prisoner-of-war missions over Japan, separating from military service after the war with the rank of Captain. The students asked Wes many questions, and as he related his war adventures, the kids

How Tariffs Will Affect the Economy

The League of Women Voters, open to men as well as women, is a nonpartisan, multi-issue political organization that encourages informed and active participation in government. The Trump administration threatened to impose 25 percent tariffs on imports from Canada and Mexico on Feb. 1, delayed those tariffs by a month on Feb. 3, imposed them on March 4 and then delayed them another month on March 6. Meanwhile, tariffs have been imposed on Chinese goods, 10 percent in February, which was then raised to 20 percent on March 4. All this has left Americans wondering what to expect. Fortunately, both economic theory and history give us a pretty good idea of what effects tariffs would have on the U.S. economy.

A tariff is a tax and has the same effect as a tax on any other product such as cigarettes or gasoline. A tax puts a wedge between the price sellers receive and the price producers pay. In general, the price to consumers goes up and the price received by sellers goes down, though the allocation of the price change is determined by the demand and supply curves.

Economists usually assume that a country putting a tariff on a goods is facing a competitive world market and therefore consumers pay most of the tax. Indeed, a study of the 2018 tariffs shows that "close to all" of the tariffs were passed on to consumers in the form of higher prices.

Taxes also reduce the quantity of goods sold, so tariffs will reduce the quantity of imports. Domestic companies competing with imports will sell more of their goods, but companies using imported inputs will be hurt. For example, a steel tariff, by raising the price of steel, helps domestic steel producers but hurts domestic car manufacturers who purchase steel.

Tariffs also raise revenue, but the losses to consumers are greater than the revenue raised by the tariffs. Tariffs may also reduce growth because companies who are protected from competition have no reason to innovate.

Economists have studied the effect of the tariffs imposed by Trump in 2018 and estimate that the costs of tariffs to purchases of the products were $23.8 billion during the year, of which $15.6 billion went to the government as tariff revenue and $8.2 billion was lost to the economy.

History also alerts us to the secondary effects of tariffs.

Scattershooting While Wandering (Or Is It Wondering) Around

TIM TIMMONS Two Cents

Scattershooting while wondering whatever happened to Stanley Andrews . . .

I READ an interesting story from our friends at the Indiana Capital Chronicle about how small towns are trying to revitalize themselves again.

The regular eight or nine of you who read these scribbles won't be surprised to know that I'm a big fan of small towns - and, truth to tell, am excited about any efforts to help them stay alive.

But does anyone else find it ironic that in many cases, small towns hit a major bump in the road during school consolidations? Don't get me wrong, No cast stones here. The good folks who way back when served on school boards wanted to do right by students, and the idea that you could do better by combining resources made some sense.

But it's hard to argue that when those communities lost their school, they lost a piece of their heart and soul. We all know what happened next. Stores closed. People moved. And in some cases, the town just up and blew away like dust in the wind. In others, it became a shell of what it was.

The irony comes in now because a whole bunch of grants - some from the same government that closed the schools in the first place - are being made available. It's nice that our tax dollars are going to help revitalize important places, but if our tax dollars hadn't gone to take away those schools in the first place . . .

MANY THANKS to several of you who responded to my question about a possible trip to Israel. To be clear, this is not going to happen anytime real soon - just too much uncertainty over there right now. But it's clear from your responses that when we do, some of you are as excited to go as my wife and I! Stay tuned.

LAST NOTE: Today is the statewide newspaper rally at the Indiana Statehouse you've been reading about in these pages (and hearing me blather on about) for a while. I have no idea how it's going to go. We may have three or four of us show up or we may have a hundred.

All I do know is this. The Indiana Legislature annually tries to kill newspapers. There are almost always one or two members who are ticked off because their local paper wrote something they did not like. And then the lobbyists jump in (wouldn't our world be better off without lobbyists and lawyers?) and to hear them

THREE THINGS You Should Know

- 1 Indiana Newspapers are having a rally day at the Indiana Statehouse today at 11 a.m. and everyone is invited! State lawmakers are trying to take legal notices out of newspapers and put them on a government website. Not only would that be like the fox guarding the henhouse, but it will cost taxpayers more than they are currently spending. This morning, newspapers and supporters from all over Indiana are going to the Statehouse to show our opposition to the move. Newspapers are a part of Indiana history and an important part of an open government. The Founding Fathers thought so and put it in the First Amendment.
2 Where do you want to be buried? Our friends at Choice Mutual, a life insurance agency focused on final expense policies, surveyed 3,128 respondents and found that Crown Hill Cemetery in Indianapolis was voted Hoosiers' Favored Burial Spot. Coming in second and third were Highland Lawn Cemetery in Terre Haute and Lindenwood in Fort Wayne.
3 Indiana Gov. Mike Braun recently signed an executive order to review the policies of Indiana's state educational institutions regarding antisemitism and their response to any acts of antisemitism following the Oct. 7 terrorist attacks against Israel, reiterating Indiana's support for its Jewish community and condemning antisemitic acts of discrimination and harassment.

OBITUARY

Marjorie Lee Keeling

April 2, 1931 - March 13, 2025

Marjorie Lee Keeling, 93, passed away March 13, 2025, at Wellbrooke of Crawfordsville. She was born on April 2, 1931, in Fountain County, Indiana to Frank and Avanelle Allen Shoaf. On May 19, 1951, she married Leroy Keeling who preceded her in death in 1994.

Marjorie graduated from Kingman High School in the class of 1949. She was proud of her school and attended every alumni banquet since graduation, totaling 75 years. After graduation in the spring of 1949, she attended and graduated from "Smart Appearance Beauty College" in Terre Haute. She owned and operated "Marge's Beauty Shop" in Kingman for many years.

Marjorie was a member of the Kingman United Methodist Church and was active in church activities. She loved to garden and pick blackberries; canning her vegetables and making jelly, which she shared with many. She was never happy away from home; when she turned off Hwy 41 onto 234 she said in her view she was back in the "Garden Spot of the World".

One of her favorite things was basketball. In school she played for the KHS girls basketball team, at that time girls could only play 1/2 court. She was a tough team player guarding her end. Marjorie and Leroy were supporters of Covington Basketball. Leroy taught in the school system and was always a member of the score keepers for many years. She liked IU and Purdue, but in later years she loved the Pacers and Indiana Fever.

Some of her best talents were sewing, knitting, and needlepoint. She made all her husband's bow ties and doll clothes at Christmas for her nieces. She liked dressing up for Halloween and dressing her nieces and nephews up to play in the snow so they could hardly move.

Marjorie is survived by a sister, Joyce Berard and sister-in-law, Shirley Shoaf. She was a special aunt to her nieces and nephews and their families; and had many loving friends and neighbors.

She was preceded in death by her parents, husband, sister Phyllis Ransom, and brother Gordon Shoaf.

Visitation will be at Sanders Funeral Care, 203 S 1st Street, in Kingman on Monday, March 17, 2025 from 12:00pm till the time of the funeral service at 3:00pm with Dave Sims officiating. Burial will follow at Kingman Fraternal Cemetery. Memorial donations may be given in Marge's memory to the Muscular Dystrophy Association, WEB PO Box 7410354, Chicago, IL 60674-0354 or at www.mda.org. ## One Artist Show at Art League Next Month

A One-Artist-Show by Indiana artist Roy Boswell will be featured at the Southside Art League Off Broadway Gallery in Greenwood next month. Boswell will be exhibiting a unique collection of oil and acrylic paintings.

Boswell, born in 1985, is based in Butlerville, Ind. His subject matter reflects his personal connection to his childhood on a family farm, exploring themes of nostalgia and rural tranquility. His work is characterized by tight value families, inventive color palettes and well-designed compositions.

The journey of creating art is as unique as the artists themselves. For Boswell, the process of crafting smaller paintings, sketches and value and color studies plays a crucial role in transforming disparate external influences into cohesive works of art. These preparatory pieces serve as a bridge, helping him to shape a unified vision for his painting that

Gender About Town: Women's History Month

SUSANNA HOWARD
 Guest Columnist

For Women's History Month this year, our topical book display focuses on gender in society. How do people of different genders move through the world? What social rules are they expected to follow, and how do those rules differ throughout history? What happens when people break rules, intentionally or unintentionally?

"Who's Afraid of Gender?" by Judith Butler (305.3 Butler) reflects on the importance given to the upholding of gender norms in our society, and the broader ideas inherent to the emphasis on such a social order. "Adam and Eve After the Pill, Revisited" (205.6 Ebe) by Mary Eberstadt addresses changes to how people relate following the sexual revolution in the 1960s.

What does it mean to be a woman? Lillian Faderman's "Woman: the American History of an Idea" (305.40973 Fad) discusses the variations on the social concept of womanhood over the past 400 years. "The Making of Biblical Womanhood" by Beth Allison Barr (220.8 Bar) examines the historical context of Christianity's expectations for women, uncovering the human influence on divine law. Tama Starr collects quotes reflecting the beliefs that shaped society in "The 'Natural Inferiority' of Women" (305.42 Nat).

What does it mean to be a man? "The New Masculinity" by Alex Manley (305.31 Man) offers a compassionate approach to the pressures and uncertainties men face today. Alexandra Robbins' "Fraternity: an Inside Look at a Year of College Boys Becoming Men" (371.855 Rob) explores the good and bad of the Greek system's path to manhood. George M. Johnson, author of "All Boys Aren't Blue", remembers their Black boyhood growing up queer in "We Are Not Broken" (306.76 Joh).

The gendered division of sports has been a popular topic in the news over the past few years. Sports journalist Katie Barnes' "Fair Play: How Sports Shape the Gender Debates" (796.082 Barnes) gives an overview of women's sports, its benefits and drawbacks, and the interplay between the treatment of gender in sports and society as a whole. Going back in time, "The Other Olympians" by Michael Waters (921 Koubek, Z.) investigates the inception of gender testing in professional sports with the 1936 Berlin Olympic Games.

effectively communicates an idea. This exhibit offers a glimpse into this crucial phase of refining, distilling and letting go of what is unnecessary, while allowing the essence of the idea to emerge.

Boswell has won numerous Best of Show awards, including Indiana Heritage Arts Annual Exhibition, Richmond Art Museum Annual Exhibition (twice), First Blush of Fall (twice), Carmel on Canvas, and Will Vawter Annual Exhibition. His artwork will be displayed from April 2-26 at the Southside Art League, Inc. Off Broadway Gallery. It's located at 299 E. Broadway St. in historic Old Town Greenwood. The gallery is open Wednesday through Saturday from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m.

There will be a reception for Boswell at a SALI Open House on Friday, April 11 from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. Light refreshments will be served.

CPD VISITS CUB SCOUT PACK 909

Officer Kamden Hoycus of the Crawfordsville Police Department recently visited Cub Scout Pack 909 during their meeting at the American Legion. The Pack enjoyed learning about careers in law enforcement, training requirements, duties of police officers and police gear and its uses. Each Cub Scout was able to check out Hoycus' SWAT gear, spike strips and were given a tour of his 2022 Police Interceptor. During the tour, each Cub was familiarized with the emergency lights and different siren tones. The Cubs were all sent home with Honorary Police "sticker-badges" and CPD shades!

More than 1,000 students from Crawfordsville, North Montgomery, Southmont and Western Boone high schools – current juniors and seniors – will be for young adults to get involved with non-profits in the area.

There is no cost to participate. Each employer or organization will be provided an eight-foot table and two chairs. Organizers ask that businesses plan to bring a table covering and any other promotional items for the booth. ## ↓ BUTCH From Page A1 and I listened with intent concentration.

Wes also told us that all three of his brothers were pilots and served in WWII. Frank Tribbett enlisted in the Army Air Corps in 1942, and was assigned to the European theater of operations. As a Captain, he flew P-51 Mustang fighter planes in North Africa, Sicily, Corsica and over southern Europe. All told, Frank flew 87 combat missions and was credited with shooting down five enemy planes and damaging five more.

Another brother, Everett, enlisted in the Army Air Corps in 1940 and was assigned to the 8th Air Force in England. He flew B-17 "Flying Fortress" bombers over Europe. During one mission Everett and his crew shot down three German fighter planes, but his B-17 was badly damaged and began a nosedive at 10,000 feet. With great skill and perhaps a miracle, Everett was able to bring his plane under control at 2,000 feet, and he made it back to England. It was discovered that his plane had over 1,600 bullet holes in it! One month later, Capt. Everett Tribbett and his crew were shot down over Germany. He was captured by the Nazis, and was held as a prisoner of war in Stalag #3 for 26 months, but he survived and was finally set free when Germany surrendered in 1945.

Oldest brother Louis Tribbett was a graduate of the Purdue School of Engineering and was working as an aeronautical engineer when WWII began. As a Lieutenant, he served in the military for three years in the Central Pacific theater of operation as a member of the 7th Air Force. Although Louis was a trained pilot, he did not fly any missions, as his specialty was designing planes and their structures. He served in the Air Force for the next 20 years, and eventually helped with the U.S. space program.

All four brothers, the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Tribbett, grew up on a farm, and graduated from Darlington High School during the Great Depression years. Like others from that era, they were patriotic and wanted to serve their country. After the war, they returned to their families, raised their children, and became contributing members of their communities. And like most WWII veterans, they rarely spoke of their war deeds and exploits. It would be interesting to know why four farm boys decided to become airplane pilots. I should have asked that question when these men were still around . . .

I can still picture that model of a B-29 plane on the desk. I'm certain it held a lot of memories for Wesley Tribbett . . . town electrician, handyman, WWII bomber pilot . . . and like his three brothers . . . a true American hero.

When one country places a tariff on the goods of another country, that other country usually responds with tariffs of its own. The result is a tariff war that reduces trade between the two countries and results in loses to economic growth for both of them. In the 1930s, Europe responded to the United States's Smoot-Hawley tariff by increasing tariffs on U.S. goods, reducing their imports of U.S. goods by about a third. In 2002, the European Union responded to President George W. Bush's steel tariffs by imposing tariffs on oranges and cars, targeting products from swing states. This time will not be any different. China has already imposed retaliatory tariffs on U.S. goods: 15 percent on chicken, wheat, and corn, and 10 percent on soybeans, beef, and fruit. Canada has imposed its first wave of retaliatory tariffs on orange juice, peanut butter, coffee, appliances, footwear, cosmetics and motorcycles. In response to tariffs on steel and aluminum, the European Union has announced tariffs on U.S. goods to take effect April 1, including a 50 percent tariff on bourbon. U.S. exporters will lose business, and these losses are in addition to the direct costs of the tariffs to U.S. consumers. What about the trade deficit? While people worry that the U.S. imports more than it exports, tariffs will not change this situation because they do not address the underlying cause of the deficit. The trade deficit is the result of the fact that foreigners buy lots of U.S. bonds. If someone outside of the U.S. wants to buy a U.S. bond, they have to first obtain dollars. If people in the U.S. don't want to buy their bonds, they have to sell us goods and services in order to obtain the dollars they want. On net, the U.S. imports goods and exports bonds. A tariff on imports won't change the demand for U.S. bonds, so it won't reduce the trade deficit. tell it, newspapers are as out of date as a Model T parked in front of a horse and buggy dealer. The truth - and believe me, they HATE dealing with that pesky little thing - is that newspapers have more readers than ever. LOTS of folks read us - they just do it on their phones, tablets and other electronic devices. The real problem my industry has is we haven't figured out the best answer for our advertisers yet. It's a tough nut to crack, but we're working on it. And in the meantime, here's hoping a loud and clear voice tells state lawmakers to stop trying to kill off the only private institution the Founding Fathers thought enough of to protect in the Constitution! ***

Andrews? He was a host on the radio and TV series Death Valley Days. I remember the announcer telling us it was sponsored by Borax, makers of 20 Mule Team Borax. Advertising must work. Both Mom and Grandma used it in the laundry for years. By the way, you may have heard of another one of the hosts who came along after Stanley. He was an actor named Ronald Reagan. He actually left the show to run for governor of California. . . and we all know what happened after that. # Sen. Deery Shares Update

SPENCER DEERY

One of the most significant issues confronting the state is rising health care costs and the need for better mental health services.

Over the last few years, the General Assembly has passed multiple bills to address these issues such as legislation to reduce hospital costs and legislation to expand the state's network of certified community behavior health clinics that provide mental health and addiction services for individuals who need help but don't require placement in a psychiatric hospital.

This session I have been working on legislation that complements these larger efforts. Senate Bill 505 would allow an ambulance, with the appropriate partnership agreements and safety protocols in place, to take a patient to a mental health facility or an urgent care facility that can provide appropriate treatment.

The bill passed the Senate unanimously last month and this week it unanimously passed the House Committee on Public Health.

I know from listening to the professionals on the ground that for some patients, the emergency room is neither the most affordable nor the most appropriate place for an ambulance to take them and having more flexibility could save both the state and the patients money and provide better care.

This is especially true for those undergoing a mental health crisis now that the state has more 24-7 crisis clinics.

SB 505 now moves to the House Committee on Ways and Means for further study about the financial implications of this potential change.

LEGISLATIVE UPDATE

This week, several House bills I am sponsoring moved through the legislative process. Here is a quick update.

- House Bill 1016 would allow for the appointment of a fire chief, or a fire chief's designee, to a county school safety commission. The bill unanimously passed the Senate Committee on Education and Career Development Wednesday.
- House Bill 1102 would remove language restricting school corporations from entering into a contract with a religiously affiliated nonprofit preschool program. The bill unanimously passed the Senate Committee on Education and Career Development Wednesday.
- House Bill 1498 would require the State Board of Education to create a new system for annually determining the performance of schools. Under the bill, each school would receive a grade of A-F. The bill was heard by the Senate Committee on Education and Career Development Wednesday.

DISCUSSING Legislation

Last weekend I had an opportunity to attend the annual legislative Cracker Barrel event at Bridge 61 in Rockville. In the three years I've participated in this town hall, this was by far the best attended Cracker Barrel event. Thank you to everyone who came out to ask questions and express their opinions on legislation.

LOCAL COMMUNITIES Awarded Nearly $10 Million in Road Funding

Local communities will receive nearly $10 million to improve roads and bridges through the Community Crossings Matching Grant Program (CCMG).

In Senate District 23, the following communities received grants:

- Clinton received $901,203.75;
- Covington received $197,139;
- Fountain County received $1,373,450.62;
- Kingman received $189,457.50;
- Montgomery County received $1.5 million;
- New Market received $290,187.75;
- Otterbein received $100,050;
- Parke County received $1.5 million;
- Shadeland received $424,875;
- Universal received $56,342.85;
- Vermillion County received $1.5 million;
- Warren County received $908,819.99;
- West Lafayette received $581,082.70;
- West Lebanon received $74,809.29; and
- Williamsport received $342,861.75.

The CCMG program helps improve local infrastructure and plays a key role in keeping Indiana's economy strong, and I applaud our local leaders who have taken advantage of this excellent opportunity.

State Sen. Spencer Deery (R-West Lafayette) represents Senate District 23, which includes Fountain, Parke, Vermillion and Warren counties, and portions of Montgomery and Tippecanoe counties.

State Rep. Beau Baird Named Chair of State Fair Advisory Committee

House Speaker Todd Huston (R-Fishers) recently appointed State Rep. Beau Baird (R-Greencastle) as chair of the Indiana State Fair Commission Advisory Committee.

In this role, Baird will help guide the policies and initiatives that support the Indiana State Fair and its mission to showcase the state's rich agricultural heritage, youth programs and community engagement.

"I am honored to be appointed as chair of the Indiana State Fair Commission Advisory Committee," Baird said. "The Indiana State Fair is a cornerstone of our state's agricultural tradition and economic growth. I look forward to working with my colleagues to ensure its continued success and to support the farmers, businesses and communities that make it great."

The Indiana State Fair Commission Advisory Committee plays a critical role in reviewing the policies and programs of both the Indiana State Fair Commission and the Indiana State Fair Board. The commission oversees the Indiana State Fairgrounds & Event Center, a 214-acre facility in Indianapolis that hosts the annual State Fair and numerous events throughout the year.

Baird, who also serves as chair of the House Environmental Affairs Committee, has long been a strong advocate for Indiana agriculture and rural communities. As a lifelong Hoosier and an active leader in state policy, he is committed to enhancing the Indiana State Fair's impact and ensuring that it remains a premier event for families, exhibitors and visitors alike.

The Indiana State Fair, established in 1852, is one of the nation's longest-running state fairs. Each year, it attracts hundreds of thousands of visitors and features livestock exhibitions, 4-H competitions, entertainment and educational programming that highlight Indiana's agricultural and cultural heritage.

Baird represents House District 44, which includes all of Putnam County and a portion of Montgomery County.
